Cook County OKs porn ordinance

An ordinance creating new legal obstacles to the operation in unincorporated areas of adult book stores, X-rated movie theaters and nude dancing clubs was passed Monday by the Cook County Board.

The law's intent is to "take care of any operating pornographic businesses and head off any new ones that might be planning to open," County Board Pres. George W. Dunne said after enactment of the new measure.

Dunne said he was unaware of any existing adult entertainment businesses in unincorporated Cook County that would be subject to the ordinance.

But the 53 Outdoor Theater in Palatine Township, already the object of one controversial legal action, could be one of the first businesses to be affected by the new law.

THE ORDINANCE requires that adult book store and motion picture operators apply for a special use permit in order to operate, Dunn said.

The application results in a public hearing by the Cook County zoning board of appeals in the neighborhood where the book store, theater or night club wants to operate.

"It takes a three-fourths vote of the county board to pass a special use over a negative recommendation by the zoning board, and the likelihood of that is remote," Dunne said.

The 53 drive-in, which typically shows X-rated soft core pronographic films on one of three screens has been caught up in a two-year legal battle with the state's attorney's office over the showing of X-rated films.

IF COUNTY OFFICIALS decide the 53 drive-in is covered by the new ordinance, the theater will have a grace period before it would be required to apply for the special use permit, said Alex Seith, chairman of the zoning board of appeals that drafted the ordinance.

The more expensive the business the longer the time it has to comply with a new law.

"I don't know what the value is on a drive-in, but I wouldn't think it is too great. There is only one building and a screen," Seith said.

The new ordinance was not drafted with the drive-in in mind, Seith said, adding that he did not know whether the theater would have to comply with the special use requirement.

NEITHER ASSISTANT state's attorney John Dienner, who has handled the 53 drive-in case for the county, nor Jeffery Kohlberg, of Kohlberg Theaters Inc. that owns the 53 drive-in, could be reached for comment on the ordinance Monday.

Kohlberg was fined $1,000 in June 1976 for violating a circuit court ban on showing X-rated movies at the drive-in. But the ban was ruled unconstitutional by the Illinois Appellate Court Dec. 30, 1976, and the Illinois Supreme Court subsequently refused to hear the case.

"That is part of the reason we wanted the zoning amendments to spell out exactly what adult entertainment is, especially since we're dealing in a First Amendment area. I think this ordinance will do a better job," Seith said.

The drive-in may find a loop hole, however. Although the new ordinance seeks to regulate both adult movie theaters and mini-movie theaters, it defines both those businesses as being in "an enclosed building." There is no specific mention of drive-in theaters in the ordinance.

If the county decides to invoke the new ordinance against the 53 drive-in, either a county zoning inspector, sheriff's police officer or state's attorney could cite the theater for an alleged violation of the special use permit requirement, Seith said.

Managers say law won't affect 'adult' businesses

Managers of an adult bookstore and a drive-in theater featuring adult films do not believe a new Cook County ordinance will have much effect on their businesses, located on Rand Road in unincorporated Cook County.

The manager of the 53 Drive-In, near Rand and Hicks roads in Palatine Township, said Monday that he did not know the law had been passed and could not understand why it was needed.

The manager, who asked not to be identified, said that his theaters are "a business like any other. We run it as peacefully and quietly as we can."

The manager of a nameless adult bookstore near the 53 Drive-In said he does not believe the new law will drastically affect his business.

THE STORE MANAGER, who refused to give his name, said his business probably would be protected because the new law "sounds to me like a grandfather clause. I don't think it will have much effect on the businesses around here that were here

A HOUSE IS NOT A HOME until the mortgage — and the taxes — are paid. Mary Fran Stauter, who discusses finishing touches on her new Arlington Heights house with sales manager Jim Zourek, may see taxes go even higher. A new proposal suggests dropping certain homeowner tax breaks.

Loss of home tax break no big threat, experts say

The federal proposal to drop certain tax deductions for home buyers will make only a small dent on house sales in the Northwest suburbs, savings and loan officials and realty agents say.

"I don't think this is substantial enough to really deter somebody from buying a new home," said Jim Zourek, sales manager at Arlington Court, a single-family development in Arlington Heights.

"This is more of an inconvenience than anything else," Zourek said.

"In this price bracket, to live in this area, like Arlington Heights, and to live in a relatively nice house, they (home buyers) realize they have to make some sacrifices, and it's going to cost them money," he said.

"If this is a privilege tax," like a property tax, Zourek said, "I think they'll be willing to pay it."

Bid for delaying underpass plans denied by village

Arlington Heights officials Monday gave the strongest indication to date that they will proceed with plans to build an underpass at Arlington Heights Road and the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks.

The village board rejected requests from local merchants that plans for the controversial project be delayed until a study can be made on the economic impact an underpass will have on the central business district.

The village board will take a final vote on the underpass proposal Oct. 17.

PLANS RECOMMENDED by the engineering firm of Metcalf & Eddy, Inc., of Des Plaines, call for Arlington Heights Road to run under the railway tracks with Northwest Hwy. depressed to the same level as Arlington Heights Road.

The proposal was estimated at $5.7 million in 1975. The village wants 70 per cent financing from the federal government.

The request for economic impact studies was made by Robert W. Mills, president of First Arlington National Bank, with support from Edmund Pawelko, president of the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce.

VILLAGE PRES. James T. Ryan led the opposition to Mills' request, saying, "The effect of the delay on this is to really say 'no' to an underpass."

"It is personally very saddening to me to see this orchestrated action by the chamber of commerce and others," Ryan said. "The techniques and tactics being used on this I just don't feel are fair to those who have dedicated themselves to the redevelopment of the downtown and the 75,000 others in this town who pay taxes and are vitally interested in this."

Chamber of commerce officials currently are circulating a petition in opposition to the underpass.

Delaying plans for the underpass could jeopardize the village's chances of getting federal financing for the project, Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson, said.

THE STRONGEST opposition to the underpass plan Monday came from John Olsen, owner of Uncle Albert's Records and Tapes, 123 E. Davis St., who charged the village board with "trying to kill the downtown business district."

Olsen's store and eight others will be displaced if the underpass is built.

The village board Monday also passed a resolution "committing the board, if an underpass is built, to minimize the traffic congestion both during construction and after completion."

"This is not any empty gesture. I hope it shows the concern we have," Ryan said.

Ryan also predicted that a decision to build an underpass will be seen as courageous by its critics in five years.

24-hour sale of meat gets union vote

Northwest suburban shoppers soon may be able to purchase meat 24 hours a day.

Area butcher's union officials have agreed to lift all restrictions on the sale of meat at night as part of a tentative contract settlement between the union and four grocery store chains.

If the union members approve the settlement, Jewel, A & P, Dominick's and Eagle Discount chains will be able to sell fresh meat 24-hours a day during the week, on weekends and holidays.

"It's all cut and dried now. All we do is vote on it," said one journeyman butcher in the Northwest suburbs.

Under the tentative agreement, butchers will be given a raise from the present salary of $8.40 per hour to $10 per hour during the next three years. The agreement must be voted on by Locals 189, 320, 350, 546, and 612 of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher's Workmen's Union.

Once the pact is ratified, stores will be able to sell whatever meat is already cut, regardless of whether there is a butcher on duty in the store.

Butchers agreed to allow stores to sell meat until 9 p.m. in April, provided that a journeyman butcher was on duty. That concession broke a 25-year-ban on meat sales in the Chicago area after 6 p.m.

Officials who negotiated the pact were unavailable for comment Monday night. An estimated 5,000 butchers are employed in the Chicago area.

Income up faster than inflation in '76

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Americans' income grew faster than inflation last year for the first time since 1973, and almost 18 per cent of all families made $25,000 or more, the government said Monday.

Improved economic conditions during 1976 also meant the number of persons living in poverty declined by 902,000, the first drop in that category in three years, according to a new study on income released by the Census Bureau.

The study, based on nationwide interviews conducted in March with 65,500 households, said the median family income last year was $14,960, an increase of 9 per cent over 1975.

SINCE THERE was a 6 per cent rise in prices between 1975 and 1976, median family income was up $450 or 3 per cent in terms of buying power, the study said.

Median income, in this case, means that half the families in the survey earned more than $14,960 and the other half earned less.

The number of families earning more than $25,000 increased from 16.4 per cent in 1975 to 17.8 per cent last year, a figure reached only once before in this decade in 1973.

Over-all, it was the first time since 1973 Americans did not lose ground to inflationary pressure. Family income decreased by 4 per cent, after adjustment for inflation, in 1974 and declined another 3 per cent in 1975.

The increase last year, the report said, "reflected the recovery of the economy from the recent recession and the abatement of high-level inflation."

THAT IMPROVEMENT also benefited people at the lower end of the earning scale.

The census study said in 1976 there were 25 million persons earning less than $5,815, which is the federal poverty level for a nonfarm family of four. That represented a drop of 902,000 from the 1975 total.

In comparsion, the number of persons below the poverty line increased by 1.3 million in 1974 and by 2.5 million in 1975.

Other findings of the study:

- Of 56.7 million families in the United States, 17.8 per cent had incomes of $25,000 or more last year; 32 per cent earned between $15,000 and $25,000; 20.2 per cent had incomes ranging between $10,000 and $15,000; 19.6 per cent earned between $5,000 and $10,000, and 10.3 per cent had incomes below $5,000.
- White families had a median income of $15,540 last year, a 3 per cent increase over 1975. Median income for black families was $9,240, unchanged from both 1975 and 1974. Families of Spanish origin had median incomes of $10,260.
- The median family income in the South last year, after inflation adjustment, was $13,420, which was 4 per cent above the previous year but still lowest of any area in the nation. The North Central region also had a 4 per cent increase to $15,940. The West was up 2 per cent to 15,480. The Northeast's median income was $15,410, unchanged from 1975.

Slain mystery girl was from Chicago

Jane Doe was identified Monday, more than two weeks after her death.

Schiller Park police said the body of Debra Rosencranz, 16, of Chicago, was identified by her grandmother and a friend with whom she had been living.

She was identified by David and Therese Catalano, of 2027 N. Honore St., Chicago, and her grandmother, whom police would not identify.

MISS ROSENCRANZ was found unconscious and bound and wrappd in a bloody blanket Sept. 6 in the Schiller Woods Forest Preserve near Schiller Park. Police said a hitchhiker discovered Miss Rosencranz after hearing moans and seeing a bundle in some bushes.

Police said she had been tied up and bludgeoned with what appeared to be a butcher's mallet. Police believe she had been beaten elsewhere and then dumped in the woods.

Miss Rosencranz remained in a coma until her death Sept. 19.

IDENTIFICATION WAS made by checking Miss Rosencranz' dental charts. An X-ray of a slight spinal deformity also was used to identify her, police said.

Friends said Miss Rosencranz had talked about suicide earlier and that she was distraught over the divorce of her parents. She reportedly had been planning to go live with her mother, Patricia, who recently remarried and lives in Orlando, Fla., police said.

Police said they found a half-written letter by Miss Rosencranz, professing her love for her father who reportedly lives in Hot Springs, Ark.

"I don't know why she was killed," Catalano said, holding back tears. "Why would anybody want to kill her, she didn't do anything to anyone."

Miss Rosencranz was last seen Sept. 5, Labor Day, by her grandmother, who reported she left home to go to a girl friend's house.

"A mixup caused the long delay in her identification," said Schiller Park Det. Anthony Clementi.

"Catalano and her grandmother had called Chicago police several times since the girl was first reported missing Sept. 5." But Chicago records showed Sept. 7, and this inconsistency caused police to assume they had the wrong girl, he said.

More than 200 persons tried to identify Miss Rosencranz as she lay unconscious in Resurrection Hospital, Chicago. Another 1,000 persons called police for her description, and viewed pictures of her.

Hijack saga comes to end after 6,000 mile journey

ALGIERS, Algeria (UPI) — Eleven Japanese Red Army extremists ended a six-day, 6,000-mile, $6 million saga Monday by freeing the last 19 hostages aboard a Japan Air Lines DC-8 and turning themselves over to Algerian authorities.

Algerian police whisked the extremists away in three gleaming black limousines. Though the hijackers had threatened wholesale slaughter, the drama of torturous negotiations and cumbersome exchanges of Red Army prisoners and passenger hostages ended without a drop of blood being spilled.

At the airport terminal the hostages — 12 passengers, including one American, and seven Japanese crew members — happily toasted the end of their 135-hour ordeal with orange juice. Algeria discouages public consumption of alcohol.

THE END OF the six-day, 6,000-mile hijacking cost the Japanese government a record $6 million ransom.

The Algerian government declined to say whether the five original hijackers and their six radical comrades released by Japan had been arrested, given asylum or told they could leave the country. Nor was it clear what would happen to the ransom of U.S. $100 bills extorted from the Japanese government.

In Tokyo, Chief Cabinet Secretary Sunao Sunoda said the Algerians had laid down tough conditions for accepting the hijackers. Sonoda indicated Japan might have to give up hope of recapturing the terrorists or recovering the ransom.

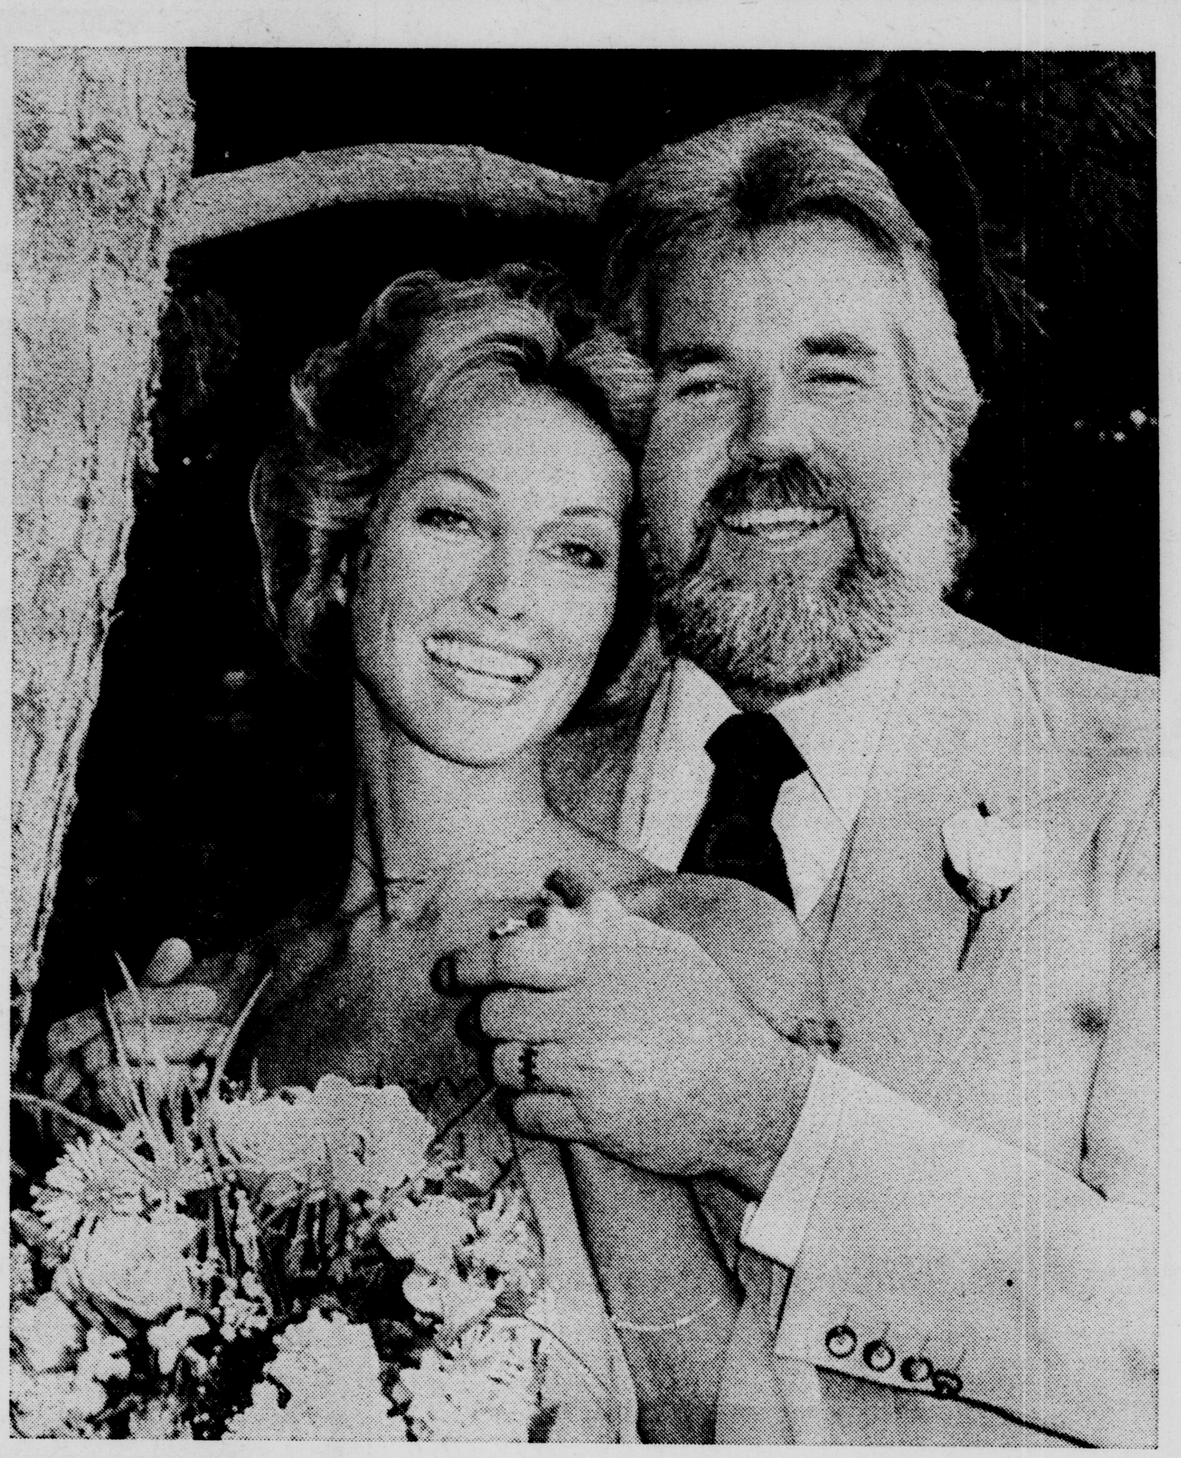
Algerian officials declined to say anything. In the past, they have taken hijackers into custody for questioning but then promptly extended political asylum.

HOWEVER, ALGERIA has done well at recovering and returning ransom money, usually within a week or so.

Algerian police expelled reporters from the air terminal and kept anyone from leaving the airport until the extremists had been escorted away.

Police broke the ribs of one television cameraman who tried to film the extremists. They seized the cameras of several Japanese photographers.

Algerian cameramen were allowed to film the hostages as they left the plane, but no reporters were allowed near the extremists.



SINGER/COMPOSER Kenny Rogers and Marianne Gordon of TV's "Hee Haw" pose for cameras after they were married at the Rogers home Sunday. Israel upset but PLO deal 'possible'

Israel was described Monday as stunned and angry at publication of a joint U.S.-Soviet note on resumption of the Middle East peace conference in Geneva, but an authoritative Israeli source in New York said the conference could resume this year with Palestinians entering by the back door.

Israel remained firm that it never would deal with the Palestinian Liberation Organization as such, but the source said it would be possible for Palestinians to sit in on the conference as members of the Jordanian delegation even if their loyalties lay with the PLO.

"We are not going to check their credentials at the door," the source said. "Their sympathies might be with the PLO, they might have some affiliation with the PLO and they might even be in the pay of the PLO, but if they enter the Geneva conference as members of the Jordanian delegation we will accept them."

ISRAELI FOREIGN Minister Moshe Dayan was quoted in Tel Aviv Monday as saying the Carter administration's policy shift in favor of the Palestinians posed "a great danger" to the existence of Isreal, and all indications were that his meeting Wednesday with President Carter would amount to a showdown in U..S.-Israeli relations.

The new crisis in U.S.-Israeli relations arose from a joint U.S.-Soviet statement Saturday by Sec. of State Cyrus Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko which said a new Middle East peace conference should ensure "the legitimate rights of the Palestinian people" and establish "peaceful relations" in the region.

Dayan, in a New York statement to the national Israeli newspaper Yedioth Ahrondth, called the joint U.S.-Soviet statement "pro Palestinian" and said it "shows an American change of position in this matter."

"I see in the attempt to advance the cause of the Palestinians and the PLO at the expense of Israeli a great danger for the existence of the state of Israel," he was quoted as saying.

AUTHORITATIVE sources also expressed amazement that the United States would choose this time to bring the Soviet Union back into Middle East affairs. The sources said Soviet influence had been waning in the Middle East and although Russia is cochairman with the United States of the Geneva conference, the joint action served only to enhance the Russian position.

Some Israeli sources said they believed Carter had acted with the Soviet Union to try to improve deteriorating U.S.-Soviet relations.

UPI State Dept. Correspondent Jim Anderson said the sharp strains that developed Monday between Israel and the United States were jeopardizing Vance's attempt to convene the Geneva conference by the end of this year.

Filibuster ends as Senate offered compromise plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With a series of history-making rulings, Senate leaders ended a two-week filibuster on natural gas Monday, enabling Sen. Henry Jackson to propose a new plan that would eliminate federal gas price controls in 1987.

Jackson said Energy Sec. James Schlesinger isn't opposed to his idea — the first indication yet that the administration might accept eventual deregulation of new natural gas.

Filibuster leaders conceded defeat just hours after the new Senate rules took effect and they blamed their defeat on the White House.

"WE HAVE GIVEN it the best try we could have and we will call off the filibuster effective immediately," said Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, who staged the delay to ward off victory by those favoring deregulation.

"We have had the rug pulled out from under us by the President," said Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D.

The Senate then adjourned for the night.

As the filibuster ended, Jackson's new plan took center stage in the multibillion-dollar controversy. In the past, the Washington Democrat has supported administration efforts to maintain federal authority over natural gas prices, but his compromise calls for elimination of those regulations on newly discovered natural gas in 1987.

JACKSON SAID Schlesinger knew of the plan and "did not object to it," although President Carter threatened a week ago to veto any natural gas bill with deregulation in it, and Schlesinger noted that position again on Sunday.

Under Jackson's plan, newly produced natural gas would be sold at $2.03 per 1000 cubic feet immediately, up from the current ceiling of $1.46. The price could rise to $3.48 by 1985 and controls would be removed Jan. 1, 1987.

The plan was designed to woo the vote switches Jackson thinks he needs to win since key Senate votes in the past two weeks showed deregulation forces with a small majority.

REPUBLICANS and Democrats who favor deregulation hailed Jackson for trying a compromise, but did not commit themselves to it.

Jackson was able to introduce the compromise — which could come up for a vote this week — due to history-making rulings implemented by the Senate leadership to crush the filibuster.

With Vice President Walter Mondale presiding, the leadership won approval of four key rulings to eliminate the chief weapon used in the filibuster — amendments.

The rulings allow the presiding Senate officer to throw out amendments he considers dilatory; to refuse certain time-consuming motions and roll calls; and to allow individual senators to withdraw their own amendments.

Law won't affect 'adult' businesses

before the law was passed."

The bookstore, in existence for two years, has not had any problems with citizens' groups or police trying to close it, the manager said. "If we have to apply for a (special use permit), we'll apply. But if they just say no, then we go to court."

The new law, passed Monday by the Cook County Board, is intended to "take care of any operating pornographic businesses," said county Board Pres. George Dunne. It will require owners of such stores to seek a special use permit from the county zoning board of appeals.

A SPOKESMAN for the Club Renaissance, an exclusive men's club two doors from the adult bookstore, said he knew nothing about the county ordinance and would not comment on it.

The Club Renaissance, which features women who will enter private rooms with men for a fee-tip, opened on Rand Road about three weeks ago.

It was not known Monday night if the ordinance will have any effect on the club or gathering places that feature nude dancing, such as the Torch Club, also on Rand Road near Hicks Road.

'Loss of tax break no big threat'

their over-all income tax go up — by as much as $1,680 for persons earning $100,000 per year.

A FAMILY with a combined gross income of $30,000 to $50,000 would see their taxes rise by an average $324.

But by replacing existing deductions with a 20 per cent tax credit, homeowners earning between $10,000 and $15,000 annually would see an average decrease of $215 in their income taxes.

The tax break thus is designed to benefit lower-income, city residents and encourage them to buy or renovate homes.

But whether the credit would greatly affect most Northwest suburban residents either positively or negatively is debatable, housing experts say.

Under the proposal, families earning more than $30,000 a year are guaranteed to pay more taxes to the IRS.

AND ACCORDING to a ranking of Chicago-area communities recently released by urbanologist Pierre deVise, the median family income of Northwest suburbanites ranges from a low of $21,790 for Streamwood to a high of $29,990 for Arlington Heights.

According to the proposal, homeowners earning between $20,000 and $30,000 would gain an average of only $19 from the tax credit. Those closer to the $30,000 ceiling probably would have to pay extra taxes, but far below the $324 average for the $30,000 to $50,000 income bracket.

IN EFFECT, the proposal would slap the upper-middle class taxpayers for more money to make up for the tax breaks given to the poor.

Holly Stabler, staff director of the House Subcommittee On the City, said existing tax laws benefit the well-to-do, but ignore the poor.

Present tax breaks, she said, "have tended to favor new construction, rather than rehabilitation of what is."

IN DRAFTING the proposal, the subcommittee sought to cure "an imbalance in the treatment of reinvestment in the city, as opposed to investment in the suburbs," Ms. Stabler said.

She said the 20 per cent figure for the tax credit was chosen to ensure the U.S. Treasury Dept. would continue receiving the same amount of revenue as it collects under existing laws.

Spokesmen for the housing industry, however, questioned whether tax credits amounting to, at the most, $376 for families earning between $5,000 and $10,000, would spur an urban renaissance.

ED MERCHUT, project manager at the Arlindgale residential development in Schaumburg, said, "I don't think that will make anybody buy a home, and I don't think it will make someone qualify."

Mark Clark, spokesman for the U.S. League of Savings Associations, said, "It's clearly designed to try and steer the benefit to the lower-income person, but are you really going to do enough to benefit low-income people?"

GEORGE PETERSON, affiliated with the Urban Institute in Washington, D.C., cited as another example that of a household earning between $55,000 and $60,000 annually, which under the proposal would lose about 50 per cent of its current income tax deduction.

The proposal also could put a damper on construction of housing costing more than $60,000, affecting most new single-family construction in the Northwest suburbs, Peterson said.

Mary Fran Stauter, a Northwest suburban realty agent whose family recently purchased a new $108,500-home in Arlington Heights, said she believed the higher taxes will be a minor deterrant in new-home purchases.

SHE SAID younger couples increasingly are purchasing homes "because they know rents are going up, taxes are going up and they're getting a tax break."

If the proposal became law, most Northwest suburbanites would find it no more than an inconvenience, housing experts said.

PHILIP ROCKCASTLE, vice president in charge of loans at Union Federal Savings and Loan in Palatine, said, "The opulence of the people we're processing now is of such a nature I don't think it would have much of an effect."

He said, however, that the tax credit might give families less flexibility in handling their money. For example, a homeowner now may pay ahead one year and coast the next because of business success, a practice discouraged by the tax credit, Rockcastle said.

Slain mystery girl was from Chicago

Jane Doe was identified Monday, more than two weeks after her death.

Schiller Park police said the body of Debra Rosencranz, 16, of Chicago, was identified by her grandmother and a friend with whom she had been living.

She was identified by David and Therese Catalano, of 2027 N. Honore St., Chicago, and her grandmother, whom police would not identify.

MISS ROSENCRANZ was found unconscious and bound and wrappd in a bloody blanket Sept. 6 in the Schiller Woods Forest Preserve near Schiller Park. Police said a hitchhiker discovered Miss Rosencranz after hearing moans and seeing a bundle in some bushes.

Police said she had been tied up and bludgeoned with what appeared to be a butcher's mallet. Police believe she had been beaten elsewhere and then dumped in the woods.

Miss Rosencranz remained in a coma until her death Sept. 19.

IDENTIFICATION WAS made by checking Miss Rosencranz' dental charts. An X-ray of a slight spinal deformity also was used to identify her, police said.

Friends said Miss Rosencranz had talked about suicide earlier and that she was distraught over the divorce of her parents. She reportedly had been planning to go live with her mother, Patricia, who recently remarried and lives in Orlando, Fla., police said.

Police said they found a half-written letter by Miss Rosencranz, professing her love for her father who reportedly lives in Hot Springs, Ark.

"I don't know why she was killed," Catalano said, holding back tears. "Why would anybody want to kill her, she didn't do anything to anyone."

Miss Rosencranz was last seen Sept. 5, Labor Day, by her grandmother, who reported she left home to go to a girl friend's house.

"A mixup caused the long delay in her identification," said Schiller Park Det. Anthony Clementi.

"Catalano and her grandmother had called Chicago police several times since the girl was first reported missing Sept. 5." But Chicago records showed Sept. 7, and this inconsistency caused police to assume they had the wrong girl, he said.

More than 200 persons tried to identify Miss Rosencranz as she lay unconscious in Resurrection Hospital, Chicago. Another 1,000 persons called police for her description, and viewed pictures of her.

Hijack saga comes to end after 6,000 mile journey

ALGIERS, Algeria (UPI) — Eleven Japanese Red Army extremists ended a six-day, 6,000-mile, $6 million saga Monday by freeing the last 19 hostages aboard a Japan Air Lines DC-8 and turning themselves over to Algerian authorities.

Algerian police whisked the extremists away in three gleaming black limousines. Though the hijackers had threatened wholesale slaughter, the drama of torturous negotiations and cumbersome exchanges of Red Army prisoners and passenger hostages ended without a drop of blood being spilled.

At the airport terminal the hostages — 12 passengers, including one American, and seven Japanese crew members — happily toasted the end of their 135-hour ordeal with orange juice. Algeria discouages public consumption of alcohol.

THE END OF the six-day, 6,000-mile hijacking cost the Japanese government a record $6 million ransom.

The Algerian government declined to say whether the five original hijackers and their six radical comrades released by Japan had been arrested, given asylum or told they could leave the country. Nor was it clear what would happen to the ransom of U.S. $100 bills extorted from the Japanese government.

In Tokyo, Chief Cabinet Secretary Sunao Sunoda said the Algerians had laid down tough conditions for accepting the hijackers. Sonoda indicated Japan might have to give up hope of recapturing the terrorists or recovering the ransom.

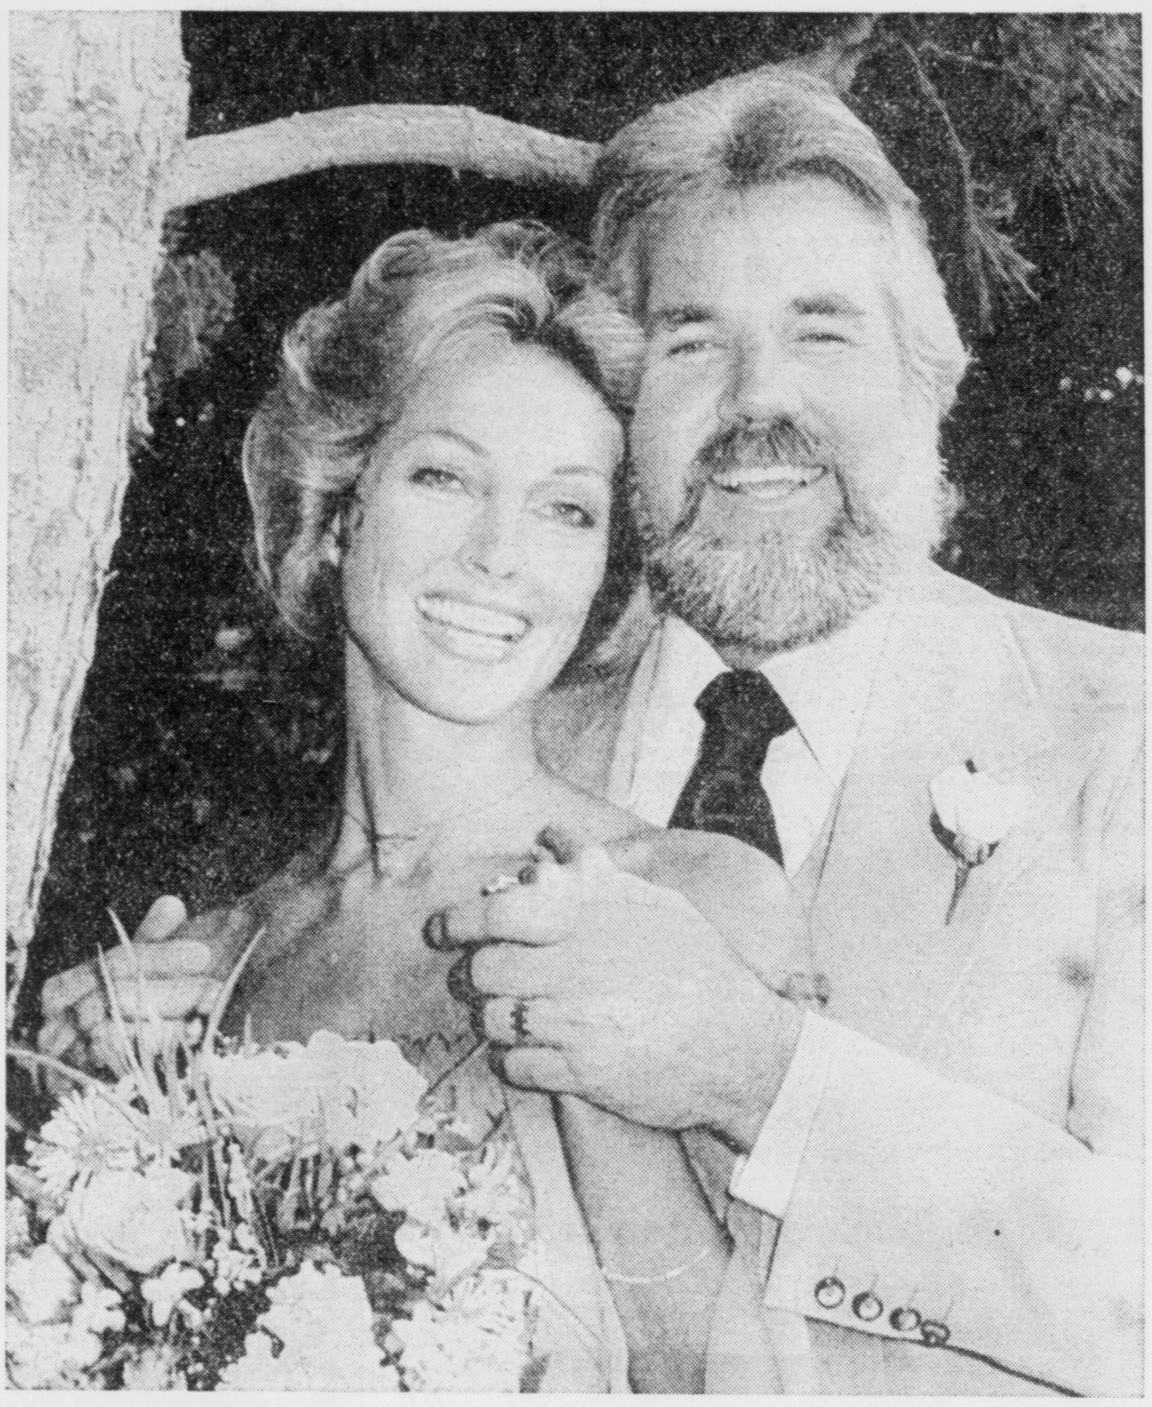
Algerian officials declined to say anything. In the past, they have taken hijackers into custody for questioning but then promptly extended political asylum.

HOWEVER, ALGERIA has done well at recovering and returning ransom money, usually within a week or so.

Algerian police expelled reporters from the air terminal and kept anyone from leaving the airport until the extremists had been escorted away.

Police broke the ribs of one television cameraman who tried to film the extremists. They seized the cameras of several Japanese photographers.

Algerian cameramen were allowed to film the hostages as they left the plane, but no reporters were allowed near the extremists.



SINGER/COMPOSER Kenny Rogers and Marianne Gordon of TV's "Hee Haw" pose for cameras after they were married at the Rogers home Sunday. The private ceremony was performed by singer John Davidson's father, The Rev. James Davidson. The wedding was attended by 150 friends including John Denver, Glen Campbell and Yvonne Goolagong.

Israel upset but PLO deal 'possible'

Israel was described Monday as stunned and angry at publication of a joint U.S.-Soviet note on resumption of the Middle East peace conference in Geneva, but an authoritative Israeli source in New York said the conference could resume this year with Palestinians entering by the back door.

Israel remained firm that it never would deal with the Palestinian Liberation Organization as such, but the source said it would be possible for Palestinians to sit in on the conference as members of the Jordanian delegation even if their loyalties lay with the PLO.

"We are not going to check their credentials at the door," the source said. "Their sympathies might be with the PLO, they might have some affiliation with the PLO and they might even be in the pay of the PLO, but if they enter the Geneva conference as members of the Jordanian delegation we will accept them."

ISRAELI FOREIGN Minister Moshe Dayan was quoted in Tel Aviv Monday as saying the Carter administration's policy shift in favor of the Palestinians posed "a great danger" to the existence of Isreal, and all indications were that his meeting Wednesday with President Carter would amount to a showdown in U..S.-Israeli relations.

The new crisis in U.S.-Israeli relations arose from a joint U.S.-Soviet statement Saturday by Sec. of State Cyrus Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko which said a new Middle East peace conference should ensure "the legitimate rights of the Palestinian people" and establish "peaceful relations" in the region.

Dayan, in a New York statement to the national Israeli newspaper Yedioth Ahrondth, called the joint U.S.-Soviet statement "pro Palestinian" and said it "shows an American change of position in this matter."

"I see in the attempt to advance the cause of the Palestinians and the PLO at the expense of Israeli a great danger for the existence of the state of Israel," he was quoted as saying.

AUTHORITATIVE sources also expressed amazement that the United States would choose this time to bring the Soviet Union back into Middle East affairs. The sources said Soviet influence had been waning in the Middle East and although Russia is cochairman with the United States of the Geneva conference, the joint action served only to enhance the Russian position.

Some Israeli sources said they believed Carter had acted with the Soviet Union to try to improve deteriorating U.S.-Soviet relations.

UPI State Dept. Correspondent Jim Anderson said the sharp strains that developed Monday between Israel and the United States were jeopardizing Vance's attempt to convene the Geneva conference by the end of this year.

Filibuster ends as Senate offered compromise plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With a series of history-making rulings, Senate leaders ended a two-week filibuster on natural gas Monday, enabling Sen. Henry Jackson to propose a new plan that would eliminate federal gas price controls in 1987.

Jackson said Energy Sec. James Schlesinger isn't opposed to his idea — the first indication yet that the administration might accept eventual deregulation of new natural gas.

Filibuster leaders conceded defeat just hours after the new Senate rules took effect and they blamed their defeat on the White House.

"WE HAVE GIVEN it the best try we could have and we will call off the filibuster effective immediately," said Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, who staged the delay to ward off victory by those favoring deregulation.

"We have had the rug pulled out from under us by the President," said Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D.

The Senate then adjourned for the night.

As the filibuster ended, Jackson's new plan took center stage in the multibillion-dollar controversy. In the past, the Washington Democrat has supported administration efforts to maintain federal authority over natural gas prices, but his compromise calls for elimination of those regulations on newly discovered natural gas in 1987.

JACKSON SAID Schlesinger knew of the plan and "did not object to it," although President Carter threatened a week ago to veto any natural gas bill with deregulation in it, and Schlesinger noted that position again on Sunday.

Under Jackson's plan, newly produced natural gas would be sold at $2.03 per 1000 cubic feet immediately, up from the current ceiling of $1.46. The price could rise to $3.48 by 1985 and controls would be removed Jan. 1, 1987.

The plan was designed to woo the vote switches Jackson thinks he needs to win since key Senate votes in the past two weeks showed deregulation forces with a small majority.

REPUBLICANS and Democrats who favor deregulation hailed Jackson for trying a compromise, but did not commit themselves to it.

Jackson was able to introduce the compromise — which could come up for a vote this week — due to history-making rulings implemented by the Senate leadership to crush the filibuster.

With Vice President Walter Mondale presiding, the leadership won approval of four key rulings to eliminate the chief weapon used in the filibuster — amendments.

The rulings allow the presiding Senate officer to throw out amendments he considers dilatory; to refuse certain time-consuming motions and roll calls; and to allow individual senators to withdraw their own amendments.

Law won't affect 'adult' businesses

before the law was passed."

The bookstore, in existence for two years, has not had any problems with citizens' groups or police trying to close it, the manager said. "If we have to apply for a (special use permit), we'll apply. But if they just say no, then we go to court."

The new law, passed Monday by the Cook County Board, is intended to "take care of any operating pornographic businesses," said county Board Pres. George Dunne. It will require owners of such stores to seek a special use permit from the county zoning board of appeals.

A SPOKESMAN for the Club Renaissance, an exclusive men's club two doors from the adult bookstore, said he knew nothing about the county ordinance and would not comment on it.

The Club Renaissance, which features women who will enter private rooms with men for a fee-tip, opened on Rand Road about three weeks ago.

It was not known Monday night if the ordinance will have any effect on the club or gathering places that feature nude dancing, such as the Torch Club, also on Rand Road near Hicks Road.

their over-all income tax go up — by as much as $1,680 for persons earning $100,000 per year.

A FAMILY with a combined gross income of $30,000 to $50,000 would see their taxes rise by an average $324.

But by replacing existing deductions with a 20 per cent tax credit, homeowners earning between $10,000 and $15,000 annually would see an average decrease of $215 in their income taxes.

The tax break thus is designed to benefit lower-income, city residents and encourage them to buy or renovate homes.

But whether the credit would greatly affect most Northwest suburban residents either positively or negatively is debatable, housing experts say.

Under the proposal, families earning more than $50,000 a year are guaranteed to pay more taxes to the IRS.

AND ACCORDING to a ranking of Chicago-area communities recently released by urbanologist Pierre deVise, the median family income of Northwest suburbanites ranges from a low of $21,790 for Streamwood to a high of $29,990 for Arlington Heights.

According to the proposal, homeowners earning between $20,000 and $30,000 would gain an average of only $19 from the tax credit. Those closer to the $30,000 ceiling probably would have to pay extra taxes, but far below the $324 average for the $30,000 to $50,000 income bracket.

IN EFFECT, the proposal would slap the upper-middle class taxpayers for more money to make up for the tax breaks given to the poor.

Holly Stabler, staff director of the House Subcommittee On the City, said existing tax laws benefit the well-to-do, but ignore the poor.

Present tax breaks, she said, "have tended to favor new construction, rather than rehabilitation of what is."

IN DRAFTING the proposal, the subcommittee sought to cure "an imbalance in the treatment of reinvestment in the city, as opposed to investment in the suburbs," Ms. Stabler said.

She said the 20 per cent figure for the tax credit was chosen to ensure the U.S. Treasury Dept. would continue receiving the same amount of revenue as it collects under existing laws.

Spokesmen for the housing industry, however, questioned whether tax credits amounting to, at the most, $376 for families earning between $5,000 and $10,000, would spur an urban renaissance.

ED MERCHUT, project manager at the Arlindgale residential development in Schaumburg, said, "I don't think that will make anybody buy a home, and I don't think it will make someone qualify."

Mark Clark, spokesman for the U.S. League of Savings Associations, said, "It's clearly designed to try and steer the benefit to the lower-income person, but are you really going to do enough to benefit low-income people?"

GEORGE PETERSON, affiliated with the Urban Institute in Washington, D.C., cited as another example that of a household earning between $55,000 and $60,000 annually, which under the proposal would lose about 50 per cent of its current income tax deduction.

The proposal also could put a damper on construction of housing costing more than $60,000, affecting most new single-family construction in the Northwest suburbs, Peterson said.

Mary Fran Stauter, a Northwest suburban realty agent whose family recently purchased a new $108,500-home in Arlington Heights, said she believed the higher taxes will be a minor deterrant in new-home purchases.

SHE SAID younger couples increasingly are purchasing homes "because they know rents are going up, taxes are going up and they're getting a tax break."

If the proposal became law, most Northwest suburbanites would find it no more than an inconvenience, housing experts said.

PHILIP ROCKCASTLE, vice president in charge of loans at Union Federal Savings and Loan in Palatine, said, "The opulence of the people we're processing now is of such a nature I don't think it would have much of an effect."

He said, however, that the tax credit might give families less flexibility in handling their money. For example, a homeowner now may pay ahead one year and coast the next because of business success, a practice discouraged by the tax credit, Rockcastle said.

Cancer deaths linked to petroleum firms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A government study found abnormally high cancer death rates in 39 counties with petroleum refineries which employed at least 1 per cent of the population, it was reported Monday.

Dr. William Blot, a National Cancer Institute epidemiologist who led the study, said the survey results should be interpreted cautiously but do show a consistent pattern of excess cancer deaths where the petroleum industry is a major employer.

"We're treating it as a lead or clue that perhaps there may be some cancer risk associated with petroleum industry," he said in an interview.

THE STUDY DID not look specifically at petroleum workers and Blot said it was possible some other factor might be responsible for the above average cancer death rates in the period surveyed, between 1950 and 1969.

The study, however, did compare the cancer death rates in the petroleum counties with nearby counties which did not have petroleum plants and had generally the same degree of urbanization, income levels, education, racial and percentages of foreign parents.

More than half the counties studied were concentrated in Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Kansas. Other counties studied with petroleum industries were in Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Mississippi, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Washington, West Virginia, Wyoming, Kentucky and California.

The study found that deaths from cancers of the nasal cavity and sinuses were 48 per cent higher in the petroleum counties compared to the counties without petroleum industries. Lung cancer deaths were 15 per cent higher, deaths from cancers of the skin including malignant moles were 10 per cent higher as were cancers of the testes.

THE REPORT SAID if the cancer death rate increases were the result of cancers in petroleum workers, then the relative risk to refinery workers exposed to hydrocarbon vapors would be substantial.

The question of a link between cancer and petroleum refineries had not been studied substantially in the past but one 1974 study conducted for the American Petroleum Institute found no clear indication that petroleum refinery workers were exposed to ex cess risk.

However, the report said indirect evidence of a hazard to petroleum workers was suggested recently by a national survey of lung cancer deaths which indicated deaths from the disease were in counties with oil refineries. It said the survey indicates the need for more industrywide studies.

The study was reported in the Oct. 7 issue of Science, journal of the American Assn. for the Advancement of Science.

C&NW cars get new RTA colors

The days of the old yellow and green Chicago and North Western Ry. cars are numbered. The Regional Transportation Authority board Monday said it wants to see all transit carriers in the region wearing RTA colors. So the green and yellow soon will be traded in for blue, orange and borwn. RTA board member Patrick O'Malley of Chicago and other board members said some agencies like the Chicago Transit Authority have resisted prominent use of the RTA logo, preferring to retain their own identity. "Everyone wants to maintain their own local autonomy and take the (RTA) money," said Board member D. Daniel Baldino of Evanston. "If some of these major fleets like the North Western and the CTA could be painted RTA colors, the view of the public of what we are doing would be substantially different."

"I think I would bite the bullet and spend the money to paint the whole fleet," Baldino said. Some board members, however, including Jerry D. Boose of St. Charles said they would like to see the new paint jobs done as part of routine maintenance.

Bus cops bust 484 in 2 months

The Chicago Police Department's rag-tag group of undercover mass transit officers has arrested 484 persons on city buses during the last two months, deputy patrol division Chief Walter Vallee said Monday. "It reassures the public and bus drivers that the police department is paying close attention to crime on the buses," Vallee said. The 30 male and female officers have been riding the buses since Aug. 4, dressed in clothes ranging from casual to downright seedy. They have arrested 433 persons for minor infractions and another 51 for more serious crimes such as theft, carrying weapons or narcotics, battery, drinking and gambling.

Zenith employes protest layoff

About 500 employes of Zenith Radio Corp. gathered at the Dirksen Federal Building Monday to protest the company's plan to lay off 5,600 workers nationwide and called for stricter enforcement of an agreement with Japan that restricts that nation's export of color televisions to the U.S. Japanese exporters allegedly have circumvented the agreement, aimed at protecting American jobs, by shipping unassembled units to Taiwan and Mexico for assembly and shipment to the U.S. "The only people who can really help us are in Washington," said Marty Vaagen, president of Independent Radionic Workers of America.

Cosentino, a 46-year-old Palos Heights resident, said he is basing his campaign on bringing a business acumen to state government. "I have been a businessman all my life and I feel government needs businessmen. Until government takes a business approach, we will never end tax increases," Cosentino said in a news conference.

O'Neil seeks Class X support

Lt. Gov. Dave O'Neal sought to drum up support for Gov. James R. Thompson's "Class X" crime package Monday, saying it is a system which "locks up pathological criminals and throws away the key." In the text of a speech to be given before three different civic groups meeting in Springfield this week, O'Neal said Class X legislation was sidelined during the spring legislative session through "a cheap political trick" by House Speaker William Redmond. An amendment containing Class X legislation was declared non-germane by Redmond when it was tacked onto another crime bill. The package will be one of the main issues to come before the legislature later this month during a special session on crime called by the governor and legislative leaders.

Crane company chosen to look at development

A development team headed by the nationally-known Crane Construction Co. was selected Monday to study the feasibility of building a multi-level retail-office center in downtown Arlington Heights.

The team's proposal recommends the construction of a building with 130,000 square feet of retail space and at least 90,000 square feet of office space with a 575-car parking garage.

Crane's plan is five-times larger than one submitted by a development team headed by the J. R. Gottlieb Co., which built the "Superblock" project in downtown Des Plaines.

PLANS CALL for the downtown Arlington Heights development to be built in the block bounded by Campbell, Dunton, Vail and Sigwalt streets.

Two Arlington Heights trustees, Frank Palmatier and Alfred Barboro, voted to select the Gottlieb proposal because it does not require additional land acquisition. Crane's proposal envisions the acquisition of the Dunton Court Shopping Center, whose owner insists he isn't interested in selling.

The Crane team, which includes Development Control Corp. and architects Welton Becket and Associates, both of Chicago, has six months to conduct its feasibility study before making a commitment to build.

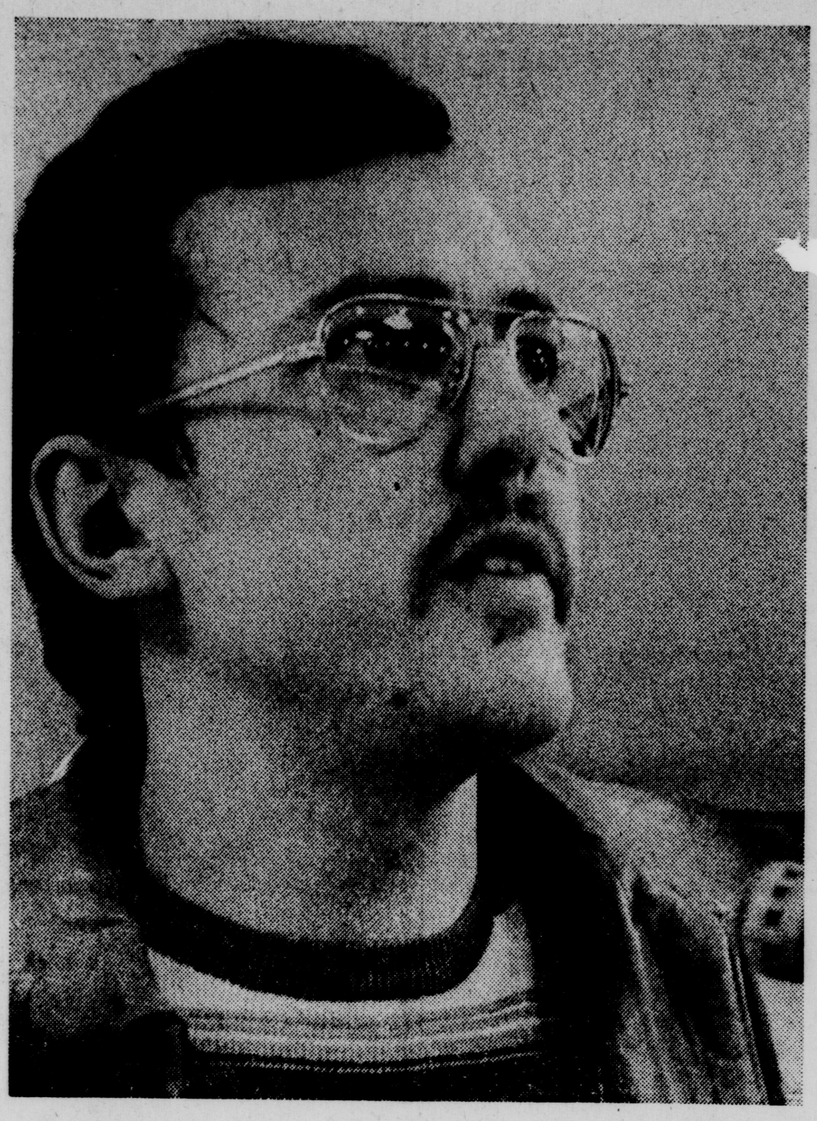
The Crane team has been involved in the planning and construction of more than 20 shopping centers.

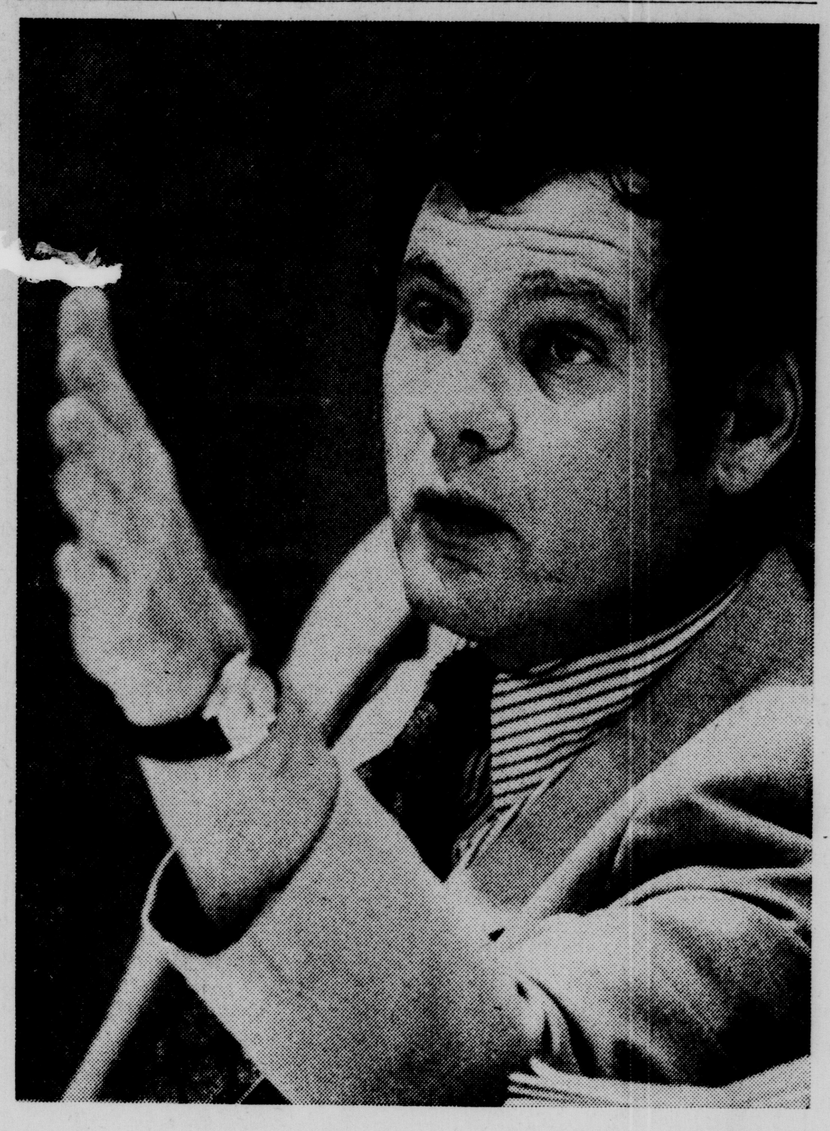
THE GOTTLIEB team, which includes H. W. Lochner engineering company of Chicago and Erickson and Stevens architects of Des Plaines, has built only the "Superblock" project, which was criticized by several Arlington Heights trustees Monday.

"I haven't decided if I like the Des Plaines project, but I think a lot of people in Arlington Heights feel it is an ugly situation," trustee August Bettman said.

Trustee Madeline Schroeder and Ralph Clarbour also expressed a dislike for the appearance of "Superblock." Trustee Martin Cawley said he favored Crane because the company's experience nationwide should help attract a large store to "anchor" the shopping center and because the Crane plan has a greater tax potential.

A report prepared by the village's planning department predicts the Crane team's proposal will produce about $192,000 a year while the Gottlieb proposal would provide the village with about $53,000 a year in tax benefits.





VILLAGE PRES. James T. Ryan (right) makes a point during a heated debate with John Olsen Monday night. Olsen, owner of Uncle Albert's Records and Tapes, said his store will have to be relocated if plans for the Arlington Heights Road underpass are approved.

'Cinderella' greeted with indifference in other towns

by RUTH MUGALIAN

When word got out that "Cinderella" was coming to town, Rolling Meadows police began preparing arrest warrants.

Concerned aldermen called the city attorney and city manager to see what could be done.

And the plolice chief showed up at the Meadows Theatre Friday night to watch the well-planned raid that resulted in the seizure of the adult film, the arrest of the theater manager and a possible upcoming court battle.

But in 21 other Chicago area towns, the opening of the X-rated fairy tale went virtually unnoticed by city and village officials.

"Is that X-rated? I didn't realize that," said Richard Doggett, Chicago Heights city administrator.

DOGGETT SAID the city has not received any calls complaining of the adult entertainment and that the issue of obscenity has not been raised since the mid-60s.

"The last time it came up was when "The Graduate" came out," he said. "It was kind of a joke. The mayor determined that it was obscene, but nobody backed him up, so it died down."

Doggett said "The Graduate" played for 20 weeks in Chicago Heights, "So obviously the community enjoyed it."

The city has an obscenity ordinance that restricts the distribution of obscene materials to adults 18 and older.

The nearest town to Roling Meadows to show "Cinderella" is Prospect Heights, which has no anti-obscenity ordinance.

"We don't have anything banning them," said Mayor Richard Wolf. "We may have to consider an ordinance."

THE ISSUE MAY be coming up at a city council meeting within the next month, Wolf said. He added that he has received no complaints from residents.

Although no other town has challenged "Cinderella," Wilmette Village Atty. Robert Mangler said that "when this happens in one suburb, quite often that generates action in four or five other suburbs."

Mangler said the village keeps a close eye on X-rated films, and he has viewed most that have come to town. About two years ago, the Village of Wilmette took the Wilmette Theatre to court over the X-rated movie "Panorama Blue."

"It was an issue when they were showing a lot of them and they were getting progressively worse," Mangler said. But since that time, after the theater agreed not to show hard-core pornography, they have shown some X-rated movies that "were less than some of the things we see on TV," Mangler said.

"WHEN YOU HAVE what exhibitors call soft porn, it's hard to get a conviction," he said. "Especially when the movie is shown in several towns and no one else takes any action."

Mangler said he believes someone in the village viewed "Cinderella" to see if it violates the village's obscenity ordinance, "But I haven't gotten a report on it yet."

Alfred Teton, attorney for Kohlberg Theatre, owner of the Meadows Theater, said the version of "Cinderella" shown at the Meadows was hardly hard-core.

"It's my understanding that the version shown at Meadows wasn't even the X-rated version," Teton said.

Theater manager Bill Farber, who was arrested Friday night, said police warned him they would be viewing the film. So the owners decided to show the edited version.

TETON SAID HE doesn't understand why Rolling Meadows is prohibiting the film.

"I notice every other community is permitting it except yours," he said.

Asked if he had seen "Cinderella," Teton said he had not. "I exercise my privilege to see what I want to see and that's what everyone in Rolling Meadows should be allowed to do."

In Villa Park, where "Cinderella" also is playing, Village Mgr. Robert Gostanian said theater owners know X-rated movies aren't wanted, but said "Not too many people have gotten upset over the showing of X-rated." The village's obscenity ordinance only restricts showing to adults.

Although most of the towns where Cinderella opened this week are taking it calmly, Berwyn may have come closest to a confrontation.

THE RITZ THEATRE in Berwyn was scheduled to show "Cinderella" but the theater has been closed for about a week because of damage caused by vandalism.

"I'm not going to foretell the future," said Berwyn Mayor Thomas Hett. "But if it opens here and it's X-rated for explicit sexual purposes, and I understand that's what that movie is all about, it would be a violation of our orainance."

Hett said he feels the community would object to the showing of an X-rated movie.

"Yes, and I think they should," he said.

DAVID DICK PLAYED the role of a pitcher in a World Series baseball game when Imagination Theater came to Patton School in Arlington Heights Wednesday. The three-member traveling troups helps students choose a plot and characters for a play and teaches them to use their imagination, voice, body movements and feelings to bring their ideas to life.

2 arrested in betting center raid

Police seized more than $100,000 in gambling receipts and arrested two Northwest suburban men Monday night in a raid of a sports and horse race betting operation in Mount Prospect.

Arrested were William Vickery, 616 Evergreen Pl., Buffalo Grove, and Ralph Becker Jr., 654 River Rd., Des Plaines.

Det. Robert Barone of the Mount Prospect police dept. said the two men were taking bets over the telephone in Becker's apartment near Busse and Golf roads. The operation had been under way for at least a month, he said.

The raid was carried out by Mount Prospect and Cook County Sheriff's police.

Becker was charged with felony gambling, illegal use of the telephone and keeping a gambling center, Barone said. Vickery was charged with felony gambling.

"WE HAD RECEIVED an anonymous tip four weeks ago about their activities and kept their apartment under surveillance ever since," Barone said. "Their activities came to a head this week, so we finally were able to obtain a search warrant."

Barone said the raid was unrelated to a similar arrest last Tuesday in which three men were charged with running an illegal sports betting center near Des Plaines.

In the raid, police discovered more than $400,000 in debts in an operation that reportedly was earning more than $500,000 a week.

Impeach Young, 10 congressmen urge

Ten congressmen Monday introduced a resolution calling for the impeachment of U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young. Rep. Larry McDonald, D-Ga., who announced the action at a news conference, said Young has made "racist" remarks, and "aligned himself with world revolutionary forces." The resolution cites 21 points against Young, including his failure to oppose admission of Vietnam to the United Nations, calling former Presidents Gerald Ford and Richard Nixon "racists" and support for some Communist leaders. The resolution concludes:

"For the foregoing reasons, we the undersigned members of Congress manifest our deep concern regarding the performance of U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young and hereby convey our lack of confidence in his fitness to continue in the position to which he has been appointed, and call for his immediate impeachment under Article II, Section 4, of the United States Constitution."

Confirm 13 Vermont Legion deaths

Thirteen deaths, linked to an outbreak of Legionnaire's disease in Vermont, have been confirmed by the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, a spokesman for the Medical Center of Vermont disclosed Monday. Ten previously undisclosed deaths from the pneumonia-like disease were confirmed in autopsy material submitted in late August and early September, according to spokesman Robert Burger. Three previous deaths at the Medical Center were listed as confirmed cases of the disease. The new fatalities raised to 18 the number of confirmed and "highly probable" cases of the disease in Vermont, Burger said.

'Rights' stand hurts SALT: Ford

Former President Gerald Ford said Monday the Carter administration's human rights policy has hampered development of a new Strategic Arms Limitations Treaty and increased the danger of a nuclear war, Ford said "there's no question" in his mind that President Carter has "set back negotiations on SALT II" by "condemning every other country that doesn't have human rights protected as we do." He spoke to 2,000 Albion, Mich. college students and faculty. The former president warned of "a resumption of the arms race" if the United States and Soviet Union fail to reach a new SALT accord.

Indira arrested on conspiracy charges

Former Prime Minister Indira Gandhi was arrested Monday along with four members of her old cabinet on charges of conspiracy and corruption. She said the charges were political and refused to post bail. Hundreds of her supporters in New Delhi cheered "long live Indira Gandhi" as the 59-year-old former prime minister was driven to a police guest house. A hundred policemen stood in a ring around her home to hold back the throng. A spokesman for the Home Ministry said Mrs. Gandhi was arrested on two counts:

• Conspiring with K. D. Malavia, her petroleum minister, to award a $17 million contract for oil drilling in the Arabian Sea, and; using her official position during the national election campaign last March to requisition Jeeps for use by herself and other officials.

Two kidnapers seize heiress, 5

Two kidnapers seized 5-year-old Graziella Ortiz, an heiress to an immense Bolivian tin fortune, at her family's estate Monday. The gunmen later said the girl was unhurt, but offered no terms for her release. The kidnapers, two men of "Latin appearance" between 26 and 30 years old, severely beat a chauffeur and apprently drugged the child during the abduction. A Geneva, Switzerland police official confirmed the kidnapers telephoned Graziella's mother to assure her the child was still alive, but he said they did not immediately lay down any ransom terms. "The most important thing is to save the little girl and not to catch the kidnapers," police said.

AMA reports 2nd case of health food poisoning

A second case of poisoning from a health food product is reported in today's Journal of the American Medical Assn.

A 59-year-old California woman suffered lead poisoning after taking Herbal health pills imported from Hong Kong that had been recommended to her by a herbalist-acupuncturist, says Drs. Johnson Lightfoote, H. Joseph Blair and James R. Cohen of Stanford University School of Medicine.

The woman took two pills, one orange and one red, three times a day for several months, along with acupuncture.

The doctors report that she developed pains in the shoulder, neck, back, knee, hip, breasts and abdomen, as well as insomnia, irritability and paranoia. Her pills were analyzed and found to contain a high amount of lead.

The woman recovered after the pills were stopped and treatment started to get the lead out of her system.

"The herbalist-acupuncturist was interviewed by us as well as the Food and Drug Administration and the Public Health Service. Efforts are under way to find other possible patients at risk. The herbalist had obtained the pills from Hong Kong and was not aware of their content," says the Journal.

FUMES OF AN UNKNOWN origin spread through an elementary school in Kansas City, Mo. Monday, sending about 100 children to hospitals complaining of dizziness, nauseousness and sore eyes. Marlborough Elementary School was evacuated after a furnace was turned on. Above, a fifth grade student holds his stomach as he is led to waiting ambulance.

Impeach Young, 10 congressmen urge

Ten congressmen Monday introduced a resolution calling for the impeachment of U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young. Rep. Larry McDonald, D-Ga., who announced the action at a news conference, said Young has made "racist" remarks, and "aligned himself with world revolutionary forces." The resolution cites 21 points against Young, including his failure to oppose admission of Vietnam to the United Nations, calling former Presidents Gerald Ford and Richard Nixon "racists" and support for some Communist leaders. The resolution concludes:

"For the foregoing reasons, we the undersigned members of Congress manifest our deep concern regarding the performance of U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young and hereby convey our lack of confidence in his fitness to continue in the position to which he has been appointed, and call for his immediate impeachment under Article II, Section 4, of the United States Constitution."

Confirm 13 Vermont Legion deaths

Thirteen deaths, linked to an outbreak of Legionnaire's disease in Vermont, have been confirmed by the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, a spokesman for the Medical Center of Vermont disclosed Monday. Ten previously undisclosed deaths from the pneumonia-like disease were confirmed in autopsy material submitted in late August and early September, according to spokesman Robert Burger. Three previous deaths at the Medical Center were listed as confirmed cases of the disease. The new fatalities raised to 18 the number of confirmed and "highly probable" cases of the disease in Vermont, Burger said.

'Rights' stand hurts SALT: Ford

Former President Gerald Ford said Monday the Carter administration's human rights policy has hampered development of a new Strategic Arms Limitations Treaty and increased the danger of a nuclear war, Ford said "there's no question" in his mind that President Carter has "set back negotiations on SALT II" by "condemning every other country that doesn't have human rights protected as we do." He spoke to 2,000 Albion, Mich. college students and faculty. The former president warned of "a resumption of the arms race" if the United States and Soviet Union fail to reach a new SALT accord.

Indira arrested on conspiracy charges

Former Prime Minister Indira Gandhi was arrested Monday along with four members of her old cabinet on charges of conspiracy and corruption. She said the charges were political and refused to post bail. Hundreds of her supporters in New Delhi cheered "long live Indira Gandhi" as the 59-year-old former prime minister was driven to a police guest house. A hundred policemen stood in a ring around her home to hold back the throng. A spokesman for the Home Ministry said Mrs. Gandhi was arrested on two counts:

• Conspiring with K. D. Malavia, her petroleum minister, to award a $17 million contract for oil drilling in the Arabian Sea, and; using her official position during the national election campaign last March to requisition Jeeps for use by herself and other officials.

Two kidnapers seize heiress, 5

Two kidnapers seized 5-year-old Graziella Ortiz, an heiress to an immense Bolivian tin fortune, at her family's estate Monday. The gunmen later said the girl was unhurt, but offered no terms for her release. The kidnapers, two men of "Latin appearance" between 26 and 30 years old, severely beat a chauffeur and apparently drugged the child during the abduction. A Geneva, Switzerland police official confirmed the kidnapers telephoned Graziella's mother to assure her the child was still alive, but he said they did not immediately lay down any ransom terms. "The most important thing is to save the little girl and not to catch the kidnapers," police said.

AMA reports 2nd case of health food poisoning

A second case of poisoning from a health food product is reported in today's Journal of the American Medical Assn.

A 59-year-old California woman suffered lead poisoning after taking Herbal health pills imported from Hong Kong that had been recommended to her by a herbalist-acupuncturist, says Drs. Johnson Lightfoote, H. Joseph Blair and James R. Cohen of Stanford University School of Medicine.

The woman took two pills, one orange and one red, three times a day for several months, along with acupuncture.

The doctors report that she developed pains in the shoulder, neck, back, knee, hip, breasts and abdomen, as well as insomnia, irritability and paranoia. Her pills were analyzed and found to contain a high amount of lead.

The woman recovered after the pills were stopped and treatment started to get the lead out of her system.

"The herbalist-acupuncturist was interviewed by us as well as the Food and Drug Administration and the Public Health Service. Efforts are under way to find other possible patients at risk. The herbalist had obtained the pills from Hong Kong and was not aware of their content," says the Journal.

Patty Columbo's lawyers plan to seek new trial

by KEN VANDERBEEK

Patricia Columbo "is the victim of an angry public" and deserves a new trial, says her lawyer, Public Defender William P. Murphy.

"I'm in the firm belief that Patty Columbo is innocent and I'm ready to prove it," Murphy said. "She's innocent, there's no question about it. As I see it, we should have no problem winning a new trial for her within a year."

Murphy said he will seek a new trial for Miss Columbo because of what he called "incomplete and doubtful evidence presented during the trial, exaggerations from the press and prejudices exhibited by some witnesses.

MISS COLUMBO, 21, and her lover, Frank DeLuca, 39, were convicted July 2 of murdering Miss Columbo's mother, Mary, 41, father, Frank, 43 and brother Michael, 13, in their home at 55 E. Brantwood Dr., Elk Grove Village.

Murphy and William Swano defended Miss Columbo and DeLuca during the 64-day trial.

Miss Columbo and DeLuca will begin serving their 200 to 300-year jail terms this week. Miss Columbo will be transferred to the Dwight Correctional Facility in downstate Dwight, Ill. and DeLuca will be transferred to the Joliet State Penitentiary. They are both being held in the Cook County Jail.

Murphy said that at one point during her trial he thought evidence was "strikingly in her favor." He said when the prosecution started presenting evidence against DeLuca the jury may have wrongly shuffled their opinions against her.

"DeLuca's confessions brought her down as did an angry public," he said.

LISIT SAID the press "painted a condemning picture" of her.

"For instance, they portrayed her as a degenerate when the prosecution described nude and pornographic pictures taken of her by DeLuca," he said. "These kinds of things had absolutely nothing to do with the case; nevertheless, they mounted up in the papers."

Murphy and Swano said they have leads that they think will ultimately show Miss Columbo innocent.

"SHE'S SURELY innocent, but we need more money and a bigger staff to see that she gets a new trial so that this can be proved," Swano said. "Unfortunately, a small group of public defenders is not enough to prove somebody innocent in such a hot case."

Meanwhile, Howard Lisit, 25, a third year law student working with Murphy, said he is trying to help Miss Columbo pursue a college education.

Lisit said he met Miss Columbo last March before the trial in which she and DeLuca were charged with the May 4, 1976 murders in her family's Elk Grove Village home at 55 E. Brantwood Dr.

Patricia Columbo

William Swano

SINCE THEN he has been one of her most frequent visitors, seeing her as many as four times a week.

He said he is seeking her acceptance in a college program sponsored by Northeastern Illinois University, Chicago, for prisoners. Miss Columbo recently passed a GED examination making her eligible for a high school diploma, which she sacrificed two months before the end of her senior year to become financially independent from her parents.

He said Mis Columbo told him she wants to major in social sciences or psychology with concentration in law.

"Unfortunately, when she was thrown into this sytem more than a year ago, she was forced to learn the law under the wrong conditions," Lisit said. "Now though, she's picking it up faster than most law students. She is intelligent — a good writer and artist, yearning for education."

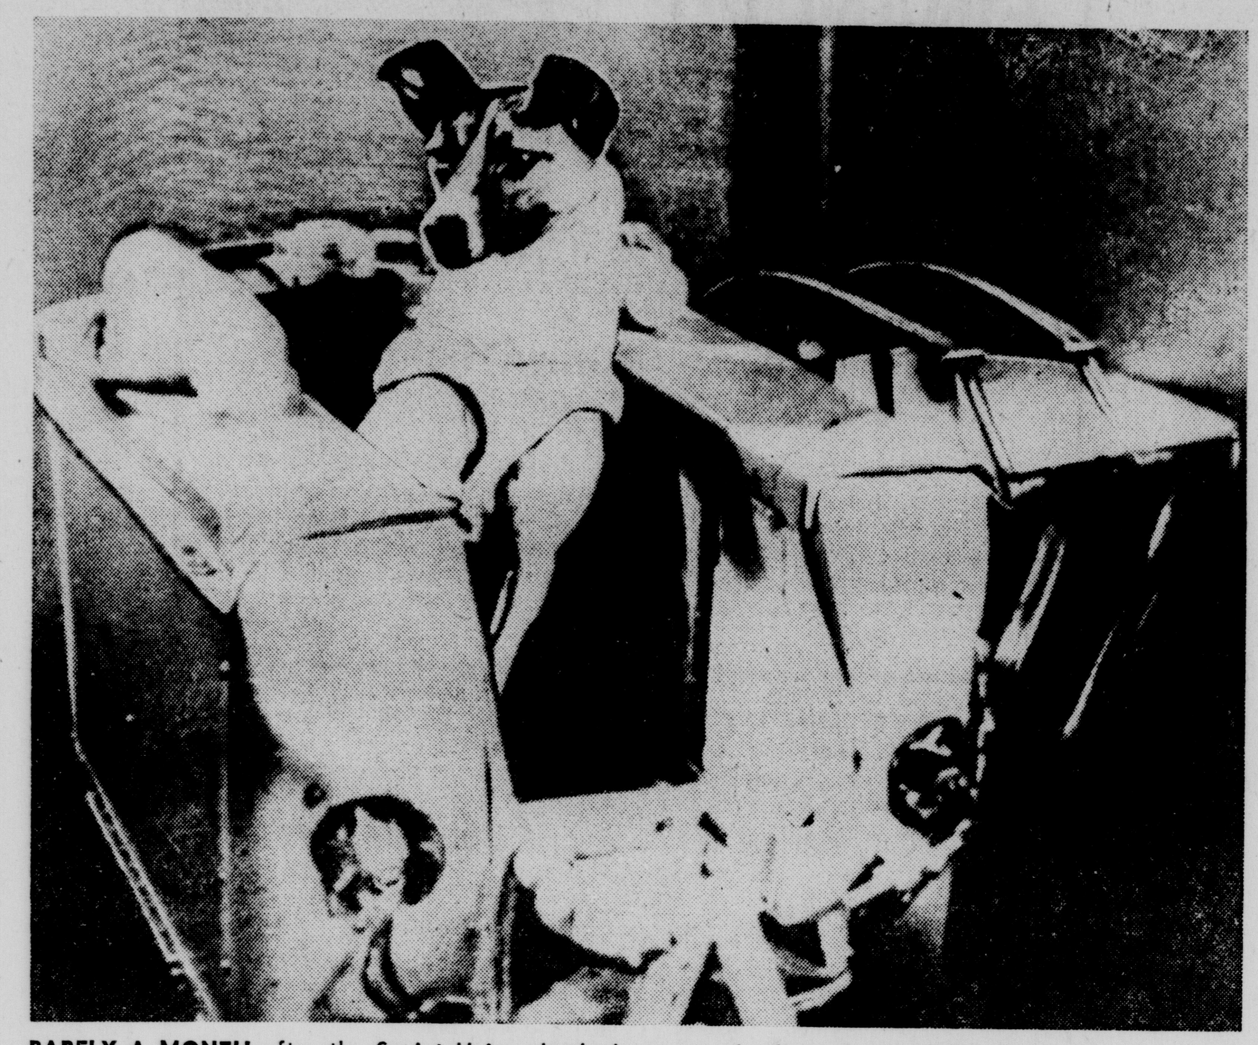
Sputnik's 'bleep' set the world on its ear



BARELY A MONTH after the Soviet Union shocked the world with its launch of "Sputnik," they announced that the world's first space traveler, "Laika" the dog was board "Sputnik II."

by JOSEPH L. GALLOWAY

MOSCOW (UPI) — Twenty years ago, Oct. 4, the Soviet Union fired a shot heard and seen around the world. It blazed man's trail into space.

The launching into earth orbit of Sputnik 1 — a basketball-sized 184-pound round metal capsule — shocked the United States out of its 1950s complacency and into a multi-billion-dollar space program that would ultimately put men on the moon and send space probes rocketing to the outer limits of the solar system.

"As a result of big and strenuous work by research institutes and design bureaus, the world's first satellite has been created," the official Soviet news agency Tass bulletined to an awed world. "Earth satellites will blaze the trail to interplanetary flights."

SPUTNIK 1 WAS suddenly there in everyone's evening skies, circling the globe every 96.2 minutes at an altitude of 560 miles, sounding its plaintive bleep-bleeps.

The little sphere, with its ungainly backsweep antennas, set America back on its heels.

"Russians win race as whole world watches flight of satellite," a banner headline screamed in Pravda. Another, not much smaller added, "New U.S. Secretary of Defense says Russia cannot be ignored."

Proud Soviets crowded around bulletin boards with the latest editions of Moscow newspapers and read a New York dispatch from Pravda correspondent Fedor Orekhov reporting that some Americans had reacted with confusion and hysteria.

"Now, when prominent Americans recognize the false fabrications of bourgeois propaganda about alleged Soviet backwardness, the ruling circles of the United States are again faced with the problem of the necessity of peaceful coexistence and cessation of the arms race and abandonment of their cold war policy," Orekhov wrote.

SPUTNIK 1 WAS joined in early November of 1957 by Sputnik II — a satellite eight times larger and carrying a live dog.

The dog Laika lived only a few days and on Nov. 15, 1957, became the world's first space casualty when Sputnik II's oxygen regeneration plant stopped working.

Sputnik 1 lasted little longer.

By the end of October its signals became inaudible and the Soviets had to ask England's Jodrell Bank observatory to help them track the satellite. In early January 1968 the little sphere which turned man's age-old dreams into reality fell back to earth and disintegrated on re-entry.

AMERICA'S FEARS that nothing would ever again be the same were confirmed within days of the Oct. 4 launch when Soviet scientists began speaking of the obvious military advantages to be gained from equipping future satellites with cameras.

With "Spy in the Sky" headlines the rage, Washington began its own space program and by January of 1963 Explorer 1 was fired into orbit.

For a time the U.S. played catch-up baseball — and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev would laugh and tell American visitors: "You call those oranges you are putting up satellites?"

The Soviets pressed ahead with an impressive string of space first, including the successful launching of the first man into orbit when cosmonaut Yuri Gagarin spent an hour and 49 minutes circling the earth on April 12, 1961.

But it took a dozen years and the American Apollo moon landing for a space event to equal the sheer shock and amazement generated by Sputnik 1's bleep-bleep.

U.S. space program leads world

WASNINGTON (UPI) — The United States enters the third decade of the age of space from a position of primacy it hardly dreamed of attaining 20 years ago.

It has sent men to the moon, kept men in orbit for as long as 12 weeks, established still-working observatories on Mars and is alone in exploring the farther reaches of the solar system.

America's civilian scientists and engineers have led the world in the development of communications satellites, weather-watching spacecraft and satellites to survey Earth's resources.

THE NATIONAL Aeronautics and Space Administration, backbone of the nation's space expertise, now is developing a combination airplane and spaceship that promises to revolutionize the way man operates in orbit in the next decade of the space age.

That rocket plane is the space shuttle now making test flights from the back of a carrier plane to a gliding landing on a desert runway of Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

The shuttle, set to make its maiden flight into space from Cape Canaveral in March 1979, will be a transport hauling men, women and satellites to and from orbit with almost airline regularity.

Unlike the space machinery of the past two decades, virtually everything used by the shuttle will be reusable except for a huge exterior fuel tank that will be discarded after every climb to orbit.

THE SHUTTLE is the key to America's future in space. It also will play an important role in the space programs of other nations. It will carry foreign satellites into orbit but more importantly, it will provide the orbital platform for a laboratory called Spacelab that is being built by the 10-nation European Space Agency.

The first Spacelab is to go up in a shuttle in 1980 and a European scientist will be one of the five people aboard.

By the mid-1980s, NASA expects to have five shuttles, flying them to and from orbit at the rate of one every week or two.

Not only will the shuttle be carrying satellites in and out of orbit, but it will be lofting automated craft with special rocket units to propel them beyond the grasp of Earth's gravity to the planets.

The nation's planetary exploration program received a major boost from the successful landings of two Viking robots on Mars last year. Budget restrictions, however, are likly to delay an attempt to land roving vehicles on the red planet until the second half of the next decade.

THE UNITED STATES recently launched two Voyager television craft to explore Jupiter, Saturn and possibly Uranus and Neptune during the next 12 years.

Next year, NASA will send two spacecraft to Venus to orbit the cloud shrouded planet and examine its dense atmosphere with four instrumented probes.

In late 1981 or early 1982, NASA will launch an advanced ship that will orbit Jupiter and probe its colorful atmosphere.

Despite its successes with planetary exploration, the space agency has no plans to send men to the planets. Officials do not expect to attempt any such mission before the year 2000. The technology to carry out such an expedition is available, but not the money.

THERE ARE NOT even any plans to return Americans to the moon. Lunar exploration has taken a back seat to more practical space missions closer to home and, as a sign of the times, five lunar science stations left behind by Apollo astronauts have just been shut down to save $2 million a year.

The Apollo project marked the turning point in the nation's effort to become the best in space.

The early years of the space age saw the United States constantly trying to catch up with Soviet space feats. America had failed to orbit the first satellite and it failed to place the first human in space.

Finally Alan Shepard rode the little Mercury capsule on a successful up and down flight in May 1961, that lasted only 15 minutes. The success was tempered by the fact that Russia's Yuri Gargarin had done even better a month earlier when he orbited Earth in a ship named Vostok.

TWENTY DAYS AFTER Shepard's suborbital flight, President John Kennedy sent a special message to Congress on "urgent national needs." He spoke of space and said:

"Now is the time to take longer strides, time for a great new American enterprise, time for this nation to take a clearly leading role in space achievement, which in many ways may hold the key to our future on Earth . . .

"I believe this nation should commit itself to achieving the goal, before this decade is out, of landing a man on the moon and returning him safely to Earth. No single space project in this period will be more impressive to mankind, or more important for the long-range exploration of space; and none will be so difficult or expensive to accomplish."

After John Glenn and Scott Carpenter had carried out orbital missions, Kennedy publicly reaffirmed the nation's desire to "become the world's leading spacefaring nation."

THE ROAD TO the moon was indeed difficult, and required 10 two-man Gemini flights to lay the groundwork for Apollo operations. And then the moon effort was set back by the deaths of three Apollo 1 astronauts in a ground fire at what then was called Cape Kennedy in 1967.

But the problems were corrected. During the week of Christmas in 1968, three Americans circled the moon in the Apollo 8 spaceship. Then on July 20, 1969, Neil Armstrong and Edwin "Buzz" Aldrin landed a four-legged craft called Eagle on the moon's Sea of Tranquility to become the first humans to set foot on the moon.

NASA followed Apollo with the Skylab space station project that added another dimension to the nation's experience in space.

Nine astronauts in teams of three lived and worked aboard the big orbiting laboratory for a total of 24 weeks — in missions lasting four, eight and 12 weeks in 1973 and early 1974. The longest set a record which still stands.

Left over Apollo hardware was used once again in 1975 when three Americans rendezvoused and linked up in orbit with two Soviets in the Apollo-Soyuz mission that brought the two nations' manned space programs together for the first time.

More cooperative missions are expected in the future with the next likely to come in 1981 or 1982 when an American space shuttle meets a Soviet Salyut space station in orbit.

Soviet space hardware may ride U.S. shuttle in future

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union might be riding into space in the future on one of the wonders of the century: the American space shuttle.

While it is futile to speculate on the direction the Soviet Union's space program will take, Western diplomats say the program well could be linked to U.S. success with its shuttle.

"You probably can look forward to the development of a larger and more advanced space station concept on the part of the Soviet Union," said one Westerner who watches space developments.

"BUT IT WILL almost certainly be linked to the American space shuttle program, using the space shuttle, perhaps, as a way to get their men to the new station — a cooperative effort."

Through its "Intercosmos" series, the Soviet Union and Western countries, particularly the United States, have been cooperating in the development of various outer space projects.

For its own part, the Soviet Union is expected to continue with the impressive series of launches that have become as common as snow in the winter under the "Cosmos" series.

Nearly 1,000 satellites have been sent into space under the program which Western observers say points to the advanced development and near perfection of the Soviet's rocket delivery system.

THE SATELLITES are valuable for a variety of domestic reasons, communications being among the most important. The latest satellite in the series has brought Moscow television to the far-flung regions of Siberia.

They also have enabled the Soviet Union to begin mapping the uncharted regions of Siberia and allow it to keep a close watch on the Arctic Circle.

The Cosmos series also has untold military value, giving the Soviet Union hundreds of "eyes in space" watching every aspect of development around the world.

The USSR even is beginning to offer its technology to other countries, volunteering to provide overviews of crop regions and weather patterns, according to the Western experts.

On the cooperative front, scientists from the United States and USSR will open preliminary talks in November on the future of joint manned space flights.

The most recent in the Intercosmos series was a satellite full of rats.

American and Soviet scientists began dissecting the rats Sept. 23. The remains and documents from the flight will be analyzed in the United States.

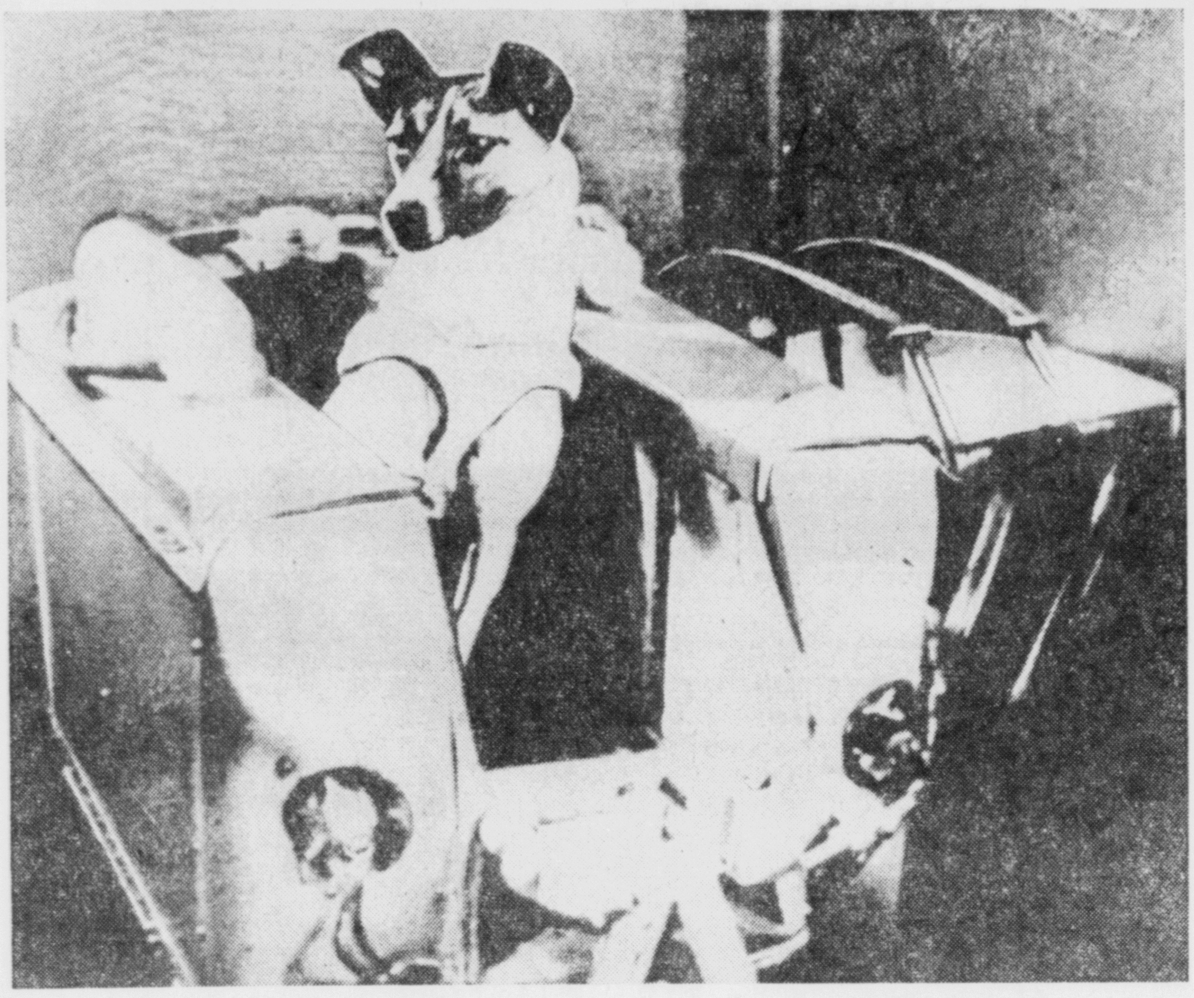
Sputnik's 'bleep' set the world on its ear



BARELY A MONTH after the Soviet Union shocked the world with its launch of "Sputnik," they announced that the world's first space traveler, "Laika" the dog was board "Sputnik II."

by JOSEPH L. GALLOWAY

MOSCOW (UPI) — Twenty years ago, Oct. 4, the Soviet Union fired a shot heard and seen around the world. It blazed man's trail into space.

The launching into earth orbit of Sputnik 1 — a basketball-sized 184-pound round metal capsule — shocked the United States out of its 1950s complacency and into a multi-billion-dollar space program that would ultimately put men on the moon and send space probes rocketing to the outer limits of the solar system.

"As a result of big and strenuous work by research institutes and design bureaus, the world's first satellite has been created," the official Soviet news agency Tass bulletined to an awed world. "Earth satellites will blaze the trail to interplanetary flights."

SPUTNIK 1 WAS suddenly there in everyone's evening skies, circling the globe every 96.2 minutes at an altitude of 560 miles, sounding its plaintive bleep-bleeps.

The little sphere, with its ungainly backsweep antennas, set America back on its heels.

"Russians win race as whole world watches flight of satellite," a banner headline screamed in Pravda. Another, not much smaller added, "New U.S. Secretary of Defense says Russia cannot be ignored."

Proud Soviets crowded around bulletin boards with the latest editions of Moscow newspapers and read a New York dispatch from Pravda correspondent Fedor Orekhov reporting that some Americans had reacted with confusion and hysteria.

"Now, when prominent Americans recognize the false fabrications of bourgeois propaganda about alleged Soviet backwardness, the ruling circles of the United States are again faced with the problem of the necessity of peaceful coexistence and cessation of the arms race and abandonment of their cold war policy," Orekhov wrote.

SPUTNIK 1 WAS joined in early November of 1957 by Sputnik II — a satellite eight times larger and carrying a live dog.

The dog Laika lived only a few days and on Nov. 15, 1957, became the world's first space casualty when Sputnik II's oxygen regeneration plant stopped working.

Sputnik 1 lasted little longer.

By the end of October its signals became inaudible and the Soviets had to ask England's Jodrell Bank observatory to help them track the satellite. In early January 1968 the little sphere which turned man's age-old dreams into reality fell back to earth and disintegrated on re-entry.

AMERICA'S FEARS that nothing would ever again be the same were confirmed within days of the Oct. 4 launch when Soviet scientists began speaking of the obvious military advantages to be gained from equipping future satellites with cameras.

With "Spy in the Sky" headlines the rage, Washington began its own space program and by January of 1963 Explorer 1 was fired into orbit.

For a time the U.S. played catch-up baseball — and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev would laugh and tell American visitors: "You call those oranges you are putting up satellites?"

The Soviets pressed ahead with an impressive string of space first, including the successful launching of the first man into orbit when cosmonaut Yuri Gagarin spent an hour and 49 minutes circling the earth on April 12, 1961.

But it took a dozen years and the American Apollo moon landing for a space event to equal the sheer shock and amazement generated by Sputnik 1's bleep-bleep.

U.S. space program leads world

WASNINGTON (UPI) — The United States enters the third decade of the age of space from a position of primacy it hardly dreamed of attaining 20 years ago.

It has sent men to the moon, kept men in orbit for as long as 12 weeks, established still-working observatories on Mars and is alone in exploring the farther reaches of the solar system.

America's civilian scientists and engineers have led the world in the development of communications satellites, weather-watching spacecraft and satellites to survey Earth's resources.

THE NATIONAL Aeronautics and Space Administration, backbone of the nation's space expertise, now is developing a combination airplane and spaceship that promises to revolutionize the way man operates in orbit in the next decade of the space age.

That rocket plane is the space shuttle now making test flights from the back of a carrier plane to a gliding landing on a desert runway of Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

The shuttle, set to make its maiden flight into space from Cape Canaveral in March 1979, will be a transport hauling men, women and satellites to and from orbit with almost airline regularity.

Unlike the space machinery of the past two decades, virtually everything used by the shuttle will be reusable except for a huge exterior fuel tank that will be discarded after every climb to orbit.

THE SHUTTLE is the key to America's future in space. It also will play an important role in the space programs of other nations. It will carry foreign satellites into orbit but more importantly, it will provide the orbital platform for a laboratory called Spacelab that is being built by the 10-nation European Space Agency.

The first Spacelab is to go up in a shuttle in 1980 and a European scientist will be one of the five people aboard.

By the mid-1980s, NASA expects to have five shuttles, flying them to and from orbit at the rate of one every week or two.

Not only will the shuttle be carrying satellites in and out of orbit, but it will be lofting automated craft with special rocket units to propel them beyond the grasp of Earth's gravity to the planets.

The nation's planetary exploration program received a major boost from the successful landings of two Viking robots on Mars last year. Budget restrictions, however, are likly to delay an attempt to land roving vehicles on the red planet until the second half of the next decade.

THE UNITED STATES recently launched two Voyager television craft to explore Jupiter, Saturn and possibly Uranus and Neptune during the next 12 years.

Next year, NASA will send two spacecraft to Venus to orbit the cloud shrouded planet and examine its dense atmosphere with four instrumented probes.

In late 1981 or early 1982, NASA will launch an advanced ship that will orbit Jupiter and probe its colorful atmosphere.

Despite its successes with planetary exploration, the space agency has no plans to send men to the planets. Officials do not expect to attempt any such mission before the year 2000. The technology to carry out such an expedition is available, but not the money.

THERE ARE NOT even any plans to return Americans to the moon. Lunar exploration has taken a back seat to more practical space missions closer to home and, as a sign of the times, five lunar science stations left behind by Apollo astronauts have just been shut down to save $2 million a year.

The Apollo project marked the turning point in the nation's effort to become the best in space.

The early years of the space age saw the United States constantly trying to catch up with Soviet space feats. America had failed to orbit the first satellite and it failed to place the first human in space.

Finally Alan Shepard rode the little Mercury capsule on a successful up and down flight in May 1961, that lasted only 15 minutes. The success was tempered by the fact that Russia's Yuri Gargarin had done even better a month earlier when he orbited Earth in a ship named Vostok.

TWENTY DAYS AFTER Shepard's suborbital flight, President John Kennedy sent a special message to Congress on "urgent national needs." He spoke of space and said:

"Now is the time to take longer strides, time for a great new American enterprise, time for this nation to take a clearly leading role in space achievement, which in many ways may hold the key to our future on Earth . . .

"I believe this nation should commit itself to achieving the goal, before this decade is out, of landing a man on the moon and returning him safely to Earth. No single space project in this period will be more impressive to mankind, or more important for the long-range exploration of space; and none will be so difficult or expensive to accomplish."

After John Glenn and Scott Carpenter had carried out orbital missions, Kennedy publicly reaffirmed the nation's desire to "become the world's leading spacefaring nation."

THE ROAD TO the moon was indeed difficult, and required 10 two-man Gemini flights to lay the groundwork for Apollo operations. And then the moon effort was set back by the deaths of three Apollo 1 astronauts in a ground fire at what then was called Cape Kennedy in 1967.

But the problems were corrected. During the week of Christmas in 1968, three Americans circled the moon in the Apollo 8 spaceship. Then on July 20, 1969, Neil Armstrong and Edwin "Buzz" Aldrin landed a four-legged craft called Eagle on the moon's Sea of Tranquility to become the first humans to set foot on the moon.

NASA followed Apollo with the Skylab space station project that added another dimension to the nation's experience in space.

Nine astronauts in teams of three lived and worked aboard the big orbiting laboratory for a total of 24 weeks — in missions lasting four, eight and 12 weeks in 1973 and early 1974. The longest set a record which still stands.

Left over Apollo hardware was used once again in 1975 when three Americans rendezvoused and linked up in orbit with two Soviets in the Apollo-Soyuz mission that brought the two nations' manned space programs together for the first time.

More cooperative missions are expected in the future with the next likely to come in 1981 or 1982 when an American space shuttle meets a Soviet Salyut space station in orbit.

Soviet space hardware may ride U.S. shuttle in future

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union might be riding into space in the future on one of the wonders of the century: the American space shuttle.

While it is futile to speculate on the direction the Soviet Union's space program will take, Western diplomats say the program well could be linked to U.S. success with its shuttle.

"You probably can look forward to the development of a larger and more advanced space station concept on the part of the Soviet Union," said one Westerner who watches space developments.

RTA lauds Woodfield bus route

The 4-month-old bus route from downtown Des Plaines to Woodfield Shopping Center in Schaumburg could become the backbone of bus service in the Northwest suburban area.

A Regional Transportation Authority survey of route 209 showed the already popular bus route has great potential if connected with new feeder bus service. More than 2,000 riders use the new service each week.

"In short, the route is a major success and an opportunity to be developed," said Robert W. Hart of the RTA's advertising and consumer information department. "It is conceivable that the 209 could be the backbone for bus service in the area of Elk Grove Village, north to Arlington Heights, east to Des Plaines and west to Schaumburg."

THE BUS RUNS between Woodfield and downtown Des Plaines along Golf Road and Northwest Highway. Hart said most of the riders board either at the shopping center or in Des Plaines.

"Thre is a major untapped market of riders along Golf Road in Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect," Hart said. "The current market along the route is limited to only those people within walking distance of the route."

Hart said feeder bus service along both Elmhurst Road and Busse Road would connect Woodfield with heavily populated areas in Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect.

The study, conducted in August, also showed that few businesses and industries along the route take advantage of the bus service for their employes. Hart said this is a market that should be developed.

MOST RIDERS on the Woodfield-Des Plaines route are women, less than 25 and going to work or shop at Woodfield, the survey showed.

"Sixty per cent of the ridership is female, 43 per cent is under 19 and 72 per cent is either under 25 or a senior citizen," Hart said.

Almost half the riders walk to the bus, but a third make connections with either the Chicago and North Western Ry. or other buses. Hart said this makes on-time service very important since a missed connection is a major inconvenience.

DESPITE THE number of connections, few riders view the 209 as a commuter feeder service. "A miniscule number of railroad commuters use 209 to get them to the train for a trip to the Loop," Hart said, noting it would be an easy connection. "The railroad commuter market is one which has to be developed if the 209 is to carry as many passengers as it can."

Survey response showed that about half the work trips were made by car before the Woodfield route started. Another 22 per cent said they did not make the trip to work before the route started.

"The route has allowed some jobs to become accessible to people, especially young people in need of summer employment," Hart said.

About 50 per cent of all trips on the 209 are shopping trip and almost 38 per cent are work trips.

Crane joins opposition to Concorde

U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, has joined persons opposed to the landing of the supersonic jet Concorde at Chicago's O'Hare Airport.

Crane said he supports the Carter administration's proposal to let individual airports decide whether or not the controversial plane would be permitted to land.

Chicago Mayor Michael Bilandic said Sept. 23 he would not allow the Concorde to use O'Hare because of the plane's noise.

Crane said he was "pleased that the Administration did not issue a blanket endorsement of U.S. landing rights for Concorde.

"I compeletely endorse public participation in a decision which affects the daily lives of many people, and I hope all airport owners will consider the views of residents around the airport before they make their decision on landing of the Corcorde."

Cook County jail may hire caterer for inmates' meals

Food at the Cook County jail was never meant to be a culinary delight.

But the Cook County board thinks it might taste better and maybe even cost less if the inmates, who now do much of the cooking, were replaced by a professional catering company.

"Sometimes the food there just ins't as palatable as what you or I might get at home," said County Board Pres. George W. Dunne.

So the county board agreed to take bids on the cost of providing food for the 4,000 inmates at the county jail complex at 26th Street and California Avenue.

There is an added sweetener in the plan to take inmates out of the kitchen. The move would free up some 25 jail guards for reassignment at other locations in the jail, Dunne said.

"A miniscule number of railroad commuters use 209 to get them to the train for a trip to the Loop," Hart said, noting it would be an easy connection. "The railroad commuter market is one which has to be developed if the 209 is to carry as many passengers as it can."

Survey response showed that about half the work trips were made by car before the Woodfield route started. Another 22 per cent said they did not make the trip to work before the route started.

"The route has allowed some jobs to become accessible to people, especially young people in need of summer employment," Hart said.

About 50 per cent of all trips on the 209 are shopping trip and almost 38 per cent are work trips.

Crane joins opposition to Concorde

U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, has joined persons opposed to the landing of the supersonic jet Concorde at Chicago's O'Hare Airport.

Crane said he supports the Carter administration's proposal to let individual airports decide whether or not the controversial plane would be permitted to land.

Chicago Mayor Michael Bilandic said Sept. 23 he would not allow the Concorde to use O'Hare because of the plane's noise.

Crane said he was "pleased that the Administration did not issue a blanket endorsement of U.S. landing rights for Concorde.

"I compeletely endorse public participation in a decision which affects the daily lives of many people, and I hope all airport owners will consider the views of residents around the airport before they make their decision on landing of the Corcorde."

Cook County jail may hire caterer for inmates' meals

Food at the Cook County jail was never meant to be a culinary delight.

But the Cook County board thinks it might taste better and maybe even cost less if the inmates, who now do much of the cooking, were replaced by a professional catering company.

"Sometimes the food there just ins't as palatable as what you or I might get at home," said County Board Pres. George W. Dunne.

So the county board agreed to take bids on the cost of providing food for the 4,000 inmates at the county jail complex at 26th Street and California Avenue.

There is an added sweetener in the plan to take inmates out of the kitchen. The move would free up some 25 jail guards for reassignment at other locations in the jail, Dunne said.

Village can halt hospital

Plans to build a 238-bed hospital in Wheeling are out of step with federal efforts to reduce the number of hospital beds in order to hold down rising health care costs.

Wheeling officials should reject the proposed Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Hospital, at least in its present form.

The five townships of Wheeling, Palatine, Schaumburg, Elk Grove and Maine already have 380 more medical-surgical beds than they need, according to the federal health planning agency for this area.

Every hospital bed costs money. The Suburban Cook County-DuPage County Health Systems Agency estimates that even an unoccupied bed costs $20,000 a year to maintain — and that drives up overall health care costs.

The U.S. Dept. of Health Education and Welfare wants to reduce the number of beds by 100,000 nationally in order to arrive at a ratio of four beds for every 1,000 persons.

In the suburban Cook-DuPage HSA region, the ratio is now about five beds for every 1,000 inhabitants. Barring dramatic population changes, some 2,800 beds in the area should be eliminated by 1984 to meet the federal standard.

It makes little sense to add new hospital beds in Wheeling-Buffalo Grove at a time when federal planners are calling for a reduction in the number of beds.

Ken Schreiner, executive vice president of Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines, testified at a hearing this week that area residents will be guaranteed an increase in hospital costs if the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Hospital is built.

Hospital room costs will go up $11 a day, and the cost of the average hospital stay will be increased by $79.28 if the new hospital is built, Schreiner estimates.

As a representative of a competing hospital, Schreiner's observation might be dismissed as simple bias were it not for the fact that two state health planning agencies also have reviewed the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Hospital plan and concluded the hospital is not needed.

Because Franklin Boulevard Hospital, Chicago, has prior state approval to build the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Hospital, only Wheeling village officials can prevent construction of this unneeded hospital.

Wheeling should reject plans to annex and zone a 20-acre parcel north of Hintz Road as the proposed site for the hospital not because it is insensitive to residents' health care needs, but because it must pay attention to skyrocketing health care costs.

Neighbors overcome hate and anger

The story began in hate and bitterness.

Someone burned a cross into the grass on David Ryan's front lawn. And since Ryan and his family are black — the first blacks to move into the Longmeadows South neighborhood in Hanover Park — the incident was not an ordinary case of vandalism.

Ryan was bitter. In the aftermath of the event he criticized his neighbors for not offering him support. He called his new neighborhood the "unfriendliest neighborhood I've ever been in."

But by Friday afternoon, Ryan's bitterness had been dissolved by the friendship offered him by his neighbors. More than 40 persons called or visited him Friday to say they were sorry about what happened and to ask if they could help.

It was the kind of outpouring that banishes the barriers of hate, fear and anger that too often separate individuals from one another. Ryan says he understands his neighbors better now. And his neighbors have taken an important step toward welcoming the Ryan family to the neighborhood.

It's good to be able to tell a story like the Ryans' with a positive tone. Someday, perhaps, American society will progress to the point that the original act of hate will be impossible.

Until then, it is good enough news that people are able to overcome the anger and embarrassment that such incidents generate.

The people of Longmeadows South — white and black — have accomplished that. They are to be congratulated.

Educator's main argument sounds like anti-education

Paul Greenberg

The End of Education. That's the title of new book by a professor of English at City University of New York, formerly City College of New York before inflation hit college names. Back then, CCNY was known for turning out bright, hungry, aggressive graduates poor only in terms of income. If anything, they were considered too educated.

Now Professor Geoffrey Wagner cites his school as an example of the end of education in this country. A little exaggeration, perhaps, for the sake of a splashy book title? Consider a few of the professor's observations:

"By current UNESCO standards, probably most of the City University's entering class is illiterate . . .

"A City College counselor conceded, at the end of last term, 'Almost one-third of those entering fall into the category of needing two or more remedial courses.'

"ABOUT HALF THE freshmen now take remedial-math courses, some of which are less a matter of shifting decimal points than helping Johnny make change for the subway.

"Half of the City University's graduating nurses recently failed the state licensing examination. In 1974, no less than $30 million of the taxpayers' money was allocated in extra aid in reading, writing and arithmetic for 'underprepared' students.

"I am doing more elementary teaching today than in my first year at City College, in the early 1950s . . ."

With entering classes like these, what will the departing ones be like? That figure on the number failing the state's nursing examination affords some idea. There are still those who maintain that allowing the educationally handicapped into a university need not mean turning out handicapped graduates. But at what point does the sheer number of unprepared students swamp a school's quality? Professor Wagner contends the point was reached some time ago at CUNY.

ANYONE WHO has ever attended a faculty meeting on course offerings will understand how the process operates as departments compete tooth-and-nail for students. Incompetent students place a premium on snap courses, so those studies that used to be representative of education are dropped, diluted or just embalmed in the college catalogue. The result, says the professor, is that soon enough the liberal arts are not taught.

What is striking in today's debate over education is not the usual, debatable argument for no admission standards and not much of a required curriculum. That battle has been fought so often that the terrain is as familiar as Gettysburg — or rather Ypres, since by now the debate is characterized not by elegant maneuvers but by the same old murderous exchanges ("Fascist!" "Ignoramus!") without either side gaining much ground.

Now, however, the battlefield is being illuminated by an entirely new line of argument that adds up not so much to equal education as un-education, or even anti-education. Listen to Morton Kaplon, Acting Vice President for Administrative Affairs at the City University of New York, as quoted by Professor Wagner:

"Why do we insist that all (students) have some definable level of competence in arithmetic operations when we have readily available the modern counterpart of the typewriter in the miniature electronic computer? Why do we insist that there exist some common standard of prose for communication when we have available the tape recorder to record and transmit the words we say?"

KAPLON HAS SAID it all, or at any rate too much. Contrary to the naive belief of past generations, it is now explained that the more advanced a civilization, the less need it has for competence and standards. Typewriters and tape recorders will take over for us. A kind of Deus ex Machina. It is presumably for this sort of leadership that the Acting Vice President for Administrative Affairs at the City University of New York is paid $45,000 a year in public funds.

Lest readers smile indulgently at this species of New York Wisdom, here is a direct quote from an educator in Pine Bluff, Arkansas, taking me to task for my limited view of education: "We are living in the space age and a very extreme technological advanced society. We cannot just deal with reading, writing and arithmetic . . . we need to do more and work harder on the basics . . . but not at the expense of turning the clock back and doing away with all the other valuable training programs that our young people are receiving in our public schools, which enables them to be well rounded productive citizens . . ."

THESE OTHER valuable training programs for the space age were specified elsewhere in the letter as "Band, Choir, P.E., Art, Counseling, Career Orientation, Industrial Arts, sports, etc." One would think that, the more sophisticated the times, the greater the need for graduates who can read, write, reckon and, one hopes, think.

On the contrary, to concentrate on the basics, if necessary to the exclusion of "Career Orientation" and "etc." is now considered turning the clock back. At a time when the uneducated are more hindered than ever, when society more than ever depends on votes cast by all, one is told that reading, writing and arithmetic must not be emphasized at the expense of the frills.

That way lies functional illiteracy, and it is heartening to see so many school districts — including New York City's — demand tougher requirements for graduation and less emphasis on Social Adjustment. A school district at Emporia, Virginia, actually has decreed that kids who haven't mastered one grade level not be passed on to the next. The results, predictably, are said to be good. One hopes such developments keep coming, before the end of education.

Glass explains product liability bill

letters to the editor

Letters must be signed, and no letters will be published anonymously. Letters are subject to condensation, and a maximum length of 300 words is recommended. Direct your mail to the Fence post, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

I read with interest your four-part series on the product liability crisis, as well as your September 16 editorial on the subject.

Something indeed must be done to protect the businessman, particularly the manufacturer of sports equipment, against the inequitable burden he now must sustain.

A manufacturer should be responsible for the safety of its products. However, product liability suits now threaten to penalize a company even if its product were misused or altered by others after its sale. Participants in sports assume the risk of injuries no matter what the equipment used, yet manufacturers now suffer unbearable costs as the result of judgments holding them to blame for such normal risks.

The future of many businesses, as well as some sports, may well be in jeopardy.

I am principal sponsor of SB 475, the Illinois Products Liability Act, which would limit liability in product liability cases to no more than eight years after the product was sold, or 10 years after its manufacture. A business would also be protected if a product is modified after its sale.

In any action for damages, liability would be based on whether, at the time the product left the control of the person against whom the suit is filed, there was a defective condition in the product which made it unreasonably dangerous. In any such action, a person would be liable only if the product were used in its original condition without alteration and if the product had been properly maintained. Misuse of a product would provide a defense for the manufacturer.

The bill now rests in the Senate Judiciary Committee. I shall renew efforts for its passage in the Fall Session.

State Sen. Bradley M. Glass

'Thompson abortion veto wrong'

In response to The Daily Herald editorial endorsing Gov. Thompson's veto of the bill prohibiting use of public aid money to pay for abortions, I submit the following:

The editorial completely misses the central issue of the matter which is whether individuals who believe that deliberate destruction of innocent human life is never an acceptable or proper solution to human problems should be forced to pay for that kind of solution.

The Daily Herald naively states that "moral issues may be dealt with by religious leaders" indicating that the editors obviously fail to see that morality is not an abstract philosophical or theological exercise but rather an attitude toward ourselves and others which guides our actions and relationships. If morality does not result in this practical expression it is an exercise in futility and/or a hypocritical sham. Since I do not wish to engage in either of these alternatives, my only option is to strenuously object, by every means available, to being forced to contribute through taxes to what I consider an immoral solution to human problems.

It may be argued that the poor woman who wishes an abortion is having my morality "imposed" on her while the wealthy woman who can pay is not. To which I say that I favor society's spending whatever is necessary to provide viable alternatives to abortion through adoption, financial and medical aid, family counseling, etc. If, in spite of all this, a woman still chooses to abort her child, that is a choice I cannot make for her. But I do have the right to refuse to pay for her choice when that choice violates the deepest part of my conscience.

The Daily Herald refers to Thompson's statement that "Our people are not a cruel people" in reference to the plight of a poor woman with an unwanted pregnancy. I agree, we are not a cruel people; but we are often an apathetic, selfish and lazy people.

Instead of seeking to provide positive, constructive, life-sustaining and enriching solutions to poverty, we are all too eager to accept the quickest, easiest, cheapest solution — ie. abortion of the poor woman's child. We would rather pay less money to help her abort that new life than pay more money to help her raise it in dignity.

The Daily Herald called Gov. Thompson's veto "right and courageous." It was neither in my view where it is never right to destroy innocent human life to solve human problems and it is never courageous to evaluate human life according to economic expediency. What the Governor has told me, and thousands of others who share my views, is that we must pay for the destruction of life as a solution to life's problems. He has told us we need not approve personally so long as we pay. To me, to pay for it is tantamount to approving of it. So I will continue to protest — and continue — and continue — until all life has value in our society.

It is presumably for this sort of leadership that the Acting Vice President for Administrative Affairs at the City University of New York is paid $45,000 a year in public funds.

Lest readers smile indulgently at this species of New York Wisdom, here is a direct quote from an educator in Pine Bluff, Arkansas, taking me to task for my limited view of education: "We are living in the space age and a very extreme technological advanced society. We cannot just deal with reading, writing and arithmetic . . . we need to do more and work harder on the basics . . . but not at the expense of turning the clock back and doing away with all the other valuable training programs that our young people are receiving in our public schools, which enables them to be well rounded productive citizens . . ."

THESE OTHER valuable training programs for the space age were specified elsewhere in the letter as "Band, Choir, P.E., Art, Counseling, Career Orientation, Industrial Arts, sports, etc." One would think that, the more sophisticated the times, the greater the need for graduates who can read, write, reckon and, one hopes, think.

On the contrary, to concentrate on the basics, if necessary to the exclusion of "Career Orientation" and "etc." is now considered turning the clock back. At a time when the uneducated are more hindered than ever, when society more than ever depends on votes cast by all, one is told that reading, writing and arithmetic must not be emphasized at the expense of the frills.

That way lies functional illiteracy, and it is heartening to see so many school districts — including New York City's — demand tougher requirements for graduation and less emphasis on Social Adjustment. A school district at Emporia, Virginia, actually has decreed that kids who haven't mastered one grade level not be passed on to the next. The results, predictably, are said to be good. One hopes such developments keep coming, before the end of education.

Glass explains product liability bill

letters to the editor

I read with interest your four-part series on the product liability crisis, as well as your September 16 editorial on the subject.

Something indeed must be done to protect the businessman, particularly the manufacturer of sports equipment, against the inequitable burden he now must sustain.

A manufacturer should be responsible for the safety of its products. However, product liability suits now threaten to penalize a company even if its product were misused or altered by others after its sale. Participants in sports assume the risk of injuries no matter what the equipment used, yet manufacturers now suffer unbearable costs as the result of judgments holding them to blame for such normal risks.

The future of many businesses, as well as some sports, may well be in jeopardy.

I am principal sponsor of SB 475, the Illinois Products Liability Act, which would limit liability in product liability cases to no more than eight years after the product was sold, or 10 years after its manufacture. A business would also be protected if a product is modified after its sale.

In any action for damages, liability would be based on whether, at the time the product left the control of the person against whom the suit is filed, there was a defective condition in the product which made it unreasonably dangerous. In any such action, a person would be liable only if the product were used in its original condition without alteration and if the product had been properly maintained. Misuse of a product would provide a defense for the manufacturer.

The bill now rests in the Senate Judiciary Committee. I shall renew efforts for its passage in the Fall Session.

State Sen. Bradley M. Glass

'Thompson abortion veto wrong'

In response to The Daily Herald editorial endorsing Gov. Thompson's veto of the bill prohibiting use of public aid money to pay for abortions, I submit the following:

The editorial completely misses the central issue of the matter which is whether individuals who believe that deliberate destruction of innocent human life is never an acceptable or proper solution to human problems should be forced to pay for that kind of solution.

The Daily Herald naively states that "moral issues may be dealt with by religious leaders" indicating that the editors obviously fail to see that morality is not an abstract philosophical or theological exercise but rather an attitude toward ourselves and others which guides our actions and relationships. If morality does not result in this practical expression it is an exercise in futility and/or a hypocritical sham. Since I do not wish to engage in either of these alternatives, my only option is to strenuously object, by every means available, to being forced to contribute through taxes to what I consider an immoral solution to human problems.

It may be argued that the poor woman who wishes an abortion is having my morality "imposed" on her while the wealthy woman who can pay is not. To which I say that I favor society's spending whatever is necessary to provide viable alternatives to abortion through adoption, financial and medical aid, family counseling, etc. If, in spite of all this, a woman still chooses to abort her child, that is a choice I cannot make for her. But I do have the right to refuse to pay for her choice when that choice violates the deepest part of my conscience.

The Daily Herald refers to Thompson's statement that "Our people are not a cruel people" in reference to the plight of a poor woman with an unwanted pregnancy. I agree, we are not a cruel people; but we are often an apathetic, selfish and lazy people.

Instead of seeking to provide positive, constructive, life-sustaining and enriching solutions to poverty, we are all too eager to accept the quickest, easiest, cheapest solution — ie. abortion of the poor woman's child. We would rather pay less money to help her abort that new life than pay more money to help her raise it in dignity.

The Daily Herald called Gov. Thompson's veto "right and courageous." It was neither in my view where it is never right to destroy innocent human life to solve human problems and it is never courageous to evaluate human life according to economic expediency. What the Governor has told me, and thousands of others who share my views, is that we must pay for the destruction of life as a solution to life's problems. He has told us we need not approve personally so long as we pay. To me, to pay for it is tantamount to approving of it. So I will continue to protest — and continue — and continue — until all life has value in our society.

Youngstown layoffs demand aid; jobs, not economic props needed

by JOSEPH C. HARSCH

The federal government in Washington of course, should do something to help the city of Youngstown, Ohio, through the local crisis that has been precipitated by the closing down of the biggest steel mill in the town. But it is most important that it do the right things, not the wrong things.

The worst wrong thing it could do would be to give in to the reflexive demand from local political and union leaders for tariffs against foreign imported steel. That would be the wrong thing because it would encourage the conditions which have made American steel less competitive in world markets.

The United States wants, and needs, and should have, a modern, efficient, and effective steel industry. But it does not need and should not allow itself to have an out-of-date industry kept alive by protective tariffs. The effect of tariff protection would be to keep obsolete plants in operation beyond their usefulness and thus discourage the building of modern and efficient plants to take over and keep American industry up to date.

THAT IS A hard thing to say to the people of Youngstown, Ohio, who woke up the other day to learn that the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co. is closing down its Campbell Works, which employs some 5,000 people. It is even harder when people in the area learn that other companies also are cutting back operations. United States Steel and Armco Steel Corporation are also cutting back production and laying off workers in the same area.

We are talking about the Mahoning Valley where steel has been the main occupation for a very long time. The Campbell Works being closed down by Youngstown Sheet and Tube dates from 1900. Most of the mills in the area date from the turn of the century. Their output cannot compete in the market with mills designed and built since World War II.

Youngstown Sheet and Tube is moving its Campbell Works operations to its own new plant at Indiana Harbor on Lake Michigan. Incidentally, the Associated Press reported that the Indiana Harbor Works just had received 175 tons of "work rolls" or rollers from Japan at the same time it was joining in the chorus of demand for a protective tariff against Japanese steel imports.

Mahoning Valley mills also are asking for relief from environmental standards which they blame, along with foreign competition, for the decline of demand for their products.

BUT RELAXING environmental standards would act like a protective tariff to keep obsolete or obsolescent plants going that ought to be scrapped and replaced with modern plants that can compete and do not pollute.

In a case like this there should be advance planning between the industry and local and national government. The closing of a plant should, if at all possible, be paced with the opening of new plants. That might require job retraining. But the last thing in the world anyone ought to propose or try to do would be to keep an obsolete mill or plant or factory — or even a whole industry — going by government subsidy.

So far, this has not become a habit in the United States. True, Lockheed came to Uncle Sam when it was in trouble and was bailed out by government loan guarantees. True, there has been plenty of welfare handed out to American companies in the disguised form of government contracts. But by and large the United States still is a place where the market-place determines survival or failure of enterprises. The federal government does not yet step in and take over every factory which has gone bankrupt or been left behind by new technologies.

AND THIS is precisely why American industry is still more vigorous than industry in the Soviet Union. The West has a long technological lead over the Soviets. Its industry is still competitive, which is why it has the lead. But there tends always to be pressure in cases like Youngstown. Why not have the government buy up the plant and keep it going?

First, some straight talk
Let's face it. It costs you more every year to heat or cool your home no matter what type of fuel you use. And chances are the cost will continue to rise. So, there's no better time than right now to insulate your home with Insulspray foam insulation.
Common sense will save you dollars.

Why Insulspray?
In most homes, more heat escapes through the walls than from anywhere else. New Insulspray foam insulation effectively reduces costly heat loss through walls as never before possible. In hot weather it works just as well to keep cool air in. Insulspray makes your home more comfortable to live in and much more economical to live with.

What is Insulspray?
Insulspray is a non-toxic, two-part insulation system made of liquid urea-formaldehyde resin plus a hardener containing a foaming agent.
The urea-formaldehyde and hardener are fed, under pressure, into a specifically designed mixing gun. The two components are ejected from the gun as a liquid foam consisting of millions of tiny air cells, highly effective in reducing heat loss in winter and heat intake in summer.

How is Insulspray installed?
Insulspray is installed from the outside, without mess, and usually in one day.
It is applied directly into the hollow stud space within the outer walls of your home. It flows up and down, around obstacles and fills every crack and crevice. Insulspray leaves no uninsulated pockets.
In a few days, the foam completely sets and forms a permanent insulating layer within the wall cavity.

INTERIOR DRY WALL
INSULSPRAY FOAM INSULATION
SHEATHING
STUD
EXTERIOR SIDING

What are the advantages?
First and foremost, Insulspray reduces costly heat loss through the walls of your home where it occurs most. It sets up a barrier to block the natural tendency of heat to flow from warm to cold surfaces of building materials. Consequently, your home stays warmer in winter, cooler in summer. And your fuel costs drop considerably.

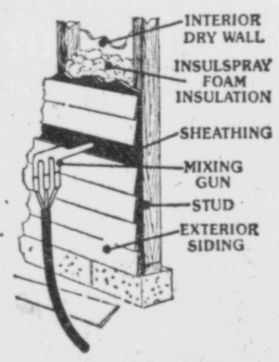
Let's face it. It costs you more every year to heat or cool your home no matter what type of fuel you use. And chances are the cost will continue to rise. So, there's no better time than right now to insulate your home with Insulspray foam insulation.
Common sense will save you dollars.

Why Insulspray?
In most homes, more heat escapes through the walls than from anywhere else. New Insulspray foam insulation effectively reduces costly heat loss through walls as never before possible. In hot weather it works just as well to keep cool air in. Insulspray makes your home more comfortable to live in and much more economical to live with.

What is Insulspray?
Insulspray is a non-toxic, two-part insulation system made of liquid urea-formaldehyde resin plus a hardener containing a foaming agent.
The urea-formaldehyde and hardener are fed, under pressure, into a specifically designed mixing gun. The two components are ejected from the gun as a liquid foam consisting of millions of tiny air cells, highly effective in reducing heat loss in winter and heat intake in summer.

How is Insulspray installed?
Insulspray is installed from the outside, without mess, and usually in one day.
It is applied directly into the hollow stud space within the outer walls of your home. It flows up and down, around obstacles and fills every crack and crevice. Insulspray leaves no uninsulated pockets.
In a few days, the foam completely sets and forms a permanent insulating layer within the wall cavity.



What are the advantages?
First and foremost, Insulspray reduces costly heat loss through the walls of your home where it occurs most. It sets up a barrier to block the natural tendency of heat to flow from warm to cold surfaces of building materials. Consequently, your home stays warmer in winter, cooler in summer. And your fuel costs drop considerably.

High court opens session with kid sterilization issue

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court, showering down orders to open its 1977-78 term, agreed Monday to examine such varied matters as sex-segregated pension plans, child sterilization and search-and-seizure procedurss.

The justices also agreed to take up the multibillion dollar question of whether newspapers must give up ownership of broadcast stations located in the same city. A breakup of up to 150 newspaper-broadcast combinations in 44 states could result if a lower court decision is upheld.

In a brief order, the justices upheld Tennessee's college student aid program, which helps applicants attending both secular and church-related institutions. And it ruled that two North Carolina colleges, even though religion-oriented, may participate in the state's three tuition assistance programs.

THIS IS THE first time the court has dealt with scholarship-type programs at the college level.

At issue in the pension case is a requirement by the Los Angeles Dept. of Water and Power that women, because they tend to live longer than men, should make bigger contributions to an employes' pension fund. The department appealed to the high court after the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals rejected that argument.

The sterilization case arose after DeKalb County, Ind., Judge Harold Stump permitted the operation on a 15-year-old girl at the request of her mother, Linda Kay Sparkman, without giving the girl any representation or telling her what was happening. The question before the justices: Is Stump liable to a civil rights damage suit by the daughter?

On search and seizure, the justices agreed in one case to decide whether authorities must obtain a warrant before re-entering a fire-damaged building to check for evidence of arson.

IN ANOTHER, they promised to rule whether police with a warrant still acted unlawfully in searching offices of the Stanford (Calif.) Daily for photos of demonstrators.

Although the justices will hear arguments next week on the Alan Bakke "reverse discrimination" suit involving the University of California's special program for minority medical students, they let stand Monday an order that the Chicago Police Dept. give blacks and Hispanics 40 per cent of future promotions to the rank of sergeant.

The justices declined to reconsider its ruling last year removing the ban on lawyer advertising for routine services, and took the issue one step further by agreeing to decide whether the organized bar may penalize a lawyer who recommends his own services to prospective clients.

In other action, the justices:

• Refused to overturn an order that Rchard Nixon's White House tapes may be screened for evidence in a civil damage suit on behalf of 1,200 illegally arrested "May Day" demonstrators.

• Brought an end to government efforts to prosecute the lawyer who prepared Richard Nixon's 1969 tax return, rejecting the special prosecutor's appeal from an order dismissing a charge against Frank DeMarco Jr.

• Let stand a ruling that homeowners have no right to sue a local airport for damages caused by noise, fumes and vibrations from jets in flight.

• Refused to get involved in a legal skirmish over the Kiwanis Club's policy of excluding women.

• Declined once again to examine the question of whether police may use "deadly force" to halt fleeing felony suspects.

• Agreed to review challenges to a Maryland law which bars oil companies from operating their own retail service stations and requires them to sell gasoline to dealers at a uniform price.

• Denied a challenge to Arkansas' capital punishment law, which does not provide mandatory review of the death sentence by an appeals court; and turned down appeals from men sentenced to be executed in Georgia and Florida, including Marcus Wayne Chenault, who fatally shot Mrs. Martin Luther King Sr. in 1974.

Chicago cops went too far: high court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court Monday let stand a ruling that police went too far in breaking down the door of a Chicago dentist accused of sexually attacking anesthetized women patients.

This left standing a lower court's ruling that certain evidence against the dentist cannot be admitted at trial because police with an arrest warrant forced their way into his office instead of knocking and announcing their presence.

After police received several complaints by women about dentist Nicholas Polito, Chicago officer Louis Cantone arranged in August 1969, to try to catch him in the act.

He sought help from Alice Svinning, an employe of the dentist who complained to the state's attorney that when Polito was supposed to be doing some dental work on her, she was "placed under a gaseous drug and knocked unconscious" and suspected she had been sexually molested.

She agreed to have irridescent powder placed in her vagina before her next dental work on Aug. 15 and to give police a prearranged signal when she was about to be anesthetized.

After she did so—by lighting a cigaret—police saw Polito turn down the office lights. They entered and walked down the hall to another room from which soft music could be heard. They broke the door down with a sledgehammer and arrested the dentist on a warrant they brought with them.

In July 1970, Polito was convicted in Cook County Circuit Court of battery and deviate sexual assualt, byt won a reversal in appeals court. When his second trial began, he sought to suppress evidence that he charged illegally was gained when officers entered his office without first announcing their authority and purpose and then searched it without a search warrant.

Cop promotion rule upheld

The Supreme Court let stand a judge's order that the Chicago Police Dept. give blacks and Hispanics 40 per cent of future promotions to the rank of sergeant. The justices acted in a brief order that sets no national legal precedent but allows lower court rulings to stand. The justices gave no explanation for their refusal to hear an appeal filed by Louis Arado and other police who had earned high-priority positions on the 1973 eligibility roster for promotion to sergeant. The officers' movement up the ranks was interrupted when the police department's promotion practices were challenged as discriminatory in one of a series of court suits.

The city of Chicago had joined the officers in urging the high court to accept the case, saying it should once and for all clarify a conflict among various appeals courts on the use of racial quotas. Acting on a consolidated civil rights action, U.S. District Judge Prentice Marshall decided in 1976 that the method used for hiring and promoting Chicago police officers discriminated against blacks, Hispanics and women. He ordered discriminatory practices stopped and imposed hiring quotas, which he later suspended, and promotion quotas.

At issue in this appeal was his order that 40 per cent of the officers promoted to sergeant be black or Spanish-surnamed, so long as "qualified" applicants were available, until the racial mix or sergeants compares with the general composition of the force.

Designer sparks auxiliary show with lines for men

by MARIANNE SCOTT

To sum up the fashion figures for fall and winter '77: add some soft, flowing skirts and dresses to your wardrobe; subtract from your supply of slacks; multiply with layering; then divide it all into feminine and more feminine looks for sportswear, daytime and evening.

While the big trend is toward loose, easy dressing, especially on the runways, keep in mind there also is a trend toward body-conscious stretch clothes, perhaps topped with the loose and easy.

But, "wearing what you feel is right for you is what fashion is all about," said Robert L. Green, former fashion director and current contributing editor of Playboy Magazine who has become a men's fashion designer.

GREEN DELIVERED the most animated fashion commentary our suburbs have seen in years at last Thursday's fall benefit sponsored by Northwest Community Hospital Auxiliary. Of course, his men's line was featured prominently in the show. The male models, he chided, were not professionals. "They are not even good amateurs, but they're trying to hold their guts in."

But the men, doctors, hospital personnel and husbands of auxiliary members — who braved the runway with nearly 900 pairs of feminine eyes on them, were the hit of the show. They performed a few muscle-bound twirls and strutted almost as well as their female partners from the auxiliary.

Couples should be coordinated, for color and style, Green said. "They should not look as if they arrived from separate planets." Helio hued ensembles modeled by one couple brought enthusiastic applause from the audience, as did ensembles in gray and beige. But his satin blazers in yellow, melon, toast and champagne were the piece de resistance as far as the audience of women was concerned. The men's cut velvet jackets also were well received.

THE OUTSPOKEN Green allowed that the tent dresses in the show would bring forth comments about "When are you expecting?" But he says if you stand straight and "not as if the tent is collapsing," they're not too bad.

He was not so outspoken about some of the other ensembles for women. In fact he made no comment on one ensemble except, "This model is wearing a dress, a scarf, a hat." It was unclear whether he had lost the commentary, or he didn't like the outfit.

When another model appeared wearing a sexy, glittery outfit, his only comment was, "Oh, my dear!" As she left the runway, he added, "If Cher can do it, so can she!"

Another model was asked to remove her necklace. "It looks better without it, Darling," he said. And if you own real pearls, Green advised, "leave them in the vault. This year's fashions look better with the bolder fakes."

AS FOR COWLS, which threaten to replace turtle necks this year, Green

Designer sparks auxiliary show with lines for men

by MARIANNE SCOTT

To sum up the fashion figures for fall and winter '77: add some soft, flowing skirts and dresses to your wardrobe; subtract from your supply of slacks; multiply with layering; then divide it all into feminine and more feminine looks for sportswear, daytime and evening.

While the big trend is toward loose, easy dressing, especially on the runways, keep in mind there also is a trend toward body-conscious stretch clothes, perhaps topped with the loose and easy.

But, "wearing what you feel is right for you is what fashion is all about," said Robert L. Green, former fashion director and current contributing editor of Playboy Magazine who has become a men's fashion designer.

GREEN DELIVERED the most animated fashion commentary our suburbs have seen in years at last Thursday's fall benefit sponsored by Northwest Community Hospital Auxiliary. Of course, his men's line was featured prominently in the show. The male models, he chided, were not professionals. "They are not even good amateurs, but they're trying to hold their guts in."

But the men, doctors, hospital personnel and husbands of auxiliary members — who braved the runway with nearly 900 pairs of feminine eyes on them, were the hit of the show. They performed a few muscle-bound twirls and strutted almost as well as their female partners from the auxiliary.

Couples should be coordinated, for color and style, Green said. "They should not look as if they arrived from separate planets." Helio hued ensembles modeled by one couple brought enthusiastic applause from the audience, as did ensembles in gray and beige. But his satin blazers in yellow, melon, toast and champagne were the piece de resistance as far as the audience of women was concerned. The men's cut velvet jackets also were well received.

THE OUTSPOKEN Green allowed that the tent dresses in the show would bring forth comments about "When are you expecting?" But he says if you stand straight and "not as if the tent is collapsing," they're not too bad.

He was not so outspoken about some of the other ensembles for women. In fact he made no comment on one ensemble except, "This model is wearing a dress, a scarf, a hat." It was unclear whether he had lost the commentary, or he didn't like the outfit.

When another model appeared wearing a sexy, glittery outfit, his only comment was, "Oh, my dear!" As she left the runway, he added, "If Cher can do it, so can she!"

Another model was asked to remove her necklace. "It looks better without it, Darling," he said. And if you own real pearls, Green advised, "leave them in the vault. This year's fashions look better with the bolder fakes."

AS FOR COWLS, which threaten to replace turtle necks this year, Green

Dior jacket offers subtle pattern

The man who does not like plaids or checks but still wants a patterned look for sports jackets can take heart. A solution to this problem is the purchase of one of the thick-and-thin boucles patterns being shown.

Christian Dior, who likes this look, uses a random, thick-and-thin wool boucle for a six-button, double-breasted coat that is styled with natural shoulders, patch pockets with rounded bottoms and moderate-width peak lapels. A solid pair of velvet slacks and a turtleneck coordinate perfectly with this subtle, hit-and-miss patterned jacket.

Dear Mr. Juster: Should a short, stocky man with a full face like me wear bow ties? I wear them all the time, but I was told recently that anyone with my build should stay with long ties because bows make him look even shorter. — S.H.L.

What you were told is correct. Anything horizontal under the chin will make your face look fuller and cuts your height. The perpendicular lines of a regular tie are much better choice for you.

Dear. Mr. Juster: My 19-year-old son tried to tell me recently that suit coat sleeves should be shorter than sports jacket sleeves. He said that since cuff links are often used with suits, they show up better with shorter coat sleeves. I, however, said sleeve length should be the same. Who's right? — M.W.

You are. One basic rule about sleeve length applies to both suits and sports jackets. The sleeves should hit at about the wrist bone, with a half-inch or so of the shirt sleeve showing.

Dear Mr. Juster: I recently bought some denim jeans. Out of curiosity, I asked the salesperson why this odd name is used for this fabric. He didn't know, though. By chance, do you? — L.G.

Glad to fill you in. This fabric originated in Nimes, France and was called "Serge de Nimes." This mouthful was later shortened to "de Nimes" and the American version became "denims."

Dear Mr. Juster: My husband recently bought a tan, double-knit sports jacket. All the double-knit garments I own are washable, and since tan will soil easily, I'm wondering if this jacket can't also be washed. Do you know? — Mrs. B.

It is washable only if a label is attached indicating that it is, with laundering instructions. Otherwise, you should have it dry cleaned.

CLOTHES-ING TIP — If the metal buttons on your blazer jacket have turned dull, a going-over with a cloth dampened in vinegar will help restore the original luster.

says they should be used to soften a long, lean neck and chin. Scarves, Green said, can be used on just about any part of one's anatomy.

Furs included his and her natural silver raccoon coats; an opossum hooded parka, a men's natural kyotte sectioned coat; a dyed fitch muskrat with raccoon collar; a natural Canadian lynx coat with matching hat (which Green wouldn't allow the model to wear because matching hats make one look like a walking animal); a dyed nutria with sable-dyed fox collar; and a natural lunaraine emba mink with sable collar, also with matching hat.

Men's and women's furs for the show, the auxiliary's 19th annual benefit, were from Pavlis Furs, Arlington Heights. Women's fashions were from Queen's Ransom, Barrington.

GREEN SAID he was "cornered" into accepting the invitation to comment on the hospital's show by the chairwoman, Kay Futch, and he said he knew nothing about the hospital when he arrived on the scene—the Arlington Park Hilton.

After being filled in on the auxiliary, the $25,500 cataract removal equipment the luncheon-show would finance, the nearly $100,000 the auxiliary is donating this year and the thousands of hours auxiliary members have donated, Green praised the volunteers, who in his opinion were "underestimated."

Despite how the world is changing, he said it's still the family and institutions such as hospitals that are important in life. "Volunteering is a very real kind of occupation," he said. "No one is only a housewife. Everyone is everything."

Ostrich leather for fashion

Ostrich leather is coming on strong on the high-fashion scene.

Birds used to produce the leather are, like mink, ranch-bred for that purpose.

A new aniline treatment called "saddle" finish,' makes the leather supple and shiny so it can be used for wearing apparel as well as accessories such as shoes and handbags.

Paris designers the new finish for jackets, trench coats, boots, great-coats, hats, suits, bracelets and belts.

Their favorite colors: forest green, tobacco brown, cognac and dark red. Trim includes mink, beaver, woolen knits and tweeds.

Hermes, for example, shows a four-paneled ostrich leather skirt lightly gathered at the waist, with slit pockets and front buttons. It is worn with a matching bolero, banded and tied loosely over a turtleneck.

The doctor says

Preventing illness individual concern

Why don't doctors do more about preventing illnesses? It seems to me doctors spend most of their time just trying to prolong someone's life who is going to die anyway. Wouldn't it be a lot better to prevent this person from getting sick in the first place? Is this because doctors make more money doing heart surgery and treating cancer than they do preventing it?

Doctors have discovered the real enemy to health a long time ago and there isn't much we can do bout it. The enemy is YOU! Doctors would love to prevent illnesses but they can only be successful in this area to the extent that people follow the good advice they have been given.

Let's look at automobile accidents. In 1974 when lower automobile speed limits were being obeyed the death rate from automobile accidents dropped 17.4 per cent. But people do not want to slow down to save energy let alone their own or someone else's life.

Did you know that your chance of surviving an accident at 71 miles per hour are only about 50-50 at best? The chances of survival improve the slower the speed. There is little doctors can do to prevent you from risking your life or others. You are the problem.

Yellow gas flame? Call repairman soon

For Energy Savers: If the burner flame in your gas furnace (or hot water heater) is yellow instead of the blue it should be, there may be too much air in the combustion mixture. To stop gas waste, you'll need a repairman to adjust the air shutter. Similarly, if the burners of your gas stove still have a yellow flame after you've cleaned food particles from the burner holes, an adjustment by the utility company or an appliance service will be necessary.

Dear Roberta: I have several blouses with deodorant stains. I've tried different soaps, but they haven't worked. Any suggestions on preventing the stains or getting them out?—Mrs. Elmer J. White

You might be able to restore their colors by soaking them for a half-hour in a solution of one-half teaspoon dishwashing detergent and one tablespoon ammonia for each quart of warm water. If this doesn't work, try working out the stains by alternately applying rubbing alcohol to them and then blotting with a clean absorbent cloth as long as stain is picked up. Im the future, you may be able to prevent all this later work if you wash the blouses as soon as you take them off with warm water and liquid detergent.

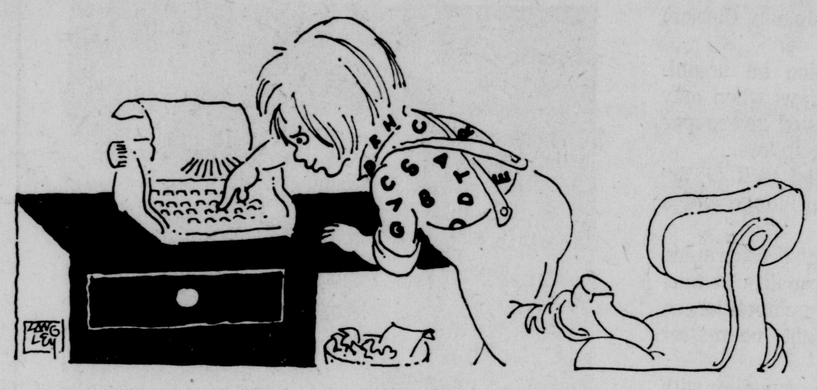
Kids need encouragement

Learning the write way not hard

by RICHARD ARMOUR
(Second of four parts)



Writing is rightfully, or writefully, the second of the "three R's." Reading usually is learned first, though there may be early attempts by the child to write his or her name, along with drawing simple pictures.

Teachers use various methods to teach writing, often by having students imitate large capital letters in a book or letters written on the blackboard. Once the child has learned to write the letters of the alphabet and to recognize the sound each letter represents, the way is open to writing words.

Writing at first is done by printing letters. Not until second grade, for some students, and not until third grade for others, do they tackle the much more difficult cursive writing, which we think of as handwriting. Now the letters are rounded rather than square, are joined to one another and, compared with the stiff letters of printing, seem to flow.

LEARNING TO write correctly and clearly is not easy at first, but once learned it progresses rapidly. The writing still may be larger and more studied or self-conscious than an adult's writing. But this may be an advantage, making it more legible.

You probably will not have to ask your child whether he or she can write. Your child will be quick to show you the first letter, then the first sentence written in large printed letters. The same eagerness and pride will be present when the child can show you a sample of cursive writing, a great step forward. You will not have to ask, "Can you write?" The child probably knows the word "cursive" too.

But since improvement in writing comes from much practice, you can and should ask your child to write a certain word, at first a very simple one.

WATCH WITH interest while the child writes, offering help if needed and asked for, but not crowding in too much. The child probably will wish to surprise you with the ability to write a new word or a short sentence.

As with reading, your function as a parent is not to be critical, not to take away confidence, but to exclaim with pleasure, to compliment and to stay with it while the child writes more. You also can show how to write a certain letter or word, not shaming the child with how much better you can write, but helping, modestly, by example.

As your child moves up from grade to grade, you will, or should, see writing improvement. The writing should be surer, clearer and faster.

YOU MAY WISH to get in touch with the teacher and ask about the teaching methods being used. Ask also how you can help at home. It will take more patience to stay with the child, making suggestions of things to write about and then examining the results, than being read to by the youngster who just has learned to read.

Starting as early as the second or third grade, depending on the ability of the students, the teacher may read a story or show a short film to the children. Then the teacher asks them to write what they remember of it. Your child probably will tell you voluntarily of the experience. If not, you can ask, "What are you doing in school that makes your writing so much better?"

As early as first grade with some, writing will begin to involve the use of punctuation marks. The easy and most used ones, such as the period and comma, are used first. Later will come the colon, semicolon and the rest of the 16 marks that are so important in conveying meaning.

CHILDREN LIKE to play with a typewriter. At least they do at our house. Earlier and earlier they are taking typing lessons and learning to type. Once they can type, they can write as clearly as anyone else.

You may disagree about the early use of the typewriter. You may equate the typewriter for writing with the computer for working out problems in arithmetic.

I am willing to compromise. Buy your child a typewriter for having mastered the ability to write clearly with a pencil or pen. But not one day before.

The doctor says

Preventing illness individual concern

Why don't doctors do more about preventing illnesses? It seems to me doctors spend most of their time just trying to prolong someone's life who is going to die anyway. Wouldn't it be a lot better to prevent this person from getting sick in the first place? Is this because doctors make more money doing heart surgery and treating cancer than they do preventing it?

Doctors have discovered the real enemy to health a long time ago and there isn't much we can do bout it. The enemy is YOU! Doctors would love to prevent illnesses but they can only be successful in this area to the extent that people follow the good advice they have been given.

Let's look at automobile accidents. In 1974 when lower automobile speed limits were being obeyed the death rate from automobile accidents dropped 17.4 per cent. But people do not want to slow down to save energy let alone their own or someone else's life.

Did you know that your chance of surviving an accident at 71 miles per hour are only about 50-50 at best? The chances of survival improve the slower the speed. Cirrhosis of the liver is the fourth most common cause of death in men between the ages of 35 and 54 and 60 per cent of these are caused by alcohol. Doctors have no authority to make people quit abusing their bodies with alcohol.

Carson: Tonight's star not falling yet

It's time to say a few words about Johnny Carson. Entertaining and enduring.

He was making late-night television an uninhibited, riotous pleasure back in the days when only factory shift workers and bloodshot-eyed newspaper reporters knew the meaning of staying up late.

The "Tonight Show" king has fared well in the past 15 years with success, wealth, privilege and a certain amount of pretension.

As NBC statisticians said in a recent demographic ratings report, "No other single personality in television history . . . has dominated his competition so completely as Carson has in late night, no matter what was thrown against him."

HE WAS JUST A grinning neophyte comedian with a fair sense of cool and comic timing when he took over the reins of "Tonight" in 1962 following the pompous exit of Jack Paar.

There is at least one generation that doesn't even remember a "Tonight Show" before there was a Johnny Carson as host.

The history books say that Jerry Lester and Egnor Dagmar gave the talk show format its start on an early TV variety show called "Broadway Open House." That show later was perfected by Steve Allen who kicked off the "Tonight Show" in 1954 and by Dave Garroway who began the "Today Show" in 1952.

Eventually the outrageous Paar took over for a smooth and charming Allen. Mastering the power to draw an audience, Paar demanded a share of the network's commercial profits on his show and fainally just walked off the set in 1962, complaining he was tired of talk.

ENTER CARSON. Although he was still wet behind the ears, Carson was an insatiable talker who took the ball, rolled with it and threw it past other talk show hopefuls like Joey Bishop, David Frost and Dick Cavett.

Where the others were too bland, too intellectual, too showy or too depressing, Carson offered just the right kind of conversation and humor.

He gathered two would-be entertainers, Ed McMahon and Skitch Henderson, later replaced by Doc Severinsen, to be his fall guys and backup men. He eventually formed the Mighty Carson Art Players and created characters like Karnack the Magnificent.

CARSON PROVIDED a platform for novice performers as well as the show business greats, talented animals, the bizarre, the farcical and the timely. His opening monologue has become a sometimes cynical overview of news and life in America.

The past fifteen years have flown. Carson has said he doubts he'll still be on "Tonight" five years from now. But he and his sidekick Ed McMahon celebrated their 15th anniversary last Friday night, reviewing some of the more humorous moments on film.

The flashbacks served to remind audiences that Carson remains one of the funiest and most powerful men on television. The occasionally surfacing rumors of his feuds with the network are not mere gossip. His reportedly volatile temper and massive ego often have him putting the heads of his network bosses into a vice and squeezing it tight until he gets what he wants.

HIS LATEST DEMANDS reportedly include a boost in his $3 million annual salary, more than the 12 vacation weeks he currently receives each year and a reduction to three work nights a week compared with his current four.

When he doesn't get what he wants, Carson takes to the airwaves with his dirty linen. He wasn't doing much griping Friday when newly appointed NBC President Robert E. Mulholland made a brief appearance on "Tonight" to express the network's best wishes and appreciation of Carson's fine ratings.

Carson replied with, "We've had a wonderful relatinship with NBC," squelching rumors of high tension between Carson and NBC.

WHENEVER A SPORTS event or awards show runs late out of prime time and delays or completely replaces his show, Carson has been known to fake a few days of illness to demonstrate his displeasure.

To retaliate, the network continues to remind Carson that substitute "Tonight" hosts like Don Rickles, David Brenner, Rich Little and Chevy Chase along with "Tomorrow" show host Tom Snyder do very well by their audiences when Carson is not around.

But none do as well as Carson and no talk show on television is as successful.

STILL, CARSON HAS his problems. He slowly has been losing ratings and viewers in the past few years, facing stiff competition from the other two networks who have taken to airing reruns of popular action shows like "Kojak" and "Starsky and Hutch" along with movies and original programs like Geraldo Rivera's "Good Night, America" in the 10:30 p.m. to midnight timeslot.

Carson had planned to raise his ratings last February by having his show go live from Los Angeles, instead of being taped earlier the same day it airs, but it never happened.

No matter what their differences and though each is suffering a massive headache, the network needs Carson as its late night ace in the hole. And Carson needs his television talk show for the audience applause and response that feed his ego.

TV HIGHLIGHTS:

- Choreographer Twyla Tharp and TV director Don Mischer explain how they enrich television dance with creative camera work and visual effects on the "Making of Television Dance" at 8 p.m. on Channel 11.

Actor Bernie Casey not your typical ex-pro athlete

by DICK KLEINER

There were two things about my interview with Bernie Casey that intrigued me. One was that he was, of course, a great pro football player and I welcomed the chance to discuss football with an insider. The other was that he has the reputation of having a chip on his shoulder about the black issue, and that's always ticklish to handle.

So much for preconceptions.

I detected not one sign of a chip, on his shoulder or elsewhere.

And, as for inside stuff about football —

"I have promised myself," Casey said, with a smile, but a hard smile, "that on interviews from now on, there would be no football talk. I promised myself that if anybody asked a football question, I might bop him on the nose."

HE IS A LARGE man. I have a sensitive nose. Mostly, we talked about his acting career.

It is going well.

It should be. Casey is a tall and very good-looking man. He is in good shape. You might think his good shape comes from his having indulged in some athletic endeavor before he became an actor, but we don't talk about things like that.

He is also a pretty good actor. He has studied his new trade. And he continues to study. He says he hopes, some day, to broaden his scope and try his fine hand at directing and/or producing.

"To that end," he says, "I am constantly learning. I don't want to be frivolous about my directing and producing, I want to know what I'm doing. When I'm on a set now, I ask the various craft people about what they do and how they do it. That way, when I produce or direct, I'll be able to talk to them and know what I'm talking about."

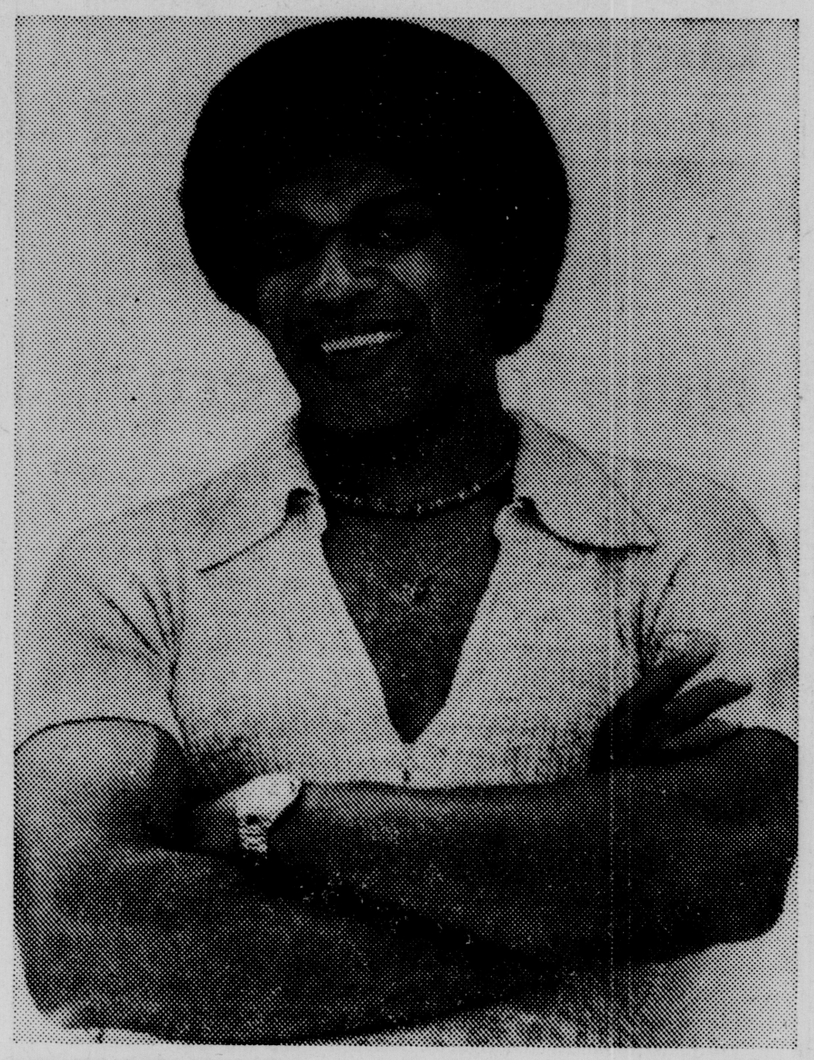
CASEY IS A FAR cry from the pro athlete most of us think of when we think about pro athletes, if we ever do. He is an artist, a poet, a thinker, a gentleman. He plays down the athletic side of his past so much that the canned biography, issued by his public relations people, doesn't even mention it at all.

And, actually, that may be the way to do it. As he says, he started out in life to be an artist. Poetry and painting were his chief passions as an emerging teen-ager. He played football, but that was just something that came easily. That was the something, however, that got him college scholarship offers.

He picked Bowling Green University over the others, because of its excellent fine arts department. He is probably the first and only fine arts major to become a pro football player. (We didn't talk about that, of course, but it was just something I figured out by myself.)

EVEN WHILE he was playing pro ball, he kept up his painting, kept up his poetry writing and began studying acting. First he studied in San Francisco, then in Hollywood. (From that, you might infer that he played for the San Francisco '49ers and the Los Angeles Rams, but, if anybody asks you, remember you inferred that on your own.)

Because of those years of studying, he feels strongly that he has as much a right to be an actor as anybody else, that he has studied as much, perhaps more, than most actors. He resents it when some actors resent him, as some actors resent any athlete-turned-actor automatically.



FORMER PRO-FOOTBALL player Bernie Casey would prefer to talk about acting, poetry and painting than about his athletic career.

"There was some of that resentment at first," he says, "but there's very little anymore. In fact, more and more, these days, people I work with never heard of Bernie Casey, the football player. And they're honestly surprised when they learned that I was a professional athlete."

MORE AND MORE Bernie Casey is being recognized for what he is today. He has done a few parts that have established him as one of the premier black actors around today, parts in films such as "Maurie" and "Cornbread, Earl and Me." Those, plus TV work in "Police Story," "Brian's Song" and others, have given him a firm place in Hollywood.

What he likes, of course, is to be considered for parts that are not written specifically for a black actor, but for any actor, and recently has snagged a few.

In the CBS TV movie "Mary Jane Harper Cried Last Night," he plays a social worker. The fact that he is black is of absolutely no importance. In the upcoming ABC-TV movie, "Ants," he is a construction worker. Again, it doesn't matter a whit what shade he is.

"And that," he says, "is what I hope this business will come to eventually."

CASEY HAS BEEN very busy acting on the minority program committee of the Screen Actors Guild. The committee has investigated and made recommendations regarding the job availability for minorities in the Hollywood crafts.

"There is some improvement in that area," he says. "But where ther were no minority workers before, then even one is an improvement."

Casey says much of today's television that deals with blacks is not to his taste.

"A lot of it," he says, "is completely stereotypical. When Julia was on — remember the show with Diahann Carroll? — Blacks then criticized it as not being realisitic.

"But today many blacks, myself included, would welcome something like Julia. That's because most of the shows project a po' black folks image. fatherless and dominated by a black They show all black families as being fatherless and dominated by a black woman, who is generally fat and unattractive."

AND, HE SAYS, such is not always the case. There are families where the father is present, where the mother is slim and attractive and where the son is not shaped like a beanpole and constantly cracking jokes.

He doesn't talk much about his own childhood. He was known as Terry then — Bernard Terry Casey is his full name, but his family called him Terry when he was young — and he grew up in Columbus, Ohio.

Throughout those early years in Columbus, art and poetry and a little sports and studying occupied his hours. They still do. He still paints. He still writes poetry and has published three volumes of his poems. He obviously still keeps in shape somehow.

And he still studies. Only now it's mostly things connected with the motion picture industry. He's an actor today, but someday Bernie Casey will be something more. Much more.

And then maybe nobody will ever ask him about football.

Carson: Tonight's star not falling yet

It's time to say a few words about Johnny Carson. Entertaining and enduring.

He was making late-night television an uninhibited, riotous pleasure back in the days when only factory shift workers and bloodshot-eyed newspaper reporters knew the meaning of staying up late.

The "Tonight Show" king has fared well in the past 15 years with success, wealth, privilege and a certain amount of pretension.

As NBC statisticians said in a recent demographic ratings report, "No other single personality in television history . . . has dominated his competition so completely as Carson has in late night, no matter what was thrown against him."

HE WAS JUST A grinning neophyte comedian with a fair sense of cool and comic timing when he took over the reins of "Tonight" in 1962 following the pompous exit of Jack Paar.

There is at least one generation that doesn't even remember a "Tonight Show" before there was a Johnny Carson as host.

The history books say that Jerry Lester and Egnor Dagmar gave the talk show format its start on an early TV variety show called "Broadway Open House." That show later was perfected by Steve Allen who kicked off the "Tonight Show" in 1954 and by Dave Garroway who began the "Today Show" in 1952.

Eventually the outrageous Paar took over for a smooth and charming Allen. Mastering the power to draw an audience, Paar demanded a share of the network's commercial profits on his show and fainally just walked off the set in 1962, complaining he was tired of talk.

ENTER CARSON. Although he was still wet behind the ears, Carson was an insatiable talker who took the ball, rolled with it and threw it past other talk show hopefuls like Joey Bishop, David Frost and Dick Cavett.

Where the others were too bland, too intellectual, too showy or too depressing, Carson offered just the right kind of conversation and humor.

He gathered two would-be entertainers, Ed McMahon and Skitch Henderson, later replaced by Doc Severinsen, to be his fall guys and backup men. He eventually formed the Mighty Carson Art Players and created characters like Karnack the Magnificent.

CARSON PROVIDED a platform for novice performers as well as the show business greats, talented animals, the bizarre, the farcical and the timely. His opening monologue has become a sometimes cynical overview of news and life in America.

The past fifteen years have flown. Carson has said he doubts he'll still be on "Tonight" five years from now. But he and his sidekick Ed McMahon celebrated their 15th anniversary last Friday night, reviewing some of the more humorous moments on film.

The flashbacks served to remind audiences that Carson remains one of the funiest and most powerful men on television. The occasionally surfacing rumors of his feuds with the network are not mere gossip. His reportedly volatile temper and massive ego often have him putting the heads of his network bosses into a vice and squeezing it tight until he gets what he wants.

HIS LATEST DEMANDS reportedly include a boost in his $3 million annual salary, more than the 12 vacation weeks he currently receives each year and a reduction to three work nights a week compared with his current four.

When he doesn't get what he wants, Carson takes to the airwaves with his dirty linen. He wasn't doing much griping Friday when newly appointed NBC President Robert E. Mulholland made a brief appearance on "Tonight" to express the network's best wishes and appreciation of Carson's fine ratings.

Carson replied with, "We've had a wonderful relatinship with NBC," squelching rumors of high tension between Carson and NBC.

WHENEVER A SPORTS event or awards show runs late out of prime time and delays or completely replaces his show, Carson has been known to fake a few days of illness to demonstrate his displeasure.

To retaliate, the network continues to remind Carson that substitute "Tonight" hosts like Don Rickles, David Brenner, Rich Little and Chevy Chase along with "Tomorrow" show host Tom Snyder do very well by their audiences when Carson is not around.

But none do as well as Carson and no talk show on television is as successful.

STILL, CARSON HAS his problems. He slowly has been losing ratings and viewers in the past few years, facing stiff competition from the other two networks who have taken to airing reruns of popular action shows like "Kojak" and "Starsky and Hutch" along with movies and original programs like Geraldo Rivera's "Good Night, America" in the 10:30 p.m. to midnight timeslot.

Carson had planned to raise his ratings last February by having his show go live from Los Angeles, instead of being taped earlier the same day it airs, but it never happened.

No matter what their differences and though each is suffering a massive headache, the network needs Carson as its late night ace in the hole. And Carson needs his television talk show for the audience applause and response that feed his ego.

by DICK KLEINER

There were two things about my interview with Bernie Casey that intrigued me. One was that he was, of course, a great pro football player and I welcomed the chance to discuss football with an insider. The other was that he has the reputation of having a chip on his shoulder about the black issue, and that's always ticklish to handle.

So much for preconceptions.

And, as for inside stuff about football —

"I have promised myself," Casey said, with a smile, but a hard smile, "that on interviews from now on, there would be no football talk. I promised myself that if anybody asked a football question, I might bop him on the nose."

HE IS A LARGE man. I have a sensitive nose. Mostly, we talked about his acting career.

It is going well.

It should be. Casey is a tall and very good-looking man. He is in good shape. You might think his good shape comes from his having indulged in some athletic endeavor before he became an actor, but we don't talk about things like that.

He is also a pretty good actor. He has studied his new trade. And he continues to study. He says he hopes, some day, to broaden his scope and try his fine hand at directing and/or producing.

"To that end," he says, "I am constantly learning. I don't want to be frivolous about my directing and producing, I want to know what I'm doing. When I'm on a set now, I ask the various craft people about what they do and how they do it. That way, when I produce or direct, I'll be able to talk to them and know what I'm talking about."

CASEY IS A FAR cry from the pro athlete most of us think of when we think about pro athletes, if we ever do. He is an artist, a poet, a thinker, a gentleman. He plays down the athletic side of his past so much that the canned biography, issued by his public relations people, doesn't even mention it at all.

And, actually, that may be the way to do it. As he says, he started out in life to be an artist. Poetry and painting were his chief passions as an emerging teen-ager. He played football, but that was just something that came easily. That was the something, however, that got him college scholarship offers.

He picked Bowling Green University over the others, because of its excellent fine arts department. He is probably the first and only fine arts major to become a pro football player. (We didn't talk about that, of course, but it was just something I figured out by myself.)

EVEN WHILE he was playing pro ball, he kept up his painting, kept up his poetry writing and began studying acting. First he studied in San Francisco, then in Hollywood. (From that, you might infer that he played for the San Francisco '49ers and the Los Angeles Rams, but, if anybody asks you, remember you inferred that on your own.)

Because of those years of studying, he feels strongly that he has as much a right to be an actor as anybody else, that he has studied as much, perhaps more, than most actors. He

Ford cuts prices 9% on subcompacts

Ford Motor Co. Monday announced it is cutting prices on its fuel-efficient 1978 Pinto, Mustang II and Mercury Bobcat models by as much as 9.1 per cent to compete more aggressively against Japanese imports. The reductions, oost of which involve making several optional items standard equipment, followed by just a few weeks a similar move by industry pacesetter General Motors with its subcompact Chevrolet Chevette. But Ford managed to undercut Chevette's bottom-line model by $4 and make the Pinto Pony the cheapest domestic model on the U.S. market with a suggested retail price of $2,995. The No. 2 automaker is raising prices on its 1978 intermediate and full-sized models, a company spokesman said, and plans a separate announcement on the increases by Wednesday.

16,000 cars recalled by Ford

The Ford Motor Co. has recalled 16,000 vehicles to correct a carburetor problem that could cause drivers to lose control of the speed of their vehicles, the Transportation Dept. said Monday. The recall involves some 1978 model Ford, Mercury, Lincoln and Mark V passenger cars; 1977 and 1978 E-250-350M Econoline vans and club wagons; and 1977 and 1978 F-150-250-350 light trucks. All of the recalled vehicles were built between July 5 and Sept. 9, and have 460 cubic inch engines and four-barrel carburetors.

Japanese steel firms sell at loss

In a potential major victory for the nation's steel industry, the Treasury Dept. Monday tentatively determined that five Japanese steel companies are selling carbon steel plate in the United States at a substantial loss. As a result, the Treasury Dept. announced the five companies would be required to post bonds to cover "dumping duties" amounting to 32 per cent of the imports. Japanese firms sold $174 million worth of carbon steel plate in the United States last year. The Japanese companies involved in the tentative decision are five of the six firms involved in a U.S. Steel Corp. complaint filed Sept. 20. American steel producers have been seeking curbs on foreign imports for years. Pressure for such curbs has increased in recent months because domestic production and profitability have lagged while imports have surged.

Factory orders rise 2.3% in August

Factory orders, a signal of future business demand, rose by 2.3 per cent in August, the largest increase in five months, the Commerce Dept. said Monday. New orders for manufactured products totaled $111.1 billion last month compared with $108.6 billion in July when orders fell by 2.6 per cent. The August rise was the biggest since March when the climb was 4.9 per cent, since the orders either have declined or have been flat. The surge in new orders was a sign the economy may be shrugging off the effects of its summer lull.

AL to rehire fired stewardesses

American Airlines Tuesday agreed to rehire 300 stewardesses fired because they became pregnant and pay them a total of $2.7 million. American fired the pregnant stewardesses between 1965 and 1970, after they took leaves of absence to have their babies. The lawsuit charged the airline violated the Civil Rights Act of 1964. Charles Pressman, an attorney for the stewardesses, said the agreement is one of the largest civil rights case settlements ever.

Dow gains 4.85 in active trading

NEW YORK (UPI) — A sharp rise in nondefense factory orders triggered a rally that carried stocks higher Monday for the third consecutive session. Trading was fairly active.

The Dow Jones industry average, off about 2 points in the early going, rallied to gain 4.85 points to 851.96, bringing its three-day total to 17.24 points. A 7.02-point winner Friday, the Dow rose 7.97 points over-all last week.

A midafternoon rally was triggered by the U.S. Commerce Dept. report that nondefense durable goods orders rose 2.3 per cent in August. Also, factory orders and shipments registered sharp gains, reversing July's trend.

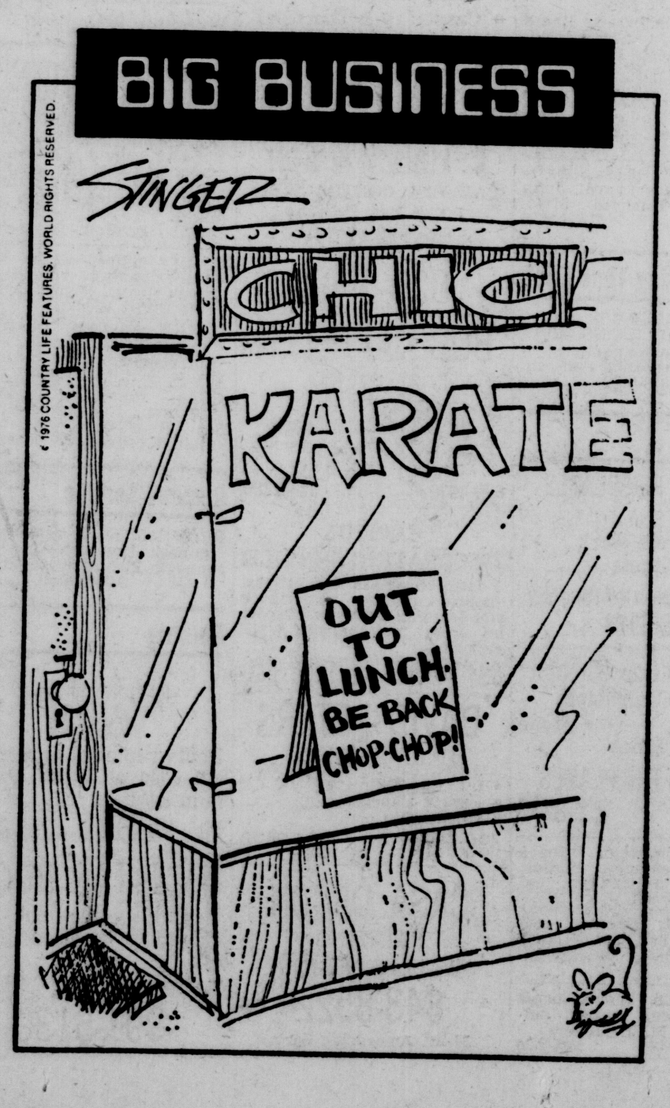
Advances topped declines, 875 to 555, among the 1,886 issues crossing the composite tape.

Big board volume totaled 19,460,000 shares, down from the 21,170,000 traded Friday.

Prices were mixed in moderate trading of American Stock Exchange and over-the-counter issues.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter totaled 22,769,690 shares, compared with 24,609,100 Friday.



Man opens can of worms in new business venture

by JOHN N. FRANK

Darryl Richards is putting his money into worms and trying to convince others to do the same.

Until five months ago, he was in the heating and air conditioning business. But then he heard of a friend of a friend making a living raising worms in California.

Richards went west to see and then read all he could about the earthworm industry. What he found were reports of a $90 million a year nationwide market and no one raising worms in Illinois.

"I think the worm business in this area is strictly virgin," he says from his Earthworms, Inc., 801 Devon Ave., Elk Grove Village.

"THE NICE THING about raising earthworms is that there's very little trouble, very little expense," Richard says. But the dollar returns can be quite sizable, he says.

Earthworm farming has been prospering in California and the southern states for more than 20 years, Richards says.

Worms are sold to bait shops, to people who use them in their gardens, to farmers who use them as fertilizer and recently to some cities that have been experimenting with using worms as garbage disposals, Richards said.

"From everything I've read, the market is only about 40 per cent satisfied now," Richards said.

Besides raising them hemself, Richards is selling worms.

FOR $595, he will sell to a potential grower 75,000 worms, a three by eight foot bed to put them in, the manure and wood shavings used to fill the bed, feed, needed acid neutralizers and an instruction book.

The grower can place the bed anywhere the temperature will remain between 40 and 100 degrees, spend about 15 minutes a week watering and feeding the worms and in 60 days see them double in number, Richards says.

He then will buy the worms back at $3 per pound or about $45 per 75,000 worms.

SOMEONE BUYING four beds and getting a fifth free, under Richards' special introductory offer, could after two months earn $450 a month or $5,400 per year on an initial investment of $2,380 plus feed and water costs. Feed costs about 13 cents per pound.

Response to advertisements for growers has been good, Richards says.

"We have a lot of people growing them in their basements and garages. It's surprising the amount of people we've had in here. We've had between 30 and 60 persons in that door every day and now we have between 60 and 70 growers," he says.

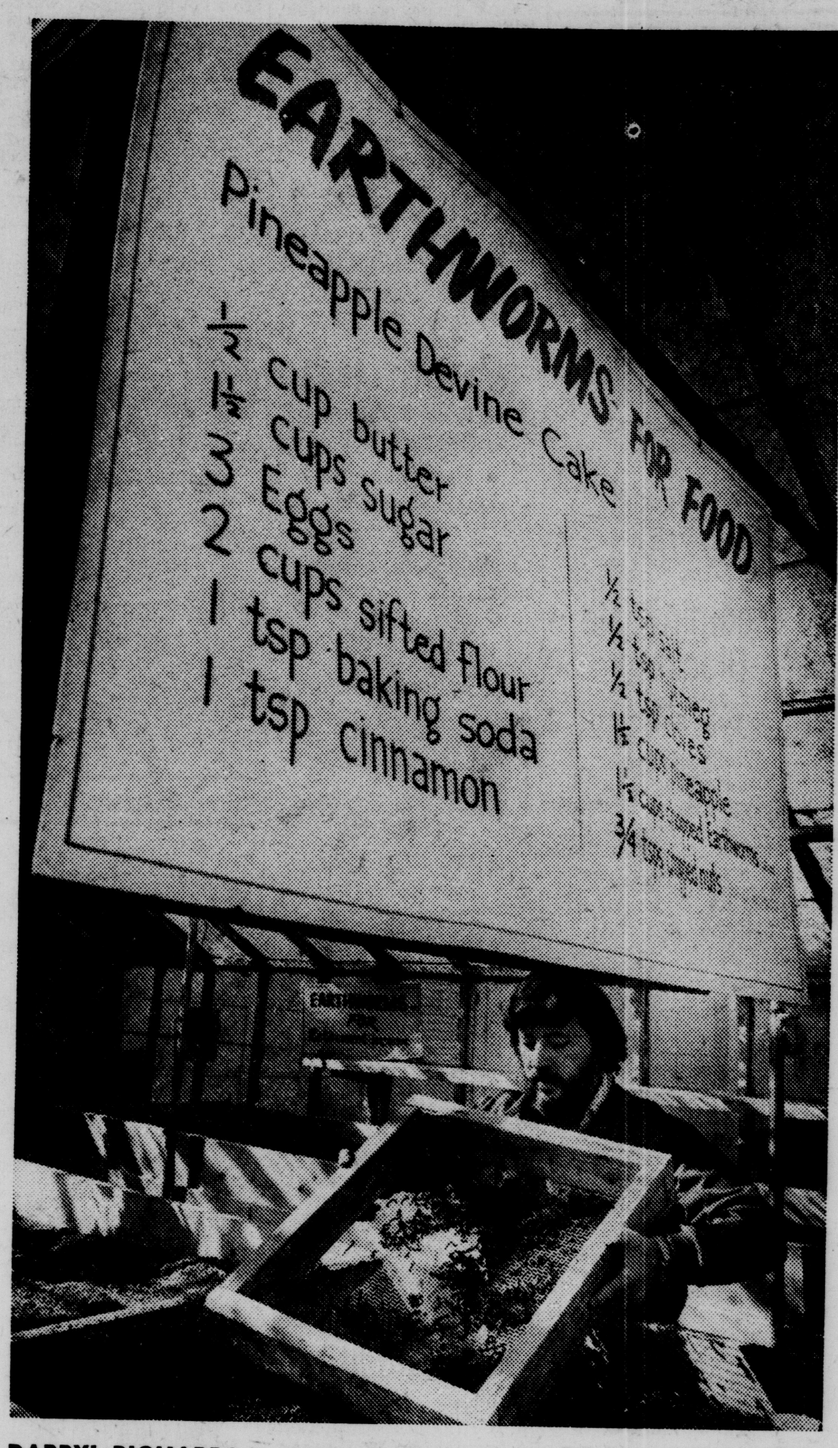
BUT RICHARDS says he is not concerned about having too many persons growing worms because there are so many untapped markets.

"During the winter I want to spend a lot of time out marketing," worms to zoos, aquariums and bait shops, Richards says.

Some California farms are promoting worm recipes for human consumption, because worms are 60 per cent protein.

Richards has recipes available for worm pineapple divine cake and earthworm wiggle omelet, but admits he hasn't tried any himself.

"It will be awhile before I try any of those," he says.



DARRYL RICHARDS is pinning his future on earthworms. He gave up a successful career to start a worm farm in Elk Grove Village because of the money he says exists in the worm market.

AMF revved up to prove Japan 'dumping' cycles

Louis Rukeyser

NEW YORK — It's the symbol of potency and speed for millions of teenagers and the despair of many of their anguished parents. It is, unmistakably, part of the dream of American youth. What is it? A Japanese motorcycle.

But hold on a second. What makes the Japanese so lucky? There was a time, not so long ago, when the yearning was truly all-American: when the noisy demon racing through a rebel's heart, more often than not, was a m a d e-i n-U.S.A. Harley-Davidson. What made this portion of the American dream so easily exportable, to the detriment both of those who make the U.S. version and of the country's over-all balance of trade?

That high-gear controversy is now raging at least 55 miles an hour between the U.S. and Japanese manufacturers of motorcycles. The American argument is that, in a wheel-to-wheel battle, the domestic product could hold its own in sales — but that the Japanese are cheating: selling their motorcycles to dealers here at lower prices than they sell them to dealers in Japan or Western Europe. That's called "dumping," and if proved would be illegal here. Harley-Davidson right now is revving up a major effort to prove it.

What can't be argued is the degree to which Japanese motorcycle manufacturers like their countrymen in the production and sales of specialty steel, televisions, radios, calculators, textiles and automobiles have been capturing dramatic shares of the American market. Last year 780,000 motorcycles were sold in this country; 87 per cent were Japanese. In the first quarter of 1977 this rose to 89.6 per cent (Honda took 45.6 per cent, Yamaha 18.9, Kawasaki 14.4 and Suzuki 10.7).

If the Japanese did so well simply by making a better, cheaper product, it would be hard for any believer in free trade and competition to get excited. But American manufacturers increasingly complain that the rules of international trade by which they have to abide are disregarded by their Japanese competitors. If so, they have a case under the U.S. Antidumping Act of 1921.

The motorcycle version of this dispute is now carrening toward a showdown, Harley-Davidson, a subsidary of AMF, Inc. the only American manufacturer of motorcycles, has filed a three-inch-thick petition with the Treasury Dept. accusing the Japanese Big Four of dumping motorcycles here as a means of boosting their 1976 U.S. sales to almost $7 billion. (Harley-Davidson's sales were under $225 million.)

John A. Davidson, president of Harley-Davidson (and a grandson of the founder), insists that his firm's action is not protectionist in nature. "We don't want higher tariffs or import limitations," he told me, "we just want a fair, competitive motorcycle market. We asked the Government to investigate the situation and, finding the Japanese exporters are pricing their motorcylces unfairly, to enforce the law."

Ford cuts prices 9% on subcompacts

Ford Motor Co. Monday announced it is cutting prices on its fuel-efficient 1978 Pinto, Mustang II and Mercury Bobcat models by as much as 9.1 per cent to compete more aggressively against Japanese imports. The reductions, oost of which involve making several optional items standard equipment, followed by just a few weeks a similar move by industry pacesetter General Motors with its subcompact Chevrolet Chevette. But Ford managed to undercut Chevette's bottom-line model by $4 and make the Pinto Pony the cheapest domestic model on the U.S. market with a suggested retail price of $2,995. The No. 2 automaker is raising prices on its 1978 intermediate and full-sized models, a company spokesman said, and plans a separate announcement on the increases by Wednesday.

16,000 cars recalled by Ford

The Ford Motor Co. has recalled 16,000 vehicles to correct a carburetor problem that could cause drivers to lose control of the speed of their vehicles, the Transportation Dept. said Monday. The recall involves some 1978 model Ford, Mercury, Lincoln and Mark V passenger cars; 1977 and 1978 E-250-350M Econoline vans and club wagons; and 1977 and 1978 F-150-250-350 light trucks. All of the recalled vehicles were built between July 5 and Sept. 9, and have 460 cubic inch engines and four-barrel carburetors.

WHEREAS, the President and Board of Trustees of BUYER have determined that it is essential and in the public interest of BUYER to purchase improvements to the BUFFALO GROVE MUNICIPAL BUILDING and BUFFALO GROVE PUBLIC SERVICE CENTER to be used for public purposes.

WHEREAS, pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 24, Section 11-76. 1-1. etc., of the Illinois Revised Statutes (1973), the BUYER is authorized to purchase real estate and personal property for public purposes pursuant to contracts which provide for the consideration for such purchases to be paid in installments during a period not exceeding Twenty (20) years; and

WHEREAS, SELLER is offering to sell the said improvements pursuant to the terms of this Agreement.

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual covenants and agreements, hereinafter contained, and other good and valuable consideration, SELLER and BUYER mutually agree as follows:

1. SELLER agrees to improve the BUFFALO GROVE MUNICIPAL BUILDING at 50 North Raupp Blvd., Buffalo Grove, and the BUFFALO GROVE PUBLIC SERVICE CENTER, 51 North Raupp Blvd., Buffalo Grove, Illinois, in accordance with specifications prepared by Knoeppel Ltd. dated July 22, 1977, on file in the Office of the Village Clerk, said specifications to include the following:

It is specifically understood, however, that these installments are subject to modification in the event that an assignment of the rights to payment by the SELLER is effected, as hereinafter provided in Paragraph 6, in which event the amount of such installments shall be adjusted to reflect amounts of interest computed upon the principal sum from time to time remaining unpaid from date of actual disbursement by the assignee.

BUYER shall have the right on the first day of any month to prepay the purchase price, without penalty or premium, by paying the balance of the principal amount then remaining unpaid on the date of such prepayment plus the interest accrued thereon to the date of such prepayment; provided, further, that BUYER shall have the right on the first day of any month to prepay any one or more installments of the principal amount of the purchase price, without penalty or premium, by paying said installment or installments plus the interest accrued to said prepayment date on the principal amount then unpaid.

4. Upon completion of the construction of said improvements, SELLER agrees to convey to BUYER good title thereto by good and sufficient Bill of Sale and Title to said improvements shall thereupon vest in BUYER.

5. The parties hereto understand and agree that the payments required under the terms of this Agreement shall be a general obligation of BUYER and that the total amount due SELLER, together with all other general obligations of BUYER, are within all statutory and constitutional debt limitations. BUYER shall take all necessary action to appropriate such funds as are necessary to make the principal and interest payments required under this Agreement.

6. SELLER shall have the right at any time or from time to time to assign this Agreement representing the purchase price then remaining unpaid and the interest then and thereafter payable, as herein provided. Written notice of any such assignment shall be given by SELLER to BUYER in the same manner as provided in Section 7 hereof for giving of notice. BUYER agrees that any remedies it may have for breach of contract shall be enforceable against the SELLER and shall not be enforceable against the SELLER'S assignee. It is further provided, however, if this Agreement is assigned by SELLER before completion of, and delivery of title to, the subject improvements, then proceeds of the assignment shall be held by the BUYER as escrowee and paid to SELLER as follows:

Based upon Applications for Payment submitted to the Architect by the SELLER and Certificates of Payment issued by the Architect, BUYER shall make progress payments on account of the Contract Sum to the SELLER, as provided in the Conditions of the Contract as follows:

On or about the 15th day of each month, ninety per cent (90%) of the proportion of the Contract Sum properly allocable to labor, materials, and equipment incorporated in the work and ninety per cent (90%) of the portion of the Contract Sum properly allocable to materials and equipment suitably stored at the site or at some other location agreed upon in writing by the parties, up to the date on which the Application for Payment is submitted, less the aggregate of previous payments in each case; and upon substantial completion of the entire work, a sum sufficient to increase the total payments to ninety-five per cent (95%) of the Contract Sum, less such retainages as the Architect shall determine for all incomplete work and unsettled claims.

WHEREAS, the President and Board of Trustees of BUYER have determined that it is essential and in the public interest of BUYER to purchase improvements to the BUFFALO GROVE MUNICIPAL BUILDING and BUFFALO GROVE PUBLIC SERVICE CENTER to be used for public purposes.

WHEREAS, pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 24, Section 11-76, 1-1, etc., of the Illinois Revised Statutes (1973), the BUYER is authorized to purchase real estate and personal property for public purposes pursuant to contracts which provide for the consideration for such purchases to be paid in installments during a period not exceeding Twenty (20) years; and

WHEREAS, SELLER is offering to sell the said improvements pursuant to the terms of this Agreement.

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual covenants and agreements, hereinafter contained, and other good and valuable consideration, SELLER and BUYER mutually agree as follows:

1. It is specifically understood, however, that these installments are subject to modification in the event that an assignment of the rights to payment by the SELLER is effected, as hereinafter provided in Paragraph 6, in which event the amount of such installments shall be adjusted to reflect amounts of interest computed upon the principal sum from time to time remaining unpaid from date of actual disbursement by the assignee.

BUYER shall have the right on the first day of any month to prepay the purchase price, without penalty or premium, by paying the balance of the principal amount then remaining unpaid on the date of such prepayment plus the interest accrued thereon to the date of such prepayment; provided, further, that BUYER shall have the right on the first day of any month to prepay any one or more installments of the principal amount of the purchase price, without penalty or premium, by paying said installment or installments plus the interest accrued to said prepayment date on the principal amount then unpaid.

5. The parties hereto understand and agree that the payments required under the terms of this Agreement shall be a general obligation of BUYER and that the total amount due SELLER, together with all other general obligations of BUYER, are within all statutory and constitutional debt limitations. BUYER shall take all necessary action to appropriate such funds as are necessary to make the principal and interest payments required under this Agreement.

6. SELLER shall have the right at any time or from time to time to assign this Agreement representing the purchase price then remaining unpaid and the interest then and thereafter payable, as herein provided. Written notice of any such assignment shall be given by SELLER to BUYER in the same manner as provided in Section 7 hereof for giving of notice. BUYER agrees that any remedies it may have for breach of contract shall be enforceable against the SELLER and shall not be enforceable against the SELLER'S assignee. It is further provided, however, if this Agreement is assigned by SELLER before completion of, and delivery of title to, the subject improvements, then proceeds of the assignment shall be held by the BUYER as escrowee and paid to SELLER as follows:

Based upon Applications for Payment submitted to the Architect by the SELLER and Certificates of Payment issued by the Architect, BUYER shall make progress payments on account of the Contract Sum to the SELLER, as provided in the Conditions of the Contract as follows:

On or about the 15th day of each month, ninety per cent (90%) of the proportion of the Contract Sum properly allocable to labor, materials, and equipment incorporated in the work and ninety per cent (90%) of the portion of the Contract Sum property allocable to materials and equipment suitably stored at the site or at some other location agreed upon in writing by the parties, up to the date on which the Application for Payment is submitted, less the aggregate of previous payments in each case; and upon substantial completion of the entire work, a sum sufficient to increase the total payments to ninety-five per cent (95%) of the Contract Sum, less such retainages as the Architect shall determine for all incomplete work and unsettled claims.

INSTALLMENT CONTRACT FOR PURCHASE OF IMPROVEMENTS TO THE BUFFALO GROVE MUNICIPAL BUILDING AND PUBLIC SERVICE CENTER

AN AGREEMENT between OFFICE EQUIPMENT CO. OF CHICAGO, an Illinois corporation (hereinafter referred to as "SELLER") and the VLLAGE OF BUFFALO GROVE, COOK AND LAKE COUNTY, ILLINOIS (hereinafter referred to as "BUYER").

WHEREAS, the President and Board of Trustees of BUYER have determined that it is essential and in the public interest of BUYER to purchase improvements to the BUFFALO GROVE MUNICIPAL BUILDING and BUFFALO GROVE PUBLIC SERVICE CENTER to be used for public purposes.

WHEREAS, pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 24, Section 11-76, 1-1, etc., of the Illinois Revised Statutes (1973), the BUYER is authorized to purchase real estate and personal property for public purposes pursuant to contracts which provide for the consideration for such purchases to be paid in installments during a period not exceeding Twenty (20) years; and

WHEREAS, SELLER is offering to sell the said improvements pursuant to the terms of this Agreement.

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual covenants and agreements, hereinafter contained, and other good and valuable consideration, SELLER and BUYER mutually agree as follows:

1. SELLER agrees to improve the BUFFALO GROVE MUNICIPAL BUILDING at 50 North Raupp Blvd., Buffalo Grove and the Buffalo Grove public service center, 51 North Raupp Blvd., Buffalo Grove, Illinois, through installation of interior furnishings and furniture, in accordance with specifications prepared by Thomas Fennell, Jr. dated August 1977 and titled "Specifications for Interior Element, Village Hall, Public Service Center Remodeling," on file in the Office of the Village Clerk, said specifications to include the following:
A. This Agreement
B. Contract Specifications Addendum September 26, 1977.
C. AIA Standard Contract Form between BUYER & SELLER.

The parties agree that the installments heretofore set forth reflect the maximum sums under this provision which the BUYER shall be obligated to pay to the SELLER. It is specifically understood, however, that these installments are subject to modification in the event that an assignment of the rights to payment by the SELLER is effected, as hereinafter provided in Paragraph 6 in which event the amount of such installments shall be adjusted to reflect amounts of interest computed upon the principal sum from time to time remaining unpaid from date of actual disbursement by the assignee.

BUYER shall have the right on the first day of any month to prepay the purchase price, without penalty or premium, by paying the balance of the principal amount then remaining unpaid on the date of such prepayment plus the interest accrued thereon to the date of such prepayment; provided, further, that BUYER shall have the right on the first day of any month to prepay any one or more installments of the principal amount of the purchase price, without penalty or premium, by paying said installment or installments plus the interest accrued to said prepayment date on the principal amount then unpaid.

3. The work to be performed under this Agreement shall be commenced on January 3, 1977, and shall be completed 150 calendar days after said date.

4. Upon completion of the construction of said improvements, SELLER agrees to convey to BUYER good title thereto by good and sufficient Bill of Sale and Title to said improvements shall thereupon vest in BUYER.

5. The parties hereto understand and agree that the payments required under the terms of this Agreement shall be a general obligation of BUYER and that the total amount due SELLER, together with all other general obligations of BUYER, are within all statutory and constitutional debt limitations. BUYER shall take all necessary action to appropriate such funds as are necessary to make the principal and interest payments required under this Agreement.

6. SELLER shall have the right at any time or from time to time to assign this Agreement representing the purchase price then remaining unpaid and the interest then and thereafter payable, as herein provided. Written notice of any such assignment shall be given by SELLER to BUYER in the same manner as provided in Section 7 hereof for giving of notice. BUYER agrees that any remedies it may have for breach of contract shall be enforceable against the SELLER and shall not be enforceable against the SELLER's assignee. It is further provided, however, if this Agreement is assigned by SELLER before completion of, and delivery of title to, the subject improvements, then proceeds of the assignment shall be held by the BUYER as escrowee and paid to SELLER as follows:

Based upon Applications for Payment submitted to the Architect by the SELLER and Certificates of Payment issued by the Architect, BUYER shall make progress payments on account of the Contract Sum to the SELLER, as provided in the Conditions of the Contract as follows:

On or about the 15th day of each month, ninety per cent (90%) of the proportion of the Contract Sum properly allocable to labor, materials, and equipment incorporated in the work and ninety per cent (90%) of the portion of the Contract Sum properly allocable to materials and equipment suitably stored at the site or at some other location agreed upon in writing by the parties, up to the date on which the Application for Payment is submitted, less the aggregate of previous payments in each case; and upon substantial completion of the entire work, a sum sufficient to increase the total payments to ninety-five per cent (95%) of the Contract Sum, less such retainages as the Architect shall determine for all incomplete work and unsettled claims.

Final payment, constituting the entire unpaid balance of the Contract Sum, shall be paid by the BUYER to the SELLER thirty (30) days after substantial completion of the work unless otherwise stipulated in the Certificate of Substantial Completion, provided the work has been completed, the Contract fully performed, and a final Certificate of Payment has been issued by the Architect.

Pitching to decide NL pennant

BY FRED MCMANE

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Amid a show business atmosphere right off a Hollywood sound stage, the Los Angeles Dodgers and the Philadelphia Phillies tonight begin part one of what is supposed to be a classic battle for the National League pennant in which pitching is expected to play the leading role.

The top two candidates for the NL Cy Young Award, 23-game winner Steve Carlton of the Phillies and 20-game winner Tommy John of the Dodgers, have been named to pitch the opener of the best-of-five series and it's doubtful even the likes of Frank Sinatra and Captain and Tennille can upstage that duel.

Sinatra, a personal friend of Dodger manager Tom Lasorda, has been asked to throw out the first ball for the 7:15 p.m. curtain-raiser and Captain and Tennille will sing the national anthem, but the real show will be on the field and it may be hard to find a better one in town.

BETWEEN THEM, the two clubs have more talent than the William Morris Agency and they may be the most evenly matched teams since the playoff idea originated in 1969.

The second game of the series also will be played at Dodger Stadium Wednesday night with the clubs then traveing to Philadelphia where the playoffs will resume Friday afternoon.

"This is as even a series as you can pick," said John, who has gotten the starting nod, over Don Sutton, because of his consistency. "They have a little more team speed, we have a little more power. Our starting pitchers are stronger, their bullpen is stronger.

"I think it's gonna come down to pitching and breaks. Who misplays a double play ball, who makes the great fielding play? Things like that will decide who wins."

BETWEEN JOHN, Sutton and Burt Hooton the Dodgers have three pitchers who finished among the top 15 in earned run average this season while in Steve Garvey, Reggie Smith, Dusty Baker and Ron Cey they have four players who hit 30 or more homers — a major league record.

But the NL East champion Phillies counter with the league's best team batting average (.279), a superb bullpen and a pair of fencebusters of their own in Greg Luzinski (39 homers) and Mike Schmidt (38).

One edge the Phillies might have is that three of the games are scheduled for Philadelphia. The Phillies posted an incredible 60-21 record on their own artificial surface and many feel a split at Dodger Stadium is all the Phils need to win it all.

Lasorda, however, doesn't share that opinion.

"Naturally, we want to win the first two games here but we don't necessarily have to win the first game. It takes three wins," said Lasorda. "Whatever happens from now on, I can't tell you how proud I am of this ballclub. At the beginning of the season, everybody was talking about Cincinnati's dynasty and then we went out and beat them and beat them good."

THE MERE FACT the Phillies don't have to play the Reds is looked upon as a positive sign by Philadelphia followers. Last year the Phillies also won the NL East title but lost to the Reds in three straight games.

"We were ahead in all three games, but it didn't matter because we all knew we weren't supposed to win," recalls Dodger catcher Johnny Oates, who played for the Phillies last year.

Phillies' manager Danny Ozark believes his club is more mature than it was a year ago, and he also feels the fact the playoffs are starting four days earlier this year will be beneficial to his team.

"I think we had to work harder for our 101 victories this year," said Ozark. "I think we're a little bit stronger going into the playoffs than a year ago. I think our team will be better prepared mentally for this playoff. Last year there was a five-day layoff between the end of the season and the first playoff game and that hurt us.

"THIS TIME THERE will be no relaxation, no time for the mind to wander. And having been through it once has to be beneficial."

Both clubs come into the playoffs fairly healthy. Rick Monday, who has been bothered by a bad back since the All-Star game, may be replaced in center field by Glenn Burke for the Dodgers and Ozark has announced that Dave Johnson will start at first base in place of Richie Hebner, who is recovering from a torn rotor cuff in his shoulder.

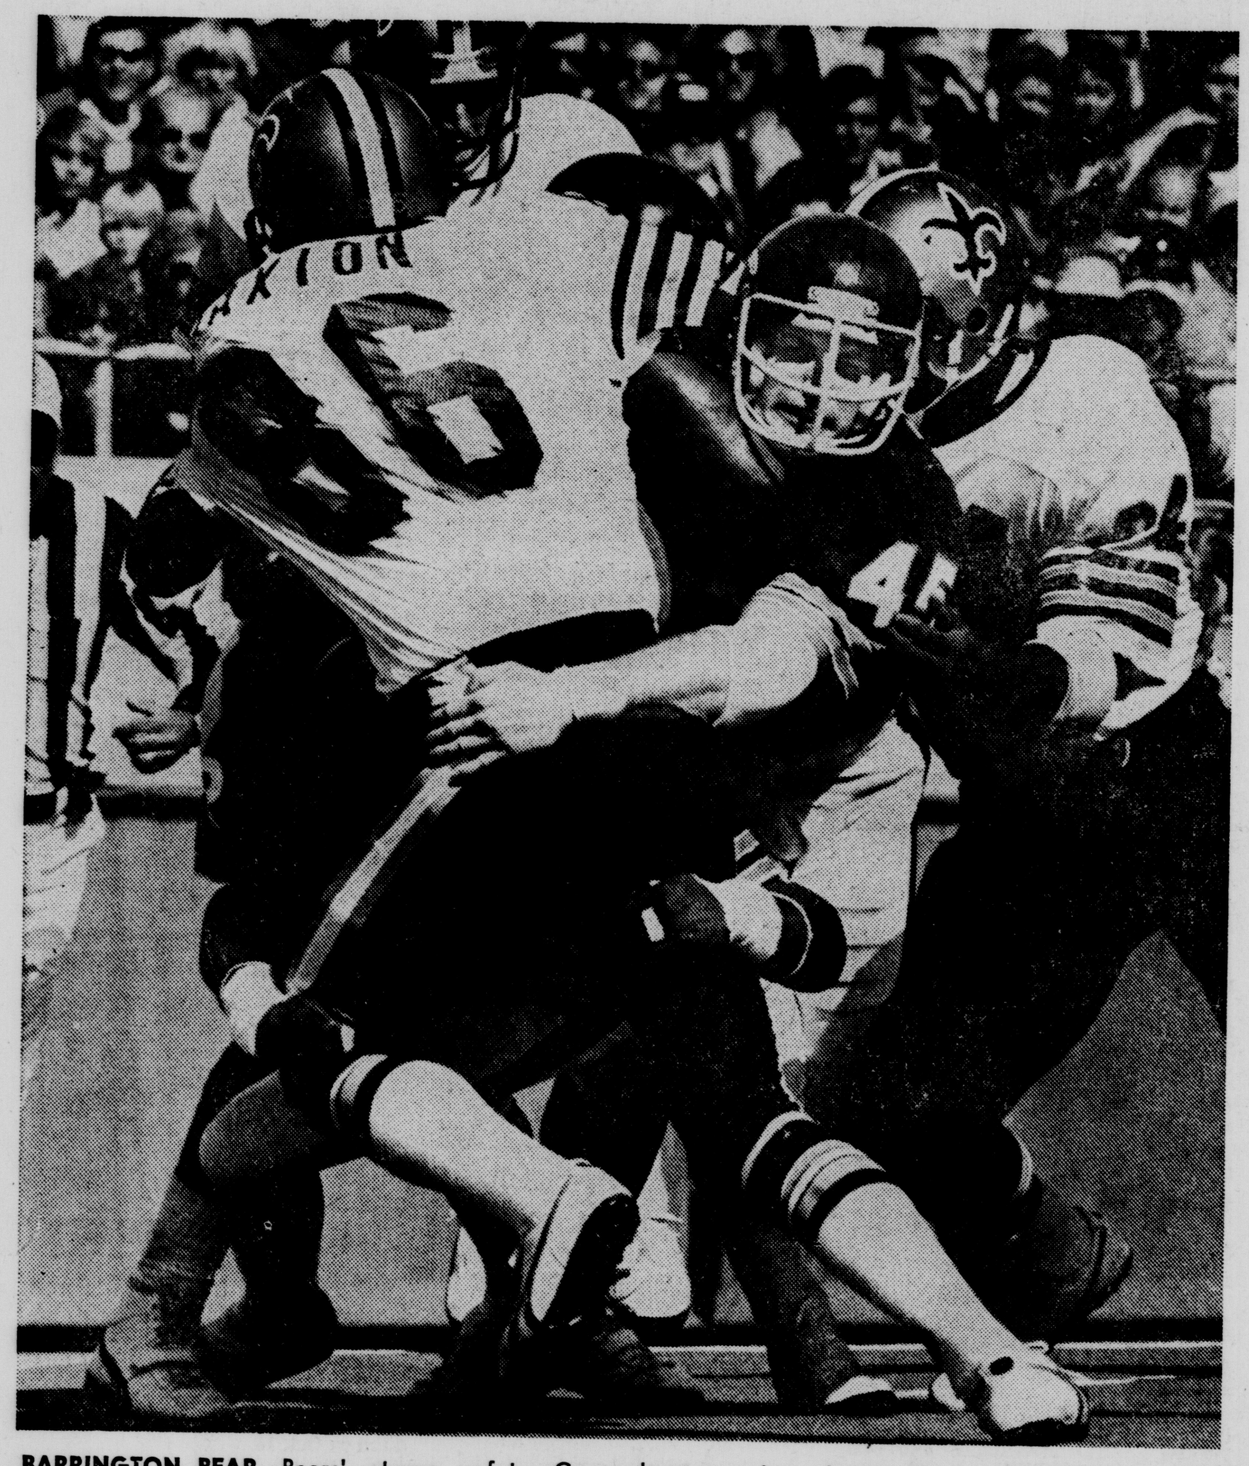
LA and Yanks get odd look from the Greek

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — The Los Angeles Dodgers and New York Yankees were established as the favorites Monday by Jimmy "the Greek" Snyder to win their pennants and meet in the World Series.

The Dodgers were listed as 6-5 favorites to win Tuesday night's National League opener at Los Angeles against Philadelphia and also were 6-5 to capture the best-of-five series.

The Yankees, who open at home Wednesday against Kansas City, were listed at 7-5 for the fisrt game and 13-10 for the American League series.



BARRINGTON BEAR. Bears' strong safety Gary Fencik (45), who spent his prep days on the Barrington High School gridiron, hauls down New Orleans receiver James Thaxton in Sunday's 42-24 Chicago loss at Soldier Field. Fencik leads the Bears in tackles with 36.

Bears need attitude boost for big game with L.A.

by BOB GALLAS

Sunday's 42-24 loss to New Orleans was embarrassing and put even more pressure on the club to win Monday when they host the Los Angeles Rams in a nationally televised game. The fact that Rams have been struggling in their first three games was little solace: L.A. is 2-1. The Bears are 1-2.

The Rams are 2-1 because they've won their last two games, looking better all the time. The Bears are 1-2 because they've dropped their last two games and have looked progressively worse.

THE ONLY THING the Bears could take heart in Monday was that Joe Namath's gimpy knees won't allow him to dance around and make the Bears' defense look like a Gong Show disco act, which is exactly what the Saints' Archie Manning did Sunday. Namath's bag isn't elusion or deception, but rather finesse and accuracy.

"I don't like to think this is a must game but it will be important," said safety Gary Fencik of Barrington. I hate to think we'll fall apart if we don't win."

Head coach Jack Pardee put it more succinctly.

"They're all must games if you're going anywhere," he said.

The Bears can ill afford many more losses if they plan on fulfilling Chicago's great expectations of "going anywhere," such as a playoff berth this year. A loss Monday would give them three with two games left with the Vikings and another with the Lions at Detroit, not to mention the rest of the league schedule. The Bears, in short, even at this early point in the season, are running out of leeway.

THE PLAYERS and Pardee agree the talent is there, although lineup shuffles lately have put that opinion up for discussion. They also agree their problems could be traced to attitude, that never-never world term that often pops up in losing locker rooms.

"We have to have the attitude that every game is a must win," Fencik said. "This Monday will be a hard test on a young team."

"Wide receiver Bo Rather came up with a new definition for attitude.

"It's been our thing all year. We have one good drive but can't come back with the knockout drive, the attitude drive," Rather said. "We could have done it to Detroit by coming out and scoring early in the second half which would have put the game away. We could have done it against the Saints after we scored that first touchdown early in the first quarter. But we didn't."

The Bears will need more than attitude to top the Rams, who have rebounded after an opening day loss to the Falcons, to win twice. They can Raiders' anniversary ends with 37-28 win over K.C.

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — Clarence Davis rushed for two touchdowns during a 21-point third quarter to lift defending Super Bowl champion Oakland to a 37-28 victory over the Kansas City Chiefs Monday night on the anniversary of the Raiders' only loss in 17 games last season.

The Raiders lost to the New England Patriots 48-17 on Oct. 3, 1976, but have not lost a game since then in extending their winning streak to 16 games. The three most recent triumphs have come during the 1977 season to keep Oakland unbeaten and in a tie with Denver for first place in the AFC West.

Davis scored on runs of 37 and two yards and Pete Banaszak added a 1-yard touchdown plunge to lift the Raiders into the lead from a 21-13 halftime deficit and keep the Chiefs winless in three games this season.

KEN STABLER, after a shaky first half in which he was intercepted three times and sacked for the first time this year, rebounded to make things easy for Oakland by hitting 9-of-10 passes for 166 yards after the intermission.

Stabler, who finished with 19 completions in 28 tries for 297 yards, also threw a 21-yard TD pass to Fred Biletnikoff in the first quarter. Errol Mann finished the Raiders' scoring with field goals of 42, 34 and 22 yards.

Golden-eyed archers aiming for district title

by DON FRISKE

Coach Ken Bates has built an archery powerhouse at Rolling Meadows High School, a group of girls with gold in their eyes and the district title on their minds.

Saturday's district tournament is the next goal for the Mustang archers, who hit the gold of the target often enough Monday to win the Mid-Suburban League meet Monday at Fremd. They scored 4,856 total points to beat Prospect, which finished second with 4,665.

"I'm really surprised with how strongly we came on at the top end. Let me say I'm very pleased," Bates said.

BATES' DAUGHTER Cheri was a big reason for her father's pleasant surprise. She shot a 650 to lead all conference girls and take the first-place medal. She is also the reason Bates became involved with the Rolling Meadows' program.

"Cheri has come on tremendously in the last four meets," said Bates in a whisper befitting the archery atmosphere. "As a team, we've had a lot of inconsistency, but a high inconsistency, which is an exceptional position to be in."

The conference meet was postponed until Monday after being rained out Saturday. That move provided the archers with much better weather as they competed for the conference title under sunny skies. The only problem was gusty winds.

For the Mustangs, it was their second straight MSL crown under Bates. In the final conference standings, which combined dual points and the league meet, Rolling Meadows came out on top with 115 points. Prospect was second at 102 followed by Fremd at 78.

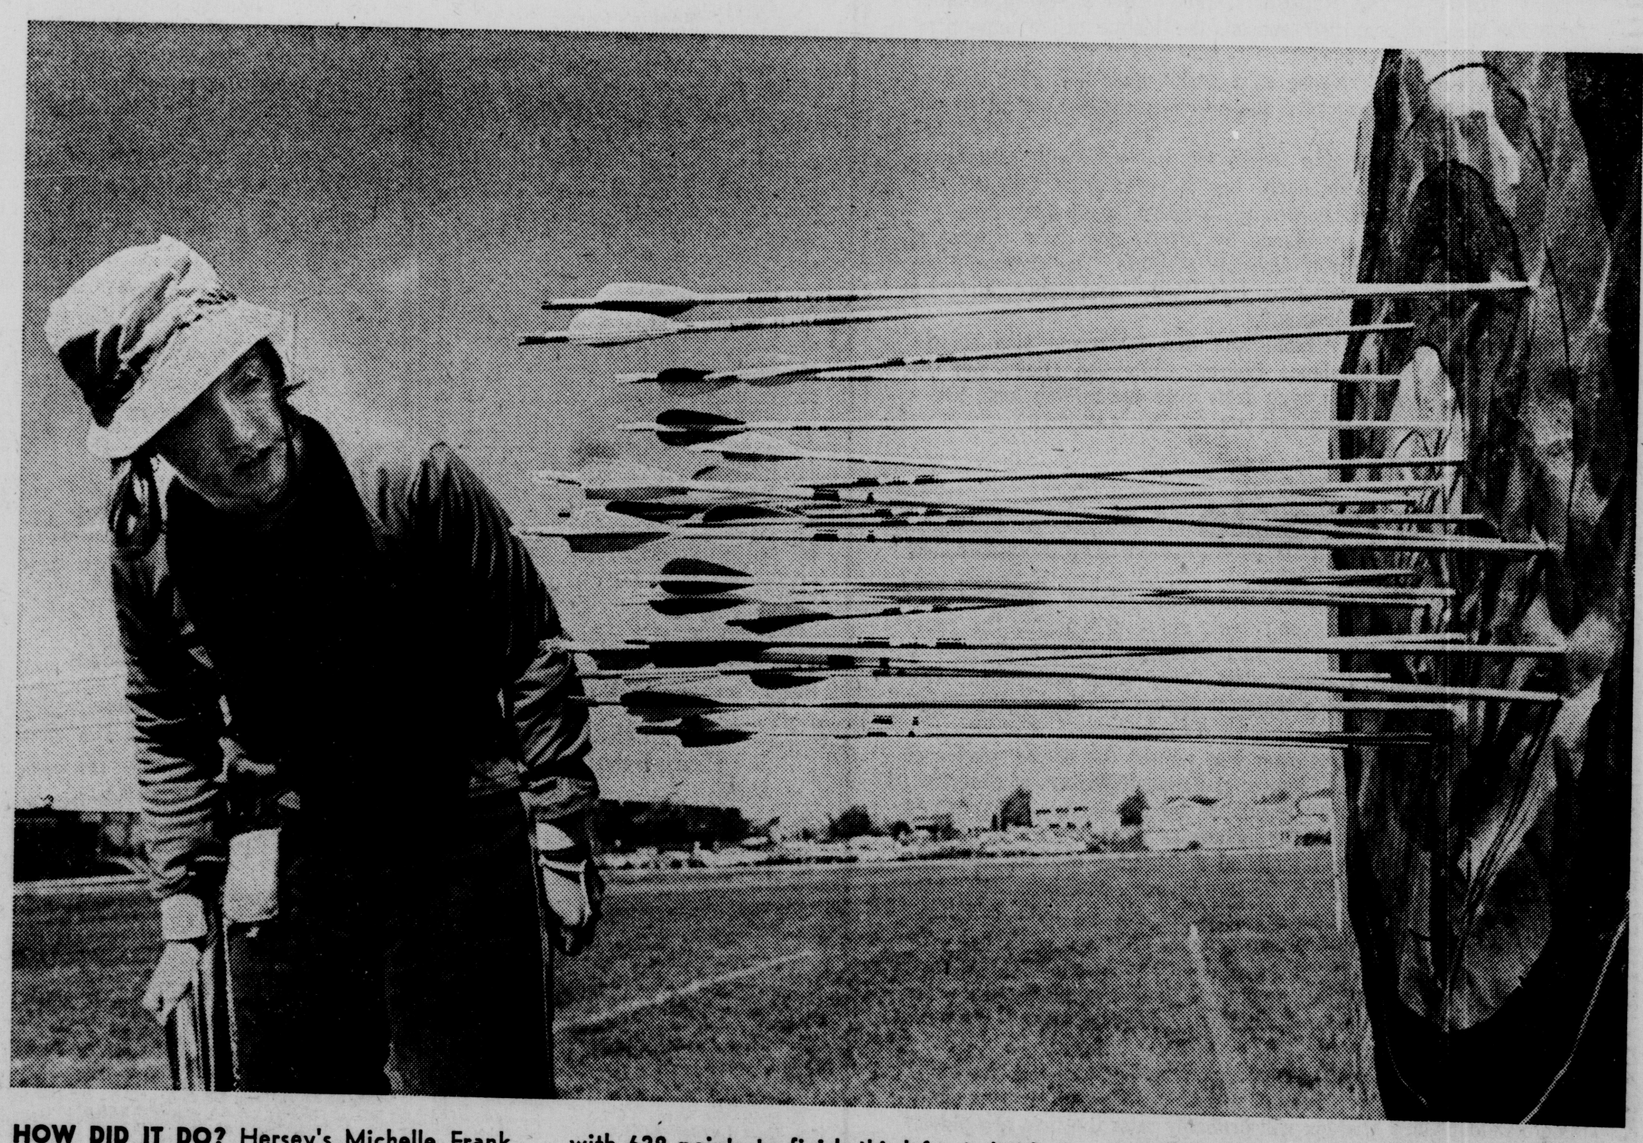
BATES, WHO works at instilling a positive attitude in his girls with goals as the chief motive, is happy with the way his team has developed and progressed during the season.

But when he thinks in terms of success he includes the sport as well as the Mustangs.

"We're no longer interested in vertical growth for the teams that are already involved with archery, but we are interested in horizontal growth to get more teams going," he said. "We can be the best archery state of them all if we just keep working at it."

FOLLOWING CHERI Bates as the top individual scorers in the conference meet were: 2. Nancy Namovicz (RM) 640; 3. Michelle Frank (Her) 628; 4. Patty Johnsen (EG) 624; 5. Rhonda Ragan (RM) 619; 6. Carol Hoeckelberg (Pros) 616; 7. Linda Meuller (Arl) 611; 8. Georgia Oman (RM), Sharon Farina (Pros) and Jenny Krock (Arl) 607.

11. Karen Truckenmiller (Fremd) 606; 12. Laura Weber (Fremd) 605; 13. Janice Lapp (Pros) and Carol Nelson (RM) 603; 15. Karen Kurka (Pros) 599; 16. Sharon Bouchard (BG) 597; 17. Julie Bates (RM) 596; 18. Cathie Sadler (RM) and Kathy Wright (EG) 595; 20. Vicki Ward (Pros) 592.



HOW DID IT DO? Hersey's Michelle Frank checks the target after completing an end Monday in the conference meet for Mid-Suburban League archers. Frank finished with 628 points to finish third for individual honors. Cheri Bates of Rolling Meadows took first place with 650 while her teammate Nancy Namovicz took second with 640. Meadows won the Fremd-hosted meet with 4,856 points.

Pitching to decide NL pennant

BY FRED MCMANE

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Amid a show business atmosphere right off a Hollywood sound stage, the Los Angeles Dodgers and the Philadelphia Phillies tonight begin part one of what is supposed to be a classic battle for the National League pennant in which pitching is expected to play the leading role.

The top two candidates for the NL Cy Young Award, 23-game winner Steve Carlton of the Phillies and 20-game winner Tommy John of the Dodgers, have been named to pitch the opener of the best-of-five series and it's doubtful even the likes of Frank Sinatra and Captain and Tennille can upstage that duel.

Sinatra, a personal friend of Dodger manager Tom Lasorda, has been asked to throw out the first ball for the 7:15 p.m. curtain-raiser and Captain and Tennille will sing the national anthem, but the real show will be on the field and it may be hard to find a better one in town.

BETWEEN THEM, the two clubs have more talent than the William Morris Agency and they may be the most evenly matched teams since the playoff idea originated in 1969.

The second game of the series also will be played at Dodger Stadium Wednesday night with the clubs then traveing to Philadelphia where the playoffs will resume Friday afternoon.

"This is as even a series as you can pick," said John, who has gotten the starting nod, over Don Sutton, because of his consistency. "They have a little more team speed, we have a little more power. Our starting pitchers are stronger, their bullpen is stronger.

"I think it's gonna come down to pitching and breaks. Who misplays a double play ball, who makes the great fielding play? Things like that will decide who wins."

BETWEEN JOHN, Sutton and Burt Hooton the Dodgers have three pitchers who finished among the top 15 in earned run average this season while in Steve Garvey, Reggie Smith, Dusty Baker and Ron Cey they have four players who hit 30 or more homers — a major league record.

But the NL East champion Phillies counter with the league's best team batting average (.279), a superb bullpen and a pair of fencebusters of their own in Greg Luzinski (39 homers) and Mike Schmidt (38).

One edge the Phillies might have is that three of the games are scheduled for Philadelphia. The Phillies posted an incredible 60-21 record on their own artificial surface and many feel a split at Dodger Stadium is all the Phils need to win it all.

Lasorda, however, doesn't share that opinion.

"Naturally, we want to win the first two games here but we don't necessarily have to win the first game. It takes three wins," said Lasorda. "Whatever happens from now on, I can't tell you how proud I am of this ballclub. At the beginning of the season, everybody was talking about Cincinnati's dynasty and then we went out and beat them and beat them good."

THE MERE FACT the Phillies don't have to play the Reds is looked upon as a positive sign by Philadelphia followers. Last year the Phillies also won the NL East title but lost to the Reds in three straight games.

"We were ahead in all three games, but it didn't matter because we all knew we weren't supposed to win," recalls Dodger catcher Johnny Oates, who played for the Phillies last year.

Phillies' manager Danny Ozark believes his club is more mature than it was a year ago, and he also feels the fact the playoffs are starting four days earlier this year will be beneficial to his team.

"I think we had to work harder for our 101 victories this year," said Ozark. "I think we're a little bit stronger going into the playoffs than a year ago. I think our team will be better prepared mentally for this playoff. Last year there was a five-day layoff between the end of the season and the first playoff game and that hurt us.

"THIS TIME THERE will be no relaxation, no time for the mind to wander. And having been through it once has to be beneficial."

Both clubs come into the playoffs fairly healthy. Rick Monday, who has been bothered by a bad back since the All-Star game, may be replaced in center field by Glenn Burke for the Dodgers and Ozark has announced that Dave Johnson will start at first base in place of Richie Hebner, who is recovering from a torn rotor cuff in his shoulder.

LA and Yanks get odd look from the Greek

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — The Los Angeles Dodgers and New York Yankees were established as the favorites Monday by Jimmy "the Greek" Snyder to win their pennants and meet in the World Series.

The Dodgers were listed as 6-5 favorites to win Tuesday night's National League opener at Los Angeles against Philadelphia and also were 6-5 to capture the best-of-five series.

The Yankees, who open at home Wednesday against Kansas City, were listed at 7-5 for the fisrt game and 13-10 for the American League series.

Bears need attitude boost for big game with L.A.

Soviet's pressure disturbs NBC-TV

WASHINGTON — A House subcommittee examining Olympic sports was assured Monday that if NBC is subjected to "unbearable demands" from the Soviet Union in preparing coverage of the 1980 Summer Olympics in Moscow, the network would pull out.

But NBC Television Network President Robert E. Mulholland toold the subcommittee there is no indication so far of undue pressure from the Soviets to attempt to control NBC coverage.

"NBC has been in business for 50 years," he said. "It's not going to sacrifice its integrity for two weeks of programming."

Mulholland also was asked what NBC would do if there was a demonstration by Soviet dissidents during the Games and the government told the network not to cover it.

"We tell the Soviets that we'll cover everything that happens in the stadium," he said. "If we're prevented from covering something, we intend to say so on the air."

Court upholds girls basketball rule

CINCINNATI — A federal appeals court today upheld controversial Tennessee high school girls' basketball rules wich impose half-court restrictions on all players and keep half the team from shooting.

The Sixth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals reversed the earlier decision of U.S. District Court Judge Robert Taylor, who had declared the girls' rules represented sex discrimination and violated the equal protection clause of the 14th amendment.

Unlike boys' rules (and girls' rules in most states), the Tennessee girls' rules mandate six players on a team — three "shooters" who are not allowed to leave their half of the court and three "defenders" who can't leave their half of the court.

Robinson wins Joe Cronin award

NEW YORK — Brooks Robinson, one of the premier third basemen in baseball history who recently announced his retirement after a record 23 years with the Baltimore Orioles, Monday was named winner of the prestigious Joe Cronin Award.

The trophy, an annual league presentation in honor of the Hall of Fame Chairman of the Board of the American League, will be presented by Cronin prior to the start of the first American League championship game at Yankee Stadium Wednesday.

Robinson, who will fly here with his wife, Connie, for the presentation, recorded the highest fielding average of all third basemen of .971. His 23 years with the Orioles are a record for a player with one team.

Robinson was a member of 18 consecutive American League All-Star teams, was the league's Most Valuable Player in 1964, the World Series MVP in 1970 and winner of 16 straight Gold Glove awards as the top fielding third baseman in the league.

National League draws record fans

NEW YORK — The National League drew a record number 19,070,230 fans for the 1977 season, the league office announced Monday.

This represents an incease of 2,409,701 over last year and an increase of 1,745,373 over 1971, the previous all-time record attendance year.

The two division winning teams led the way with attendance figures of over 2 million each. Los Angeles drew 2,955,087 and Philadelphia drew over 2 million again with 2,519,670 fans.

Montreal increased attendance by 787,053 and drew a total of 1,433,757 people in the new Olympic Stadium. The Chicago Cubs and St. Louis also increased their total attendance, drawing 1,439,834 and 1,659,287 respectively.

Houston, Pittsburgh, Atlanta and San Francisco also showed increases in their attendance figures, while San Diego and the New York Mets, although each drew over one million fans, had a decrease in attendance from last year.

Soviet's pressure disturbs NBC-TV

WASHINGTON — A House subcommittee examining Olympic sports was assured Monday that if NBC is subjected to "unbearable demands" from the Soviet Union in preparing coverage of the 1980 Summer Olympics in Moscow, the network would pull out.

But NBC Television Network President Robert E. Mulholland toold the subcommittee there is no indication so far of undue pressure from the Soviets to attempt to control NBC coverage.

"NBC has been in business for 50 years," he said. "It's not going to sacrifice its integrity for two weeks of programming."

Mulholland also was asked what NBC would do if there was a demonstration by Soviet dissidents during the Games and the government told the network not to cover it.

"We tell the Soviets that we'll cover everything that happens in the stadium," he said. "If we're prevented from covering something, we intend to say so on the air."

Court upholds girls basketball rule

CINCINNATI — A federal appeals court today upheld controversial Tennessee high school girls' basketball rules wich impose half-court restrictions on all players and keep half the team from shooting.

The Sixth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals reversed the earlier decision of U.S. District Court Judge Robert Taylor, who had declared the girls' rules represented sex discrimination and violated the equal protection clause of the 14th amendment.

Unlike boys' rules (and girls' rules in most states), the Tennessee girls' rules mandate six players on a team — three "shooters" who are not allowed to leave their half of the court and three "defenders" who can't leave their half of the court.

Robinson wins Joe Cronin award

NEW YORK — Brooks Robinson, one of the premier third basemen in baseball history who recently announced his retirement after a record 23 years with the Baltimore Orioles, Monday was named winner of the prestigious Joe Cronin Award.

The trophy, an annual league presentation in honor of the Hall of Fame Chairman of the Board of the American League, will be presented by Cronin prior to the start of the first American League championship game at Yankee Stadium Wednesday.

Robinson, who will fly here with his wife, Connie, for the presentation, recorded the highest fielding average of all third basemen of .971. His 23 years with the Orioles are a record for a player with one team.

Robinson was a member of 18 consecutive American League All-Star teams, was the league's Most Valuable Player in 1964, the World Series MVP in 1970 and winner of 16 straight Gold Glove awards as the top fielding third baseman in the league.

National League draws record fans

NEW YORK — The National League drew a record number 19,070,230 fans for the 1977 season, the league office announced Monday.

This represents an incease of 2,409,701 over last year and an increase of 1,745,373 over 1971, the previous all-time record attendance year.

The two division winning teams led the way with attendance figures of over 2 million each. Los Angeles drew 2,955,087 and Philadelphia drew over 2 million again with 2,519,670 fans.

Montreal increased attendance by 787,053 and drew a total of 1,433,757 people in the new Olympic Stadium. The Chicago Cubs and St. Louis also increased their total attendance, drawing 1,439,834 and 1,659,287 respectively.

Houston, Pittsburgh, Atlanta and San Francisco also showed increases in their attendance figures, while San Diego and the New York Mets, although each drew over one million fans, had a decrease in attendance from last year.

It's new USC, Michigan on top of coaches poll

NEW YORK (UPI) — The three top college football teams in the country played musical chairs again in the fourth United Press International Board of Coaches football ratings announced Monday, but Southern Cal managed to stay just a jump ahead of Michigan with 15 first-place votes to the Wolverines' 14 as Michigan pushed Oklahoma out of second place.

USC pounded Washington State, 41-7, Friday night to hold onto first place, but Michigan also turned in an impressive performance Saturday in defeating then fifth-ranked Texas A&M, 41-3. Oklahoma picked up 10 first place votes but dropped back to third after emerging with a 24-9 victory over Kansas. All three teams have 4-0 records.

Texas, 3-0, moved from eighth to fourth after crunching Rice, 72-15, and Colorado moved up one spot to fifth place after shutting out Army, 31-0.

PENN STATE, ranked fourth last week, suffered a 24-20 loss to Kentucky Saturday and dropped all the way back to the No. 11 spot. Texas A&M, which held the No. 5 spot last week, dropped to 17th after its loss to Michigan. Florida suffered its first loss of the season and watched its hopes for its first Southeastern Conference title slither away as the Gators lost to Louisiana State, 36-14, dropping from ninth to 18th in the ratings.

Ohio State, 3-1, defeated Southern Methodist University, 35-7, climbing one notch to the No. 6 spot while Nebraska defeated Indiana, 31-13, to move from 10th to seventh.

Bear Bryant's Crimson Tide, which did not make the top ten last week, downed a tough Georgia squad, 18-10, as Alabama took over the No. 8 spot after being ranked 12th. Arkansas remained undefeated at 4-0 and moved from 11th to ninth with a 42-6 victory over Texas Christian. California built its record to 4-0 and jumped from 16th to 10th with a 52-3 shellacking of San Jose State.

Brigham Young, 3-0, moved from the No. 14 spot to No. 12; Notre Dame, 3-1, moved from 15th to 13th; Pittsburgh, 3-1, dropped back one spot to No. 14; Houston, 3-1, vaulted from 17th to 15th and Texas Tech moved up to No. 16 from No. 19 with a 3-1 record.

Arizona State dropped out of the top 20 after being defeated by Missouri, 15-0, with Louisiana State, 2-1, emerging for the first time in the No. 19 spot. Wisconsin, 4-0, remained as No. 20.

Fortune turns fickle

Sox must bid for power in reentry draft

by BILL MADDEN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dame fortune, which smiled so willingly on the frugal efforts of the White Sox and Minnesota Twins in last winter's free agent reentry draft, is about to turn fickle.

The White Sox and Twins, it will be recalled, were among the more standoffish clubs when it came to the wild bidding and spending for baseball's newly-liberated chattels. While the Twins refused flatly to enter the dollar wars for free agents, the White Sox took the "low road" and signed such lesser-heralded players as Erick Soderholm, Steve Stone, Royale Stillman and Tim Nordbrook.

Meanwhile, both clubs laughed all the way to the bank while contending for the American League West pennant most of the season.

Now, however, the pendulum is about to swing the other way.

DESPITE THE earlier protestations of player guardians Marvin Miller and Jerry Kapstein, approximately 50 players — nearly twice as many as last year — still are eligible to become free agents and it's unlikely any of the bigger stars will sign between now and Nov. 4 — the tentative date for this year's reentry draft in New York.

The White Sox, who led the AL West for most of July and August, stand to lose the two key sluggers in their hitting-happy lineup — Richie Zisk and Oscar Gamble. The two combined to hit 61 homers in their first year with the White Sox and such a double-barrelled defection would be disastrous for a club that, noticeably devoid of pitching and defense, learned to survive by the long ball.

The Twins, who made an early rush for the AL West pennant before fading badly in August and September, seem likely to be stripped of their cleanup hitter and American League RBI leader, Larry Hisle, as well as most promising young hitters in all of baseball, and Tom Burmeier, their No. 2 relief pitcher.

All have imformed Club President Calvin Grifith of their intentions of finding out their worth in the open market and, if history is to be the judge, it's unlikely the Twins will be able to compete with the more affluent or spendthrifty organizations.

SIMILARLY, THE Cubs, who made no attempt to get into the free agent bargaining last year only to surprise everyone by setting the pace in the National Legue East for nearly three months, also could be hit hard.

The Cubs, at present, stand to lose their No. 3 starting pitcher, Bill Bonham; their No. 1 catcher, George Mitterwald; and their leading run-producer, Larry Biittner, who hit .298 with 12 homers and 62 RBI. But Cubs Vice President Bob Kennedy says he is close to signing Biittner and expects also to corral Mitterwald and Bonham.

Other highly-regarded players on the '77 free agent list include relief aces Rich Gossage of the Pittsburgh Pirates and Rawly Eastwick of the St. Louis Cardinals; Baltimore Orioles' 14-game winner Ross Grimsley; Rick Miller, the Boston Red Sox' No. 4 outfielder; 17-game winner Mike Torrez and home run slugger Dave Kingman — both of the New York Yankees; and eccentric Mike Marshall, the nomadic relief pitcher who wound up on the Texas Rangers' disabled list this year.

A key factor in this year's noticeable increase of free agents is the current basic agreement between the players and the owners which was ratified Aug. 9, 1976. Under the new agreement, the long-standing "option clause," in which the clubs automatically can renew a player's contract, has been abolished.

NOW A PLAYER is only the property of a club for six years after which he can opt for free agency. All players who signed contracts after Aug. 9 come under this new arrangement, but those who signed prior to that date are eligible to take advantage of free agency after playing out their option year when their current pact expires.

Meanwhile, Kapstein, who played the power broker role in last year's reentry draft with such highly-sought players as Joe Rudi, Gene Tenace, Rollie Fingers, Don Gullett, Don Baylor and Bobby Grich in his stable, figures to play a much lesser role this time — although in Zisk, Gossage and Eastwick he still will be negotiating quality if not quantity.

"I've already signed most of my people," said Kapstein. "Dennis Leonard, Ed Figueroa, Dusty Baker, Mike Flanagan, Randy Jones, Al Bumbry and Dave Concepcion among others all signed during the season. But you know me, I prefer to keep a low profile anyway."

Hoffman girls run to Lockport title

Hoffman Estates and Palatine led area girls cross country efforts this weekend. The Hawks of Hoffman Estates won the Lockport Invitational while the Pirates of Palatine placed third in the Grant-Crystal Lake Invitational.

At Lockport, Hoffman and Rich South tied for the team championship with scores of 52. However, the Hawks were declared the meet champion, because their fourth place runner's time (Nancy Greaney - 11:35) was lower than Rich South's fourth place competitor.

Other team finishers were Munster (Ind.) 86, Joliet West 136 and Barrington 163.

"The competition wasn't as good as it was around here, but I knew Rich South was a good school for girl's sports," said Hoffman coach Bob Lyons.

The highest finish for the Hawks was Tara Leiby. Her 10:36 earned her second place honors.

Teammates Charlene Warring finished fifth at 10:49, Mary Fogelberg 12th at 11:17 and Greaney 14th.

Only champion Woodstock's 45 points and Crystal Lake's 75 were better than Palatine's 81. Fellow Mid-Suburban League members Rollling Meadows and Hersey placed fourth and fifth, respectively. The Mustangs of Rolling Meadows had 150 while Hersey showed a 167.

Although Lake Forest and Stevenson achieved scores of 217 each, Lake Forest was awarded sixth place, because the point total of its top four runners was less than that of Stevenson's highest four finishers.

Antioch's 234, Mundelein's 269, Lake Zurich's 358, Warren's 374, and Benet Academy's 382 completed the team scoring.

Joan Kelly of Palatine and Julie Jacobs of Rolling Meadows topped area competitors. Kelly's 11:21 timing over the 1.75 mile course put her in fifth while Jacobs' 11:23 placed sixth.

Stacey Seidel and Nanci Irsop were Stevenson's and Hersey's best runners. Seidel ran a 11:46 race for 10th and Irsop finished two places lower at 11:50.

Area teams and their respective individual results were as follows:

Palatine — Kelly (5th) 11:21, Ulander (13th) 11:52, Sullivan (18th) 12:13, Higgs (19th) 12:13, Coy (26th) 12:29, Miles (29th) 12:24, Milota (32nd) 12:44.

Rolling Meadows — Jacobs (6th) 11:23, Geegan (15th) 12:34, Rief (42nd) 13:14, Ambrose (43rd) 13:18, Bradley (44th) 13:18.

Hersey — Irsop (12th) 11:50, Hogan (24th) 12:26, Schoonover (27th) 12:29, LeClaire (30th) 12:39, Deamant (74th) 15:21.

Stevenson — Seidel (10th) 11:46, Otto (21st) 12:18, Kenley (53rd) 13:45, Makofski (64th) 14:34, Dudivsky (69th) 14:50.

Many 1976 prep leaders rank high this season, too

There's a similarity between the first ratings of Illinois high school football teams this year and the way they wound up in the last ratings of 1976.

In both the Class 4A-5A and Class 1A-2A-3A ratings, four of the top 10 last year remained in the top 10 in this season's first ranking by boards of 12 coaches in each group for United Press International. Two state champions, Burbank St. Laurence and Geneseo Darnall, took the No. 1 ratings.

St. Laurence finished the 1976 season with all 12 first-place votes for the No. 1 spot and went on to win the 5A state title.

GENESEO DARNALL finished second to Metamora in the 1A-2A-3A ratings with three No. 1 votes compared with eight for Metamora and went on to defeat Metamora 20-12 in the 3A championship game.

Metamora stayed in the running this year, taking the No. 2 spot behind Darnall with 97 points compared with 119 for Darnall, which had 11 No. 1 votes. St. Laurence, also with 11 No. 1 votes, had 119 points with Deerfield, the state 5A champion two years ago, ranked No. 2 with one first-place vote and 89 points.

Other schools in the top 10 in 1A-2A-3A last year who held spots in the first ratings this year were Concord Triopia, runner up for the state 1A title twice and champion once, in No. 7 and Mount Carmel, No. 4 in the final ratings last year and No. 5 this week. Mount Carmel finished runnerup for the state crown three years ago.

In the 4A-5A category Joliet Catholic, state 4A champion the last two years and ranked No. 8 in the 1976 final ratings, seized the No. 3 spot this week with 68 points; Belleville West, runnerup in the final ratings last year; took the No. 5 spot this week; and Peoria Manual, No. 7 a year ago, occupied the No. 10 berth this week.

Bears need boost for Rams game

be comforted by the fact Namath's favorite receiver, Ron Jesse, is out for the season after sustaining ligament damage in his right knee Sunday. But the Rams are a much deeper, sounder team than the bunch that racked up 42 points against Chicago Sunday.

"I SEE OAKLAND'S (coach) John Madden is worried because he has to play a game without Phil Villipiano and they're a great football team," Pardee said. "We've had to play without Lionel Antoine, Doug Plank and Wally Chambers and we're not a great football team."

Pardee said Plank and Chambers may be back for Monday's game, although he emphasized neither has practiced for three weeks and might not be in shape to contribute.

But even their presence in the lineup could be a psychological boost to a defense rated among the poorest in the NFL.

The Bears will have an extra day to prepare for the Monday night contest, which has been sold out since August and will be televised locally. But Pardee doesn't think the extra day will be much help, outside of allowing minor injuries to heal better.

"I'd just as soon have a shorter week," Pardee said. "You can work all night long, yet you still get the same figures."

Only champion Woodstock's 45 points and Crystal Lake's 75 were better than Palatine's 81. Fellow Mid-Suburban League members Rollling Meadows and Hersey placed fourth and fifth, respectively. The Mustangs of Rolling Meadows had 150 while Hersey showed a 167.

Although Lake Forest and Stevenson achieved scores of 217 each, Lake Forest was awarded sixth place, because the point total of its top four runners was less than that of Stevenson's highest four finishers.

Antioch's 234, Mundelein's 269, Lake Zurich's 358, Warren's 374, and Benet Academy's 382 completed the team scoring.

Joan Kelly of Palatine and Julie Jacobs of Rolling Meadows topped area competitors. Kelly's 11:21 timing over the 1.75 mile course put her in fifth while Jacobs' 11:23 placed sixth.

Stacey Seidel and Nanci Irsop were Stevenson's and Hersey's best runners. Seidel ran a 11:46 race for 10th and Irsop finished two places lower at 11:50.

Area teams and their respective individual results were as follows:

Palatine — Kelly (5th) 11:21, Ulander (13th) 11:52, Sullivan (18th) 12:13, Higgs (19th) 12:13, Coy (26th) 12:29, Miles (29th) 12:24, Milota (32nd) 12:44.

Rolling Meadows — Jacobs (6th) 11:23, Geegan (15th) 12:34, Rief (42nd) 13:14, Ambrose (43rd) 13:18, Bradley (44th) 13:18.

Hersey — Irsop (12th) 11:50, Hogan (24th) 12:26, Schoonover (27th) 12:29, LeClaire (30th) 12:39, Deamant (74th) 15:21.

Stevenson — Seidel (10th) 11:46, Otto (21st) 12:18, Kenley (53rd) 13:45, Makofski (64th) 14:34, Dudivsky (69th) 14:50.

Many 1976 prep leaders rank high this season, too

There's a similarity between the first ratings of Illinois high school football teams this year and the way they wound up in the last ratings of 1976.

In both the Class 4A-5A and Class 1A-2A-3A ratings, four of the top 10 last year remained in the top 10 in this season's first ranking by boards of 12 coaches in each group for United Press International. Two state champions, Burbank St. Laurence and Geneseo Darnall, took the No. 1 ratings.

St. Laurence finished the 1976 season with all 12 first-place votes for the No. 1 spot and went on to win the 5A state title.

GENESEO DARNALL finished second to Metamora in the 1A-2A-3A ratings with three No. 1 votes compared with eight for Metamora and went on to defeat Metamora 20-12 in the 3A championship game.

Metamora stayed in the running this year, taking the No. 2 spot behind Darnall with 97 points compared with 119 for Darnall, which had 11 No. 1 votes. St. Laurence, also with 11 No. 1 votes, had 119 points with Deerfield, the state 5A champion two years ago, ranked No. 2 with one first-place vote and 89 points.

Other schools in the top 10 in 1A-2A-3A last year who held spots in the first ratings this year were Concord Triopia, runner up for the state 1A title twice and champion once, in No. 7 and Mount Carmel, No. 4 in the final ratings last year and No. 5 this week. Mount Carmel finished runnerup for the state crown three years ago.

In the 4A-5A category Joliet Catholic, state 4A champion the last two years and ranked No. 8 in the 1976 final ratings, seized the No. 3 spot this week with 68 points; Belleville West, runnerup in the final ratings last year; took the No. 5 spot this week; and Peoria Manual, No. 7 a year ago, occupied the No. 10 berth this week.

be comforted by the fact Namath's favorite receiver, Ron Jesse, is out for the season after sustaining ligament damage in his right knee Sunday. But the Rams are a much deeper, sounder team than the bunch that racked up 42 points against Chicago Sunday.

"I SEE OAKLAND'S (coach) John Madden is worried because he has to play a game without Phil Villipiano and they're a great football team," Pardee said. "We've had to play without Lionel Antoine, Doug Plank and Wally Chambers and we're not a great football team."

Pardee said Plank and Chambers may be back for Monday's game, although he emphasized neither has practiced for three weeks and might not be in shape to contribute.

But even their presence in the lineup could be a psychological boost to a defense rated among the poorest in the NFL.

The Bears will have an extra day to prepare for the Monday night contest, which has been sold out since August and will be televised locally. But Pardee doesn't think the extra day will be much help, outside of allowing minor injuries to heal better.

"I'd just as soon have a shorter week," Pardee said. "You can work all night long, yet you still get the same figures."

Doubled set scores best

When an opponent opens the bidding against you, there is no one who puts a gun to your head and orders you to bid. Still, if you never compete, you miss many of the best things in bridge life.

In a recent tournament about half the East players passed whereupon the bidding was short, sweet and simple. The hand was passed out.

When East opened with a heart, the standard procedure was one spade by West, one notrump by East and three passes to close the bidding.

Some East-West pairs got to two hearts or two or even three notrump. This was unfortunate for them since none of them got plus, while most of the one notrump bidders did make the seven tricks they needed.

The best East-West score came when South decided that he had four spades and was going to overcall. He wound up at two spades doubled.

West opened his singleton heart. East cashed two hearts and gave his partner a ruff. Back came a club and when the smoke of battle had cleared away South had gone down two and East and West had acquired a nice top score.

Ask Andy

Andy sends a World Book Year Book to Shirley Byrd, 12, of Lamar, S.C., for her question:

HOW MANY TYPES OF TREES ARE THERE?

A tree's wood is made of about 50 per cent water. A large tree in full leaf may absorb 95 gallons of water from the soil daily. On a hot summer day, water will be moving up through the trunk at the rate of about three feet every minute. Sunshine, air and lots of water are needed by every tree to carry out its development and growth.

Trees are the largest and oldest of all the world's plants. We couldn't live very well without them since they provide us with food, fiber and medicine. Wood from trees gives us many of our building materials. And the living tree conserves our natural resources and supplies oxygen for us from the carbon dioxide it absorbs from the air.

There are more than 20,000 different kinds of trees on earth. More than 1,000 grow in North America. The largest variety grow in wet, tropical regions.

Six different classifications divide the main groups of trees. They are the broadleaf trees, needleleaf trees, palms, cycad trees, fern trees and ginko trees.

Largest grouping of trees are in the broadleaf class. As the name implies, they have flat, broad leaves and for the most part they are deciduous — that is, they lose their leaves in the fall and grow new ones each spring. Among the exceptions are the evergreen live oaks and the holly trees.

Broadleaf trees have flowers that develop into fruit. The fruit, in turn, completely surrounds the seeds. For the most part, trees in this group have hard, tough wood.

More than 500 species of needleleaf trees can be found. For the most part, the trees are evergreen although they do produce new needles each year. Most of the needleleaf trees are classified as softwood. Most of the trees produce seeds in cones.

There are about 2,500 varieties of the palm trees on earth. Most have no brances and are made up of feather-shaped or fan-shaped leaves at the crown of the trunk.

Cycad trees look much like palms but are more closely related to pines. They grow mostly in Africa, Asia and Central America and have crowns of long, feathery leaves.

Fern trees, which like the tropics or mild climates, reproduce by tiny bodies called spores. They do not form flowers, fruit or seeds.

The ginko tree, in a class by itself, has fan-shaped leaves and can trace its history back millions of years. It is often called the maidenhair tree.

Andy sends the 1977 World Book Science Year Annual to Jamie Munro, 8, of Lancaster, Pa., for his question:

WAS THERE EVER A REAL UNICORN?

A strange animal called the unicorn was described in ancient Roman and Greek myths. Said to look very much like a horse, the animal had coming out of his forehead a single horn that was straight with a spiral twist.

In the myths, the unicorn's horn had a red tip, was white at the base and black in the middle. The animal's body was usually white, his head was red and his eyes always were blue. His hind legs looked very much like those of an antelope while his tail was like a lion's.

Artists during the middle ages often placed a unicorn beside the figures of saints, Christ and the Virgin Mary. The unicorn was said to be a sign of purity.
